The Court Adjourns

STATE OF THE JUDICIARY REPORT

When I reported to you at last year's Conference, I offered my views on the state of the judiciary as well as some suggestions for the future improvement of the court system. Time has passed rapidly, and the past year has been both interesting and somewhat hectic. This year's Conference provides a good opportunity to reflect upon and to evaluate the activities of the last twelve months.

Regrettably, progress has not been as great as I would like. Although our court system continues strong, significant problems remain unsolved. I hope that the coming year will find our judiciary united in its efforts and resolute in its pursuit of needed changes. Confident of our ability to maintain our strengths and eliminate our weaknesses, I offer the annual report on the state of the judiciary.

By now, the call for the creation of an intermediate appellate court in Virginia has become familiar. The need for such a court has been delineated many times, and the idea now has greater acceptance than ever before. Indeed, this Conference in 1981 expressed substantial support for the new appellate court concept. Unfortunately, another year has passed without any action to rectify the single greatest weakness of our current court system—the lack of appellate capacity.

After completing an extensive study, the Judicial Council recommended legislation to the 1982 Session of the General Assembly which would have created a Court of Appeals. While recognizing that a problem exists, the legislature remained divided as to the best solution, and no action was taken on Council's proposal. The Courts of Justice Committees of both Houses of the legislature did agree to study the issue further during 1982.

The desire to study all possible options in resolving this problem is understandable; it is my fear, though, that the additional delay will significantly worsen the situation. The nature of the problem was identified by the I'Anson Commission as early as 1968. Since that time, the issue has been under almost continuous study, and the problem has intensified drastically. The appellate backlog in Virginia has reached unacceptable proportions.

In 1961, there were 420 petitions for appeal filed in the Supreme Court of Virginia. This number grew to 2,257 by the end of 1981. An average criminal case takes approximately eleven months from filing to disposition in the Supreme Court. An average civil case takes twenty-eight months. By the time the General Assembly reviews this issue again, it is possible that a civil case will require three years from filing to disposition. Even more disturbing is the fact that at the close of 1981, there were 1,147 petitions filed and awaiting disposition by the Court. This represents nearly three years' work according to 1961 standards.

Trial judges are certainly cognizant of the complex nature of litigation in the courts today. The complexity evident in trial courts is magnified in the appellate process. The growth in caseload and complexity of issues has produced the undesired result that a citizen must wait years to obtain a final disposition of his or her case.

I can assure you that each member of the Supreme Court has worked vigorously to reduce the appellate backlog. I am confident that the existing backlog stems not from lack of effort, nor from a failure to utilize administrative and procedural shortcuts, but merely from lack of appellate capacity.

This inadequacy in our court system is not the problem of the Supreme Court alone. The problem should be the concern of every member of this state's judiciary. It does little good to perfect one level of the system while allowing another to approach near-crisis in its ability to handle its workload. The effectiveness of the system will be judged as a whole, not just by its individual parts. I urge every member of this Conference to support the creation of an intermediate appellate court so the Virginia court system can maintain the public respect that is essential to its continued vitality.

One of the key items in last year's state of the judiciary report was a recommendation favoring the merit selection of judges At the recent session of the General Assembly, a bill was introduced that would have created a judicial nominations commission for Virginia. As with all prior proposals of a similar nature, the 1982 version was rejected. I remain convinced that the proposal is meritorious.

In favoring some form of merit selection of judges, I do not suggest infringing upon the ultimate authority of the General Assembly to fill judicial vacancies. Neither do I intend to imply that the process currently in use has produced any but highly qualified judges; indeed, I rate Virginia's judicial personnel superior to any in this country. But, given the General Assembly's increased preoccupation with other matters, I think the process of selecting judges can be improved by adding a method of conducting more thorough investigations into the qualifications of candidates.

The method I propose would take the form of a judicial nominations commission composed of legislators, judges, lawyers, and laymen. As the name implies, the commission would merely nominate, not elect. But, backed by a careful investigation and consideration of its nominees, the commission's recommendations should be accorded great weight by the appointing authority; otherwise, the process would amount to no more than an empty gesture. I urge the General Assembly to reconsider the merit-selection concept and thus signify its commitment to an effort to attract the best qualified persons to the bench.

One cannot discuss methods of judicial selection without mentioning the need for adequate compensation for members of the judiciary. We have made some progress in this respect this year, and I want to express my personal appreciation to the members of the General Assembly for their efforts in our behalf.

As everyone is aware, the financial situation of the Commonwealth, as with all segments of government, is extremely restricted. Notwithstanding the reality of reduced revenues, the General Assembly found the resources to provide a four percent salary increase for judges, effective July 1. Despite this commendable effort, the sad fact remains that the Virginia judiciary continues to lose ground on the financial front. For some time, our stated goal has been to have circuit court salaries equal those of United States district court judges. Yet, circuit court salaries have now fallen below the pay of United States magistrates. I ask the General Assembly to correct this lamentable situation in a significant way. The General Assembly must not lose sight of the incontestable fact that, in the long term, the quality of the Virginia judiciary will suffer from its inability to compete with the federal system and private law firms for the best legal talent. Money spent now to attract qualified men and women to the bench is a sound investment in the future.

The 1982 Session of the General Assembly considered several other issues of importance to the judicial system. I am pleased to report that adequate funds were appropriated to continue the development of automation in the court system, which will allow for significant modernization of the clerks' offices throughout the State. Further, the legislature took the first step toward State financing of the judicial system's education program. While we did not receive sufficient funds to continue the program at the same level it operated during the years federal funds were abundantly available, I believe we can maintain a sound core program. I am hopeful we can return the program to its maximum level in future years.

On the negative side, funds were not appropriated to provide secretaries and law clerks for circuit court judges. The lack of sufficient revenues again was the principal reason assigned, although some members of the legislature remain unconvinced of the need for law clerks. In the future, we must illustrate the necessity of providing judges with good support services and further demonstrate that sounder, speedier justice can be the result of such support.

Finally, the legislature addressed the continuing problem of providing funds for appointment of counsel to indigents accused of crime. Measures were introduced to allow a phased implementation of a statewide public defender system in those areas where cost was justified. The legislature lamented the fact that $7.4 million was paid for indigent defense during 1981, yet no action was taken on the public defender proposal. It remains imperative that the legislature, the judiciary, and the bar find methods to provide competent defense services to indigents in an economical way. The public defender system may not be suited for every area of the State; however, it has worked well and reduced costs in the pilot jurisdictions. Those of you who believe a public defender system would be viable in your area should so advise the Public Defender Commission. This will allow the Commission to seek funding for additional pilot areas and to provide a better test of the desirability of the program.

So much for past events. How are we preparing for the future? Where do we want to go in the next ten years? What are our most serious problems? These are some of the questions which must be answered by everyone concerned with the future direction and development of the judicial system. Most states have recognized that planning is an integral part of judicial administration. Virginia is certainly no exception. Since 1977, the Judicial Council has been reviewing issues which should be included in the comprehensive judicial plan—our road map for the future. Many of the issues presently before the General Assembly were the cornerstones of the original planning process.

In an effort to coordinate our next planning cycle with the 1984-86 biennial budget, we recently conducted a planning survey among judicial system personnel. The survey sought to identify what our people thought the public perceived as the system's problems and future directions. I found the results very informative, and I want to share with you some of the conclusions.

What are our most serious problems in the eyes of the public? The responses indicate that the public considers extended waiting times, the granting of numerous continuances, and sentencing disparity as the greatest weaknesses of the court system. What does the public appreciate most about the courts? Courteous service from court personnel, as well as various victim/witness programs, are the most often mentioned positive factors.

Are there some cases that can best be handled outside the court system? Most who responded feel that new methods should be found for handling drunk-in-public cases, domestic relations matters, children in need of services, and involuntary mental commitments. Responses suggested that the court system is not the most suited environment for these matters.

When asked what specific changes should be made in the court system, those responding recommended creating a family court system, instituting judicial rather than jury sentencing, improving the magistrate system, and establishing an intermediate appellate court.

These problems and concerns are just a few of the issues that will be addressed by the Judicial Council during the coming months in its effort to produce a meaningful blueprint for the future direction of the Virginia court system. I have reviewed these items with you so you may be aware of the thinking of your colleagues and others in the judicial system. Furthermore, it is my wish to keep you informed on the major issues that are likely to be topics of debate and consideration in the near future. I encourage input from the Judicial Conference committees and from each of you on ways to find viable, acceptable, and enduring solutions to these problems.

In summary, our court system stands at a pivotal juncture in its history. The system has a proud tradition of effective service. Yet, we are faced with changes in our society and profession that place new demands on the courts at a time we can least afford to pay for increased services. Our ability to anticipate, plan for, and meet these demands will determine whether the system will continue to deserve the prestige and respect it has enjoyed in the past.

It has been said that the worth of a person's existence is measured by the diligence with which he or she pursues excellence. I call upon each of you to join me in the pursuit of judicial excellence and to begin today to provide the leadership necessary to build and maintain a court system capable of meeting the needs of today's society.

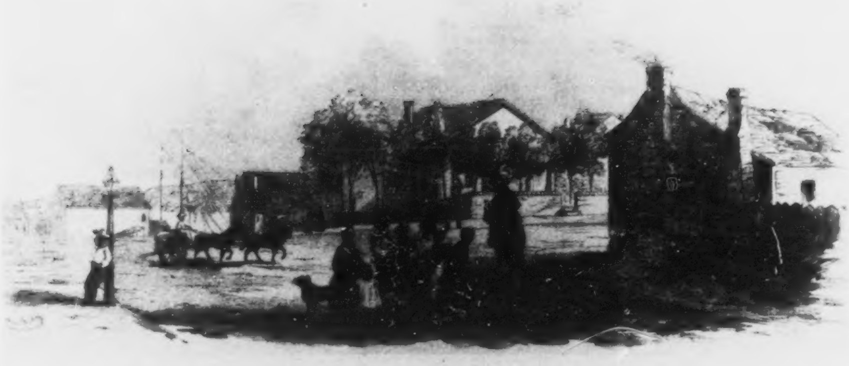
THE VIRGINIA JUDICIARY



Henrico County Courthouse
Occupied by Court 1780-1789

SUPREME COURT OF VIRGINIA

The term "nomadic" best describes the Supreme Court of Virginia's existence for the 202 years since its founding. That was the term Justice Albertis S. Harrison, Jr. used on the occasion of the dedication of the Court's permanent headquarters on December 4, 1981. Formerly the Federal Reserve Bank Building, located across from Capitol Square in Richmond, the Supreme Court's first permanent headquarters houses the numerous offices of the Court and Attorney General that had been separately located for many years.

From its beginning in 1779 until the fall of 1981, the Supreme Court of Virginia had occupied eight buildings, none of which it could call its own. In describing the Court's new permanent facilities, Governor Dalton observed that they will "provide an atmosphere of dignity which the Court should command."

Throughout the 1981 State of the Judiciary Report are section dividers which are photographs showing the various locations of the Supreme Court of Virginia. A narrative concerning these locations follows.

The first Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia met at the capitol in Williamsburg on August 30, 1779. Edmund Pendleton was the first judge of this court to take the oath of office, and he was elected its first president by his five associates.

Virginia's seat of government was moved to Richmond in 1780, and the Supreme Court of Appeals was located in the Henrico County courthouse at the corner of 22nd and Main Streets. It remained there until 1789.

In 1789 and for the following fifty-eight years, the Court occupied the southeast corner room of the present Capitol, the area currently occupied by the clerk of the House of Delegates.

Former Chief Justice Edward W. Hudgins, who has written a history of the locations the Virginia Supreme Court has occupied, recounts that in 1847 a three-story brick building, designated the "State Court House," was erected near the southeastern corner of Capitol Square. This building housed the Supreme Court of Appeals plus several subordinate courts. According to Justice Hudgins, General Robert E. Lee had office space in this building at one time. The "State Court House" building was destroyed by fire on April 3, 1865, the date of the evacuation of Richmond.

From March 1866 until April 1870, the Supreme Court was located on the second floor of the state Capitol over the old hall of the House of Delegates. On April 27, 1870, the courtroom was crowded with a throng of people who were there to hear the Court's decision in a hotly contested election case. As the judges entered the courtroom, the floor crashed to the first floor, and sixty-five people were killed in the resulting disaster.

Following this unexpected tragedy, the Court used the City of Richmond's Hustings courtroom in City Hall from April to November 1870. From this time until 1872, there is no specific mention of where the Court convened.

The state acquired the building at 313 North 11th Street in 1872. Known as the old "Sycamore Church," the Court occupied this dwelling until November 1895. In that year the court moved to the second floor of the then State Library Building which is now occupied by the Commonwealth's Finance Department. The court remained in this location until 1940.

The 1936 General Assembly created a Library Building Commission (1936 Acts, p. 393). Governor Price became a prime mover in the attempt to secure new quarters for the Supreme Court, and as one of his pre-election promises he stated that, if elected, he would secure adequate quarters in which the justices "might perform their services to the Commonwealth."

Dedicated on January 6, 1941, the Supreme Court of Appeals Building housed the Court, the law library and justices' offices, as well as offices of the Virginia State Library. This building occupies the block between 11th and 12th Streets and Broad Street. Due to space limitations, it has been unable in recent years to accommodate all of the Supreme Court's administrative office nor all of the satellite offices of the Attorney General.

Under renovation for the last three years at a cost of approximately ten million dollars, the new Supreme Court of Virginia Building covers the block between 8th and 9th Streets and is bounded by Franklin Street and St. Paul's Church on Grace Street. For the first time in the Court's history, all of its offices, courtroom and law library are located in the same building. In accepting the new building, Chief Justice Carrico described the dedication ceremony as one of "both appreciation and dedication—appreciation for things material and dedication to matters of principle."

Intermediate Appellate Court

During 1978, the Judicial Council of Virginia authorized a study by the National Center for State Courts to evaluate past court reform activities in Virginia and to develop plans for the future direction of the court system. The major area of concern identified by that study was the need for relief from an appellate court overload. The Center's report concluded that the appellate caseload is too great for one appellate court. This point is supported by the fact that the Virginia Supreme Court's caseload far exceeds that of other Supreme Courts in states without intermediate courts. Three other basic reasons support the need for an intermediate appellate court. First, some observers comment that the Court does not grant enough appeals and have sufficient time for development of Virginia law. Second, some attorneys question whether sufficient consideration is given petitions for appeals. Third, the tremendous growth in caseload and the complexity of the issues involved have produced the undesired result that a citizen may wait years to obtain a final disposition of his case.

Believing that the need for relief is clear and that an intermediate appellate court should be created, the Judicial Council prepared and recommended legislation to the 1982 Session of the General Assembly which would have created a twelve judge intermediate appellate court. While recognizing that a problem exists, the legislature remained divided as to the best solution, and no action was taken on Council's proposal. The Courts of Justice Committees of both Houses of the legislature did agree to study the issue further during 1982.

A Profile of the Supreme Court

At the close of 1981, the Clerk of Supreme Court of Virginia reported that 2,257 petitions for appeal and original jurisdiction had been filed with the Court during the year. This figure represents an 8% increase over the 2,091 petitions filed in 1980. Since 1972, the number of filings has increased by 61% which indicates the continued growth of the workload for the Supreme Court.

The Court acted on 1,823 petitions, 37 fewer than in 1980. However, the number of petitions withdrawn prior to being acted upon nearly tripled from the 43 reported in the previous year. Court activity, between 1972 and 1981, is graphically displayed in Appendix C.

Included with petitions acted upon were 1,502 appeals. Of this number, 565 were civil, 892 were criminal, 40 were habeas corpus involving civil cases and 5 represented granted appeals remanded to trial courts. Compared to the 1980 caseload, criminal appeals experienced a 7% growth while civil and habeas corpus appeals acted upon fell by 12% and 30%, respectively.

Original jurisdiction cases numbered 321 for the year. Writs of Habeas Corpus accounted for a majority of 84% of these cases; Writs of Mandamus represented 13%; and Writs of Prohibitions amounted to 3% of the total.

There were 1,147 petitions pending at the close of 1981, an increase in the pending workload of 47%. At the end of 1980 there were 778 petitions pending; 640 at the end of 1979 and 1978 closed with 583. Of 1981's pending petitions only 997 were actually awaiting decision—the remainder consisted of those files received during December and those decided cases which were being processed by the Clerk's Office.

The Court granted 271 petitions in 1981 which is consistent with the number of petitions granted in 1980. Of the cases disposed of during the past year, 185 were by written opinion and 82 through orders. Of the cases decided by opinion, 51% affirmed the judgment of the lower court.

Appendix C enumerates the activities of the Court during the past year.

CIRCUIT COURT SYSTEM

Organization

The circuit court is the only court with general jurisdiction in the Commonwealth. There are thirty-one judicial circuits with 116 circuit court judges, as of July 1, 1982, who hear cases in 122 court locations. The judges are elected for eight year terms by the General Assembly. Each circuit has a chief judge, selected by peer vote for a two year term, who is given the authority to assign the work of the circuit among the judges.

There are 122 locally elected circuit court clerks with approximately 725 persons who work in the state circuit court system.

Jurisdiction

The circuit court has concurrent jurisdiction with the General District Court in civil cases involving claims between $1,000.00 and $7,000.00 with the exception of attachments in which the claim must exceed $20,000.00. They have exclusive jurisdiction over all equity matters such as adoptions, divorces and land title disputes.

Circuit courts have jurisdiction of proceedings by quo warranto and to issue writs of mandamus, prohibition, and certiorari to all tribunals. They must also issue writs of mandamus in all matters or proceedings arising from or pertaining to the actions of the board of supervisors or other governing body of any county. The appellate jurisdiction extends to all cases, civil and criminal, in which appeal may, as provided by law, be taken from the judgment of any inferior tribunal.

A Profile of the Circuits

During 1981, Virginia's circuit courts commenced 144,580 cases, an increase of 4% over the 138,986 initiated in 1980. Between 1979 and 1980, the caseload grew 6.5%; from 1978 to 1979, it rose 4.3%; and from 1977 to 1978 the increase was 6.6%. During the last ten years the commenced caseload of the circuit courts has increased 69% while the number of authorized judgeships has risen from 99 in 1972 to 113 in 1981, a 14% increase.

On an average, the circuit court judges commenced 1,279 cases in 1981, twenty-seven more than in 1980. In rural circuits this measure was 1,262, while urban circuit judges commenced an average of 1,292 cases each. The year 1981 marked the thirteenth straight yearly increase in caseload per circuit court judge.

The 1981 commenced caseload was composed of 56% civil and 44% criminal cases. This composition has remained fairly constant since 1977. Last year's commenced caseload can be further broken down into 21.4% law, 34.1% equity, 28.2% felony, 16% misdemeanor and 0.3% habeas corpus/post conviction. Although the civil distribution remained constant, the composition of criminal cases varied with the 1980 distribution of 26.2% felony and 16.8% misdemeanor.

Law cases commenced in 1981 totaled 30,886 or 623 less than the number reported for the previous year. This decline was the result of 243 and 639 fewer condemnation and other law cases, respectively, offset slightly by an additional 259 appeals. Equity cases rose by 5% and numbered 49,366, of which 72% were commenced divorce cases. Divorces in 1981 were at a rate of 6.7 per 1,000 Virginians.

The number of felony cases grew by 12% during 1981. With 40,729 felonies commenced in 1981, felony charges per thousand residents rose from 5.5 in 1977, to 5.7 in 1978, to 6.2 in 1979, to 6.8 in 1980, and to 7.6 in 1981. Misdemeanors decreased by 244 during the past year and were reported at 23,190.

The average population per judge was 47,317, based on a total population of 5,346,818 and 113 judges. In 1960, there were 13.7 commenced cases for every one thousand people in Virginia. By 1970, this rate increased to 17.1. In 1981, this figure jumped to 27.0 commenced cases per thousand people. Every year, since 1966, has demonstrated an increase in the relative frequency of court involvment by Virginia citizens.

Concluded cases rose by 7% and numbered 138,228 in 1981. The judges of the circuits concluded an average of 1,223 cases, 5% more than in 1980.

Despite this increase in the circuits concluded caseload, the number of concluded cases was less than the number of new cases. This has been the trend since 1966, and therefore, the number of pending cases has constantly increased. The 1981 pending caseload was 139,229 cases, 5% more than at the close of 1980. However, relative pending caseload was slightly less than the previous year. Relative pending caseload is found by dividing the absolute pending caseload at the end of the year by the total number of concluded cases for the same time period, or 1.01 for 1981. This ratio was 1.03 for 1980, 1.10 for 1979, and 0.96 in 1978.

The pending caseload may appear to be large. However, it does not necessarily indicate a burden upon court time, nor does it reveal delay in case processing. In order to better understand the pending caseload, it is necessary to realize that whether out of preference or strategy, some cases simply "mature" on the docket until a more favorable time. These cases may not represent an immediate demand of judicial resources but merely a deferred normal expenditure of bench time. It should be remembered that courts must have pending caseloads. The court's inventory of cases is a natural level of pending cases. Cases awaiting the next term of court, for example, divorces which require a time delay, involved civil cases, and criminal cases involving fugitives, all represent pending cases through no fault of the court. Many factors must therefore be considered in an analysis of pending caseload.

During the past year, the circuit courts reported scheduling 3,838 jury trials involving criminal cases and 1,775 involving civil actions. The total of 5,613 jury trials represented a 9% increase over the 5,156 jury trials held in 1980. The distribution of jury trials in 1981 was 31% law, 1% equity, 55% felony and 13% misdemeanor.

The ratio of jury trials to concluded cases established the frequency of cases involving jury trials. In 1980, these ratios were 6.1 jury trials per 100 law cases concluded, 7.4 jury trials per 100 felony cases concluded, and 3.6 per 100 misdemeanor cases concluded. In 1981, these measures shifted slightly to 5.8 for law, 8.0 for felony, and 3.3 for concluded misdemeanor cases.

Corresponding to the increase of jury trials, the number of days Virginia Judges spent hearing those trials also increased from 5,433 in 1980 to 5,762 in 1981. Felony proceedings accounted for 49% of the total jury days while civil cases amounted to 43%. Hearing the 747 misdemeanor jury trials occupied 484 days.

Appeals from the general district courts in 1981 numbered 18,064 commenced criminal cases, a decline from the previous year's 18,911. Additionally, there were 2,445 from the juvenile and domestic relations district courts. Thus, a total of 20,509 cases, 14% of the total commenced caseload of 144,580 resulted from cases appealed from lower courts. This is a slight decline from the 1980 figure of 15%.

A reader of this report may directly compare the workload of one court with another or one judge with another. Caution should be used in doing so. No one standard or performance can be fairly applied in such a comparison. Judges are highly trained in law. Few of them come to the bench with any experience or training in the field of administration. It is a tribute to the judges that they are able to manage their courts and dispense justice simultaneously. The fruit of the judicial process is a high quality of justice. That degree of justice cannot be measured but must be maintained. In some particular situations, the following statistics will show a high volume of cases and a relatively long period of time until trial. This is not to criticize judicial ability but merely to highlight those courts in need of assistance or attention in order to maintain a high quality of justice.

Additional summary and detailed caseload information regarding the Virginia Circuit Court System can be found in Appendix C.

DISTRICT COURT SYSTEM

Organization

The District Court System contains two courts within each of the Commonwealth's 32 districts—the General District Court and the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court. There is a chief judge elected by his peers for the General District division and a similar chief judge in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations division. Each chief judge is elected for a two year term and may determine where each judge sits and the time and place the court shall be open for business. The chief judge also has the authority to appoint and remove all personnel for his division within his district.

There are 165 judges in the District Court System who are elected for 6 year terms by the General Assembly. Ninety-nine are general district court judges and 66 are juvenile and domestic relations district court judges. The judge in District 2A serves both divisions of district courts.

There are 208 district court clerk's offices with approximately 885 persons working the state system.

Jurisdiction

Civil Cases: The General District Court decides civil suits involving amounts of money up to $7,000.00 and in attachment cases, $20,000.00. A suit is begun by filing a civil memorandum or motion for judgment with the clerk of the court.

Criminal Cases: The General District Court decides cases in which a person is charged with a misdemeanor. A misdemeanor is any charge which carries a penalty of no more than one year in jail or a fine of up to $1,000 or both.

The General District Courts hold preliminary hearings in felony cases. Any charge which may be punishable by more than one year in jail is called a felony. Preliminary hearings in felony cases are held to determine whether there is evidence sufficient to justify holding the defendant for a grand jury hearing. The grand jury determines whether the accused will be indicted and held for trial by the ciruit court.

The General District Court does not conduct jury trials. All cases are heard by a judge.

Traffic Cases: The General District Court hears cases in which a person is charged with a traffic offense. Most traffic offenses are traffic infractions. (Cases involving awards to individuals for damage in connection with traffic violations are Civil in nature.) If convicted of certain traffic violations the Virginia Division of Motor Vehicles assesses points against drivers' licenses. This is an administrative action by DMV and is in addition to any sentence imposed by the Court.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations Cases: The Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court has exclusive original jurisdiction over all matters and proceedings involving:

—delinquents
—juveniles accused of traffic violations
—children in need of services

—children who have been subjected to abuse or neglect
—adults accused of child abuse or neglect, or of offenses against members of their own family (juvenile or adult)
—adults involved in disputes concerning the support, visitation or custody of a child
—abandonment of children
—foster care and entrustment agreements
—court-ordered rehabilitation services
—court consent for certain medical treatments

In Virginia, a juvenile is any person under 18. A delinquent is a juvenile who has committed an act which would be a crime if committed by an adult. A "child in need of services" (CHINS) is a juvenile who has committed certain actions which, if committed by adults, would not be considered criminal offenses—such as truancy or habitually running away from home. Child abuse and neglect involves the improper care or violent handling of juveniles.

A Profile of the District Courts

Virginia's District Courts reported a total of 2,173,097 new cases, 2,700,986 hearings, 3,187,725 transactions and 2,063,514 dispositions during 1981. These caseload figures are derived from the Uniform Docketing and Caseload Reporting System (UDS), now in its sixth year of operation. The UDS utilizes uniform docketing sheets to provide a consistent method of counting cases in all courts.

The first time the case is placed on the docket it is counted as a new case. On the second and all subsequent hearings the case is counted as a continuance. Each time the case is heard it is counted as a hearing. If the case is dismissed prior to court or the hearing is waived, the docket tear-off sheet is coded as such and a hearing is not counted. In addition, the coding of the tear-off provides more detailed information about the case, such as the type of hearing and whether or not the case received a final disposition.

Any comparison of caseloads between clerks' offices or courts should be approached with caution. Clerks' offices vary widely in size and equipment. Larger offices are able to specialize and may have computer assistance. Smaller offices have one or two clerks who must be "experts" in their field. They are seldom equipped with more than a typewriter and an adding machine. Similar problems occur in attempting to compare judges. Judges who sit in rural districts must often travel to as many as five or six courts. These judges are faced with not only their work on the bench but also the administrative problems of numerous courts. Judges in urban areas, while generally sitting in only one court, must deal with a large number of attorneys and hold court in both the mornings and the afternoons. Because of these differences, courts are grouped as to whether they are urban or rural. The averages and figures given for each district and court provide only a starting point for more detailed comparisons. Case mix is important; some case types are known to take longer than others. The caseload figures contained in this report are primarily used as a planning tool. The figures should not be used in a vacuum with respect to decision making.

General District Courts

Three types of cases are heard by the general district courts: criminal, traffic and civil. During 1981, the courts reported a total of 1,969,921 new cases, 2,319,415 hearings, 2,795,770 transactions and 1,885,552 dispositions. This new caseload reflected an increase of 109,861 cases or 5.9% while civil cases increased by 47,721 cases or 8.3%. Total hearings also reflected an increase of 5.9% with criminal hearings up by 4.8%, traffic by 6.1% and civil by 6.5%. The overall ratio of hearings to new cases in 1981 was 1.17, similar to 1980's figure of 1.18.

The 1980 general district court new caseload composition was 17.0% criminal, 51.5% traffic and 31.5% civil. This distribution showed little change from 1980's distribution of 17.7% criminal 51.5% traffic and 30.8% civil. The composition of hearings was 26.6% criminal, 41.2% traffic and 32.2% civil.

Three districts, the Thirteenth (Richmond), the Fourth (Norfolk) and the Nineteenth (Fairfax/Falls Church) accounted for 26.9% of the state's general district caseload.

Judges of the general district courts each averaged 19,949 new cases and 23,488 hearings. Urban judges averaged 22,732 new cases and 29,245 hearings while rural judges averaged 16,976 new cases and 18,805 hearings.

Criminal: There were 334,881 criminal cases reported in the general district courts in 1981, an increase of 5,579 cases or 1.7% over 1980. Hearings rose 4.8% to total 616,57 The 1981 ratio of 1.84 was slightly higher than the 1.79 reported the previous year. Criminal dispositions showed an increase of 3.3% to reach 323,680 while transactions grew by 5.0% to total 645,402. The dispositions to new caseload ratio of 0.97 indicated that the courts were able to handle the increased caseload. Hearings waived prior to court amounted to 28,829 and were 8.6% of the new caseload.

The courts reported the following breakdown of criminal hearings: 4.6% review progress hearings; 25.6% bond, arraignment and counsel appointment hearings; 7.1% preliminary hearings; 29.9% adjudicatory hearings with testimony; 30.7% adjudicatory hearings without testimony and 1.9% dispositional hearings. This distribution has remained fairly constant since 1976.

The state average criminal caseload per judge for 1981 was 3,391 new cases and 6,244 hearings, an increase from 1980 when there were 3,369 new cases and 6,018 hearings per judge.

Traffic: The general district courts reported 56,561 additional new traffic cases in 1981, an increase of 5.9% from 1980. New cases totaled 1,014,304. The courts also reported 955,735 hearings, 1,313,679 transactions and 975,750 dispositions. The increase in new traffic cases was accompanied by increases in the number of hearings (6.1% or 54,922), transactions (6.5% or 80,475) and dispositions (5.5% or 51,507). Hearings waived numbered 357,944. The ratio of hearings to new cases of 0.94 was indicative of the large number of traffic hearings being waived when compared to the 1977 ratio of 1.14. The ratio of dispositions to new cases of 0.96 was near the 1980 value of 0.97.

A percentage distribution of hearings by type revealed 3.2% review progress hearings; 5.1% bond, arraignment and counsel appointment hearings; 0.1% preliminary hearings; 42.2% hearings with testimony; 46.1% hearings without testimony and 3.3% dispositional hearings.

The state average of traffic cases per judge for 1981 was 10,271 and 9,678 hearings. These measures were higher than the 1980 figures of 9,798 new cases and 9,215 hearings.

Civil: The growth in civil cases from 1980 to 1981, 8.3% or 47,721, slowed significantly from the increase reported last year, 18.9%. New civil cases totaled 620,736 in 1981. There were 747,107 hearings, 586,122 disposition and 836,689 transactions reported by the general district courts for the year, all of which represented significant increases from 1980 of 6.5%, 8.6% and 8.7%, respectively.

The 747,107 hearings were composed of 49.3% with testimony and 50.7% without testimony. There were, in addition, 89,582 hearings waived. The ratio of hearings to new cases of 1.20 was lower than the 1980 ratio of 1.22. The ratio of dispositions to new cases was 0.94, identical to last year's figure.

The majority (534,083 or 63.8%) of civil transactions involved suits in debt. Unlawful detainers numbered 123,695 or 14.8% and garnishments rose to 107,868 or 12.9%.

The state average of new civil cases per judge increased to 6,286 and hearings per judge rose to 7,566.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

In 1981, there were 203,176 new cases, 381,571 hearings, 391,955 transactions and 177,962 dispositions reported by the state's juvenile and domestic relations district courts. This new caseload was the result of a 10.3% increase in adult cases and a 1.0% rise in juvenile cases, which totaled 69,705 and 133,471, respectively.

This increase in new cases was accompanied by a 1.8% growth in hearings, representing 6,769 additional hearings from 1980's figure. While adult hearings increased 7.9%, the number of juvenile hearings actually declined by 3,480 or 1.4%.

Juvenile: There were a total of 133,471 new juvenile cases reported in 1981, with 240,792 hearings, 248,991 transactions and 120,474 dispositions. Juvenile cases comprised 65.7% of the total court caseload, a decline from 1980's distribution of 67.6% and also that of 1979, 70.4%.

Juvenile hearings were distributed as 6.9% review progress hearings; 15.5% bond, detention and counsel appointment hearings; 2.2% transfer hearings; 44.1% adjudicatory hearings with testimony; 16.0% adjudicatory hearings without testimony and 15.3% dispositional hearings. Adjudicatory hearings thus accounted for 60.1% of all juvenile hearings while pre- and post-trial hearings accounted for the remaining 39.9%. The ratio of hearings to new cases was 1.80, slightly below the 1.85 and 1.87 reported in 1980 and 1979, respectively.

Of the 248,991 juvenile transactions reported in 1981, 120,309 (48.3%) were criminal in nature and 59,103 (23.7%) involved traffic infractions. The percentage of status and custody hearings were 4.8% and 23.2%, respectively. All types of juvenile transactions experienced a decline in comparison with 1980 data.

Adult: The adult new caseload increased by a significant 10.3% to reach 69,705 accompanied by a 7.9%, rise in hearings to total 140,779. The distribution by type of hearing was 17.9% review progress; 15.3% bond, arraignment and counsel appointment hearings; 2.7% preliminary hearings; 39.7% adjudicatory hearings with testimony; 18.5% adjudicatory hearings without testimony and 5.9% dispositional hearings. Thus 58.2% of the adult hearings involved adjudication of cases while 41.8% involved pre- and post-trial hearings. The ratio of adult hearings to new cases of 2.02 compares to 2.07 in 1980. A total of 2,185 adult hearings were waived in 1981. The distribution of adult transactions was 48.7% criminal hearings and 51.3% non-support hearings.

Additional summary and detailed caseload information regarding the Virginia District Court System can be found in Appendix C. Appendix A lists the names and terms of the judges in the District Court system. Appendix B contains charts and tables relating to the number of authorized clerks and salary classifications.

MAGISTRATE SYSTEM

Organization

There are 28 Chief Magistrates and approximately 408 magistrates in the Virginia Magistrate System. On July 1, 1982 four Chief Special Magistrates and approximately 50 special magistrates will also join the state system. Previously these magistrates were employed by their respective localities.

Magistrates are appointed for a four year term by the Chief Circuit Court Judge, however they must pass a certification examination at the Supreme Court within the first 6 months of the term. If a magistrate fails the certification examination their appointment is terminated at the end of 6 months.

Functions

One of the principle functions of the magistrates in the Commonwealth is to provide an independent, unbiased review of police officers, sheriffs, deputies and citizens' complaints. These complaints must supply the magistrate with facts sufficient to enable the magistrate to determine whether there is probable cause to believe that an offense has been committed and the person to be arrested committed the offense. After probable cause has been established, magistrates are given the authority to issue arrest warrants. The magistrate may issue a summons in lieu of an arrest warrant when there is reason to believe that the accused, charged with any misdemeanor, will appear in court for trial. Magistrates may issue search warrants, again based upon probable cause. These tasks are difficult, requiring responsible deliberation on the part of the magistrate.

Among the chief duties of the magistrate is conducting bond hearings to set bail. When a magistrate has brought before him any person held in custody and charged with an offense not punishable by death, the magistrate shall consider the release of the accused upon:

1. the accused's written promise to appear in court;
2. the execution of an unsecured appearance bond (personal recognizance) in an amount specified by the magistrate.

In determining whether or not to release the accused upon his written promise to appear or an unsecured bond, the magistrate must take into consideration such factors as nature of the offense, family ties, employment, length of residence in the community, record of convictions, records of past appearances in court or failure to appear at court proceedings and any other information available which is relevant to the determination of whether the accused is likely to absent himself from court proceedings. Should the magistrate determine that a release upon a written promise to appear or an unsecured bond will not reasonably assure the appearance of the accused, the magistrate may impose one or more of the following conditions:

1. place the accused in the custody of a designated person or organization agreeing to supervise him;
2. place restrictions on the travel, association or place of abode of the accused during the period of release;
3. require the execution of a bail bond with sufficient solvent sureties (real estate bond or professional bonding company) or the deposit of cash in lieu thereof;
4. impose any other conditions deemed reasonably necessary to assure appearance as required and to assure good behavior pending trial, including a condition that the person return to custody after specific hours.

In determining the amount of the bond, the magistrate must exercise good sound discretion remembering that the accused has a right to reasonable bail. As part of the bail process, the magistrate is also given the authority to issue committal and release orders. Additionally, many magistrates in the Commonwealth currently issue civil warrants and subpoenas. They may also accept guilty pleas and prepayments of traffic infractions and Class IV misdemeanors.

A magistrate may also issue a temporary detention order for a mentally ill patient in need of hospitalization if the patient cannot be conveniently brought before a judge.

Profile of the Magistrate System

At the close of 1981 there were four hundred and eight authorized magistrate positions within the Magistrate System. This was consistent with the number of positions that existed in 1980. Two hundred and forty-six of these positions, or 60.3%, were considered full-time. These are positions classified as Magistrate IV or above. Of the full-time magistrates, 93 were classified Magistrate IV, 33 were Magistrate V, 90 were Magistrate VI, 2 were Administrative Magistrate, and the remaining 28 were Chief Magistrates. The 162 part-time positions were evenly divided among the first three classifications as 46 Magistrate I's, 65 Magistrate II's, and 51 Magistrate III's.

During 1981 the state magistrates reported being available or "on-call" 1,370,272 hours. This reflected a slight decrease from the 1,377,890 hours reported in 1980. The magistrates utilized 521,637 activity hours in providing magistrate services to the public. Activity hours represented the actual time used to evaluate requests for processes, answer questions, issue processes, and handle other required activities. The total number of activity hours in 1981 was slightly less than the previous year's 531,810 hours.

Since many of the magistrates work "on call," they report the number of miles driven to and from the magistrate office above the first trip per day. Chief magistrates assigned to each district must travel in order to supervise and train their magistrates. This mileage was also reported. During 1981, the magistrates reported traveling 693,519 miles in the performance of their duties, a decline of 5% from 1980. This figure becomes increasingly important in light of soaring fuel costs and will effect future budgeting considerations.

The public demand for magistrate services is best represented by the number of transactions or requests for processes along with the number of incoming phone calls and in-person inquiries. In 1981, magistrates reported a total of 1,201,517 requests for processes, 567,367 phone calls, and 213,496 inquiries. Thus the 408 magistrates responded to nearly two million requests for information or service. Transactions were down in 1981, 4% or 48,475 fewer requests for processes. Incoming calls and in-person inquiries were also down, 3% and 6%, respectively.

Processes which a magistrate may issue include arrest warrants, summonses, bonds, search warrants, subpoenas, mental detention orders, civil warrants, committals, and releases. They may also collect prepayments for minor traffic infractions and some Class IV misdemeanors. During 1981, the magistrates issued 987,073 processes (including prepayments). This total figure represented a decrease of 51,772 processes issued or 5%.

There were 375,215 requests for arrest warrants in 1981, 2% fewer than the previous year. Magistrates issued 293,525 arrest warrants along with 30,333 summonses. Thus 86% of the warrants requested were issued by Virginia magistrates. This percentage was consistent with the percentage issued in 1980. Of those arrest warrants issued, 41,733 or 14% were felony warrants while 251,792 or 86% were misdemeanor. The number of summonses issued, 30,333, inceased 1% from 1980's 30,038. Arrest warrants accounted for 29.7% of all processes issued.

Virginia's magistrates reported a total of 333,874 bond transactions in 1981. Of these, 185,359 bonds were processed. When compared with 1980, transactions decreased 4% while actual bonds processed were down 9% correspondingly. Of the total number of bonds processed, 22,824 were felony bonds and 162,535 were misdemeanor. This breakdown of 12% felony and 88% misdemeanor has remained consistent during the past several years. Of the 185,359 bonds processed, 57% were unsecured while the remaining 43% were secured. These figures represented a shift toward the unsecured bond when compared with 1980's 53% unsecured and 47% secured. Of the 22,824 felony bonds, 31% of the defendants were released without security. Of those persons accused of misdemeanors, 61% or 99,453, were released on personal recognizance or promise to appear. Bonds composed 18.8% of total processes in 1981 which was less than the 1980 percentage of 19.5%. When combined with arrest warrants, these two types of processes accounted for 48.9% of those issued. In addition, there were 22,738 prepayments of traffic fines and costs, down from the 23,339 reported in 1980. Class IV misdemeanor prepayments to magistrates fell significantly, from 14,840 in 1980 to 11,249 in 1981.

A total of 5,541 search warrants were issued by the magistrates in 1981. This represented a significant decrease of 24% over the 7,238 issued in 1980. In 1981, committal and release orders again made up a significant percentage of the magistrates' workload, 23%. Committals numbered 125,638 and release orders were 103,433 in 1981.

During the past year, the magistrates issued 38,567 subpoenas, compared to the 37,397 issued in 1980. During 1981, magistrates issued 169,558 civil warrants. Beginning in July, 1981, the magistrates issued 1,132 mental detention orders.

Appendix B contains charts and tables relating to the number of authorized magistrates and salary classifications. Appendix C details magistrate activity by individual magistrate, locality and district.

Note: Magistrates work as either "shift" or "availability" magistrates. The large urban areas generally utilize full-time magistrates who work on a shift basis to maintain an office twenty-four hours a day. In contrast, the majority of rural magistrates work on an availability basis and are contacted as needed. In some counties availability magistrates serve a fixed schedule during the day and serve on an "on call" basis at night.

JUDICIAL POLICY-MAKING BODIES
THE JUDICIAL COUNCIL

Established in 1930, the Judicial Council is charged with the responsibility for making a continuous study of the organization, rules, and methods of procedure and practice of the judicial system of the Commonwealth. It is responsible also for examining the work accomplished and results produced by the system and its individual offices and courts. A report of the proceedings and recommendations of the Council is made to the General Assembly and to the Supreme Court on an annual basis.

The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court is presiding officer for the Council whose membership includes five circuit court judges, one general district court judge, one juvenile and domestic relations district court judge, two attorneys qualified to practice in the Supreme Court and the Chairman of the Committees for Courts of Justice in the Senate and House of Delegates. Council members are appointed by the Chief Justice and serve for four years, or during his pleasure.

The Council is charged with the obligation to study the need for additional circuit court judges. In 1975, procedures for determining the need for additional circuit court judges and for changes in circuit lines were altered by the Council. Prior to this change, cases commenced and population were the primary guidelines. Recognizing the inadequacies of total reliance on these criteria, the Council adopted a dual analysis mechanism.

As the administrative office for the judicial system, the Office of the Executive Secretary was advised that in addition to providing a thorough statistical evaluation of the judicial workload, visits should be conducted to each circuit requesting an additional judge. Court dockets should be reviewed and judges, clerks, commonwealth attorneys, members of the bar, and other such individuals having a knowledge of the court system in that circuit should be interviewed. The Council concluded that additional judges should be authorized in a circuit whenever all procedures short of adding a judge should be exhausted; whenever the administrative efficiency of the court was at a high level; and whenever the existing judges were working to maximum capacity and yet were still unable to handle the caseload in the expeditious fashion desired by the bar and general public. The only way to assure the sound, effective and speedy administration of justice was to insure that sufficient judicial resources were available.

The Judicial Conference of Virginia

The Judicial Conference of Virginia was organized to discuss and consider means and methods of improving the administration of justice in the Commonwealth. Active members include the Chief Justice and Justices of the Supreme Court of Virginia, all other judges or circuit courts and all retired justices and judges of such courts. There is also an honorary membership consisting of the Attorney General, the Chairman of the Courts of Justice Committees of the Senate and House of Delegates, the pesidents and secretries of the Virginia State Bar and the Virginia Bar Association, the deans of the law departments of the College of William and Mary, University of Richmond, University of Virginia, Washington and Lee University and George Mason University, and the four attorney appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court as members of the Judicial Conference. The Chief Justice serves as president of the Judicial Conference. Six circuit court judges are elected to serve on the Conference's executive committee.

Specifically, the duties and responsibilities of the Conference include the following:

- — Advising and cooperating with the Supreme Court of Virginia in the improvement of practice and procedure in the courts of the Commonwealth;
- — Reporting to the General Assembly such findings and recommendations as the Conference may adopt;
- — Compiling, studying, discussing and disseminating to its members information of interest to the judiciary;
- — Planning continuing judicial educational programs;
- — Advising and cooperating with the bar associations, law schools and other groups and projects designed to improve the administration of justice; and
- — Gathering, studying and disseminating information relating to the public, press, educational institutions and such other organizations as may be interested in the work and functions of the courts.

Much of the work of the Judicial Conference is accomplished through its nine permanent committees whose members are appointed by the Chief Justice with the advice of the executive committee. Standing committees and their responsibilities are as follows:

1. Nominations, Resolutions, and Memorials
   To consider, evaluate and make recommendations regarding resolutions; nominate members of the Executive Committee; and prepare appropriate memorials.
2. Judicial Education
   To plan the educational content of Judicial Conference meetings and specialized programs of interest to the judiciary, and to assist in the orientation of new judges.
3. Judicial Administration
   To consider means and methods of improving the administrative functions of the Courts; attain greater uniformity in procedures and efficiency; and study the effective management of Court calendars.
4. Law Revision
   To consider and propose changes in statutes and rules of practice and procedure affecting the Courts, and to study proposed legislation and rules designed to improve the administration of justice, and to advise the members.
5. Information and Public Relations
   To explain and interpret matters concerning the law, the legal system, and the administration of justice to the public; and disseminate information on the functions of the the Courts.

6. Judicial Conduct

   To distribute to members information relating to judicial conduct and to consider inquiries concerning the propriety of judicial conduct.
7. Judicial Compensation, Retirement and Insurance

   To consider programs affecting benefits consistent with judicial responsibility; and consider proposed changes.
8. Probation, Parole and Corrections

   To study and consider improvements in probation, parole and corrections as they affect the Courts.
9. Sentencing

   To study and consider methods of improving the sentencing process.

The Committee on District Courts

The General Assembly created the Committee on District Courts in 1972 to assist the Chief Justice in the administrative supervision of Virginia's unified court system. Nine members including the Chairmen of the Committees for Courts of Justice in the Senate and House of Delegates, two members of each of the Courts of Justice Committees appointed by the respective chairman, a Circuit Court Judge, General District Court Judge and a Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court Judge, are appointed by and serve at the pleasure of the Chief Justice.

Areas of Responsibility

By statute, the Committee on District Courts has been given the responsibility for fulfilling the following duties:

—Reporting annually to the General Assembly on the number of judges needed and the district for which they should be authorized.
—Certifying that the filling of a vacancy occurring in the office of any judge of any district is or is not necessary.
—Authorizing the appointment of substitute judges.
—Authorizing the establishment of district court clerks' offices.
—Fixing salary classification schedules for court personnel.
—Establishing vacation and sick leave policies for district court judges.
—Establishing a sick leave policy for district court personnel and full-time magistrates.
—Establishing guidelines and determining the necessity for the employment of substitute judges, clerks, deputy clerks and all other personnel of the district courts and authorizing the employment of such personnel.
—Authorizing the appointment of personnel to serve one or more district courts within any district.
—Authorizing clerk and deputy clerks of the circuit court of a political subdivision to serve as clerk and deputy clerk of one or more district courts within the political subdivision.
—Authorizing the number of magistrates in each district.
—Authorizing the appointment of substitute magistrates.
—Fixing annual salaries of magistrates.
—Performing such other duties as may be conferred by law and necessary for the effective administration of justice.

A list of members appears on the following page.

Judicial Conference of Virginia for District Courts

The Judicial Conference of Virginia for Courts Not of Record has similar responsibilities for the district court system as has the Judicial Conference of Virginia for the circuit courts. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court also serves as president of this Conference. Membership includes all active judges of the general district and juvenile and domestic relations district courts. Honorary members are the Attorney General, Chairman of the Courts of Justice Committees of the Senate and House of Delegates, the president and secretary of the Virginia State Bar and the president and secretary of the Virginia Bar Association. Seven district court judges are elected by the Conference to serve on the Executive Committee. The 1981 General Assembly added the presidents and secretaries of the Virginia Trial Lawyers Association and the Virginia Association of Defense Attorneys to the honorary membership of this Conference.

The Conference meets at least once a year to consider means of improving the administration of justice in Virginia. The Conference's committee structure is similar in duties and responsibilities of those of the Judicial Conference of Virginia. A list of the committees and their membership follows the membership listing of the Committee on District Courts.

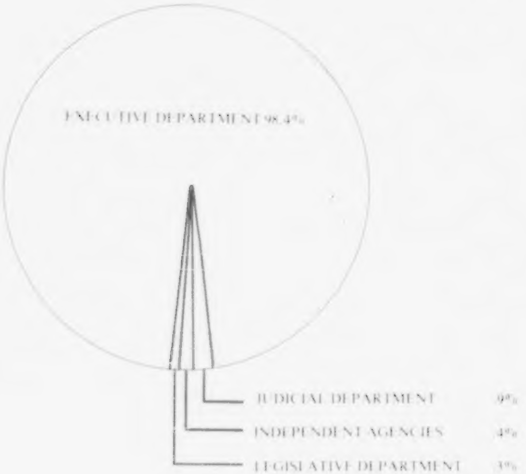
JUDICIAL REVENUE AND EXPENDITURES

For the 1980-82 biennium, judicial system appropriations have been set at $117,219,060, approximately 1% of the State's operating expense appropriations.

COMPARISON OF OPERATING EXPENSE
APPROPRIATIONS

JULY 1, 1980-JUNE 30, 1982



During fiscal year 1980-81, adjusted appropriations for the judicial system's operating expenses were $53,439,000. As of January, 1981, adjusted appropriations for the 1981-82 fiscal year amounted to $57,104,460. An additional appropriation totaling $6,675,600 was authorized for the last year of the biennium to cover dramatically increasing expenses within the Criminal Fund and Involuntary Mental Commitment Fund.

The Supreme Court's Office of the Executive Secretary maintains accounting records both for the appropriations and expenditures of the Supreme Court, Circuit Courts, District Courts and Magistrate System. Between July 1, 1980, and June 30, 1981, the judicial system spent $53,224,969. Supreme Court expenditures which included $198,914 in costs associated with moving into the new court building, totaled $3,529,958. Circuit Court expenditures were $14,136,750; District Court expenditures were $30,963,299; and, the expenditures charged to the Magistrate System totaled $4,595,162.

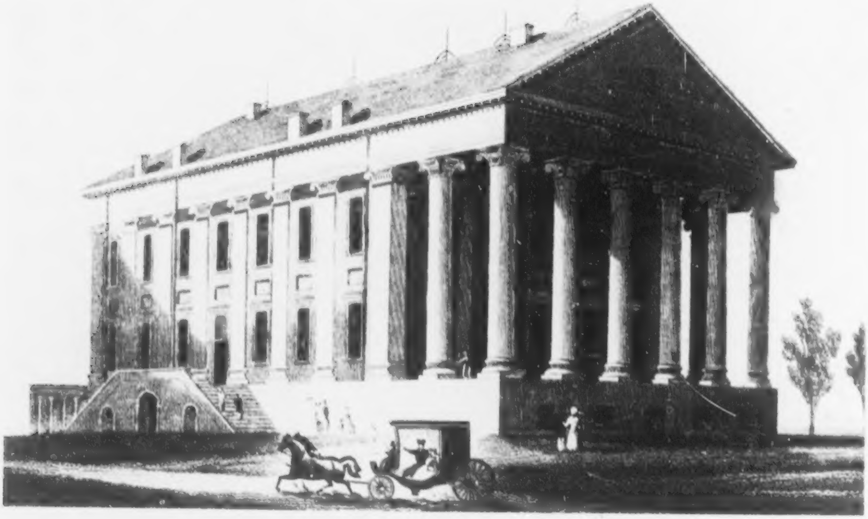
The majority of these expenditures were for personal services, compensation to court appointed attorneys and other court costs and allowances (Criminal Fund), and Involuntary Mental Commitments. Salaries, wages and fringe benefits cost $36,939,390 (69.4%); Criminal Fund and Involuntary Mental Commitment expenses cost $13,711,208 (25.8%), and other expenses such as travel, postage and supplies cost $2,574,371 (4.8%).

District Court and Magistrate System revenues are deposited to the credit of the Commonwealth or forwarded to local Treasurers for use by localities. The recipient is determined by the statutory provisions which apply to the particular type of revenue. In Fiscal Year 1980-81, revenues collected for the Commonwealth amounted to $30,757,122—a ratio of 1.15 of expenditures to revenue. The total local revenue collected in the same year came to $11,492,364 making the grand total $42,249,486. Of this total, fines and forfeitures were $21,812,127 (51.63%), trial fees $14,047,240 (33.25%), and other collections, e.g., filing fees, weighing fees, liquidated damages fees, were $6,390,119 (15.12%).

It should be noted that, effective July 1, 1980, the Code of Virginia (Sec. 16.1-69.48) was amended to delete the requirement that certain localities be paid trial fees collected within their jurisdictions. The same amendment repealed Sec. 16.1-69.49 of the Code. This change deleted the requirement that localities make payments, known as "Local Payments", to the Commonwealth. As a result, all trial fees now appear as Commonwealth revenues and the "Local Payments" section no longer appears in this report.

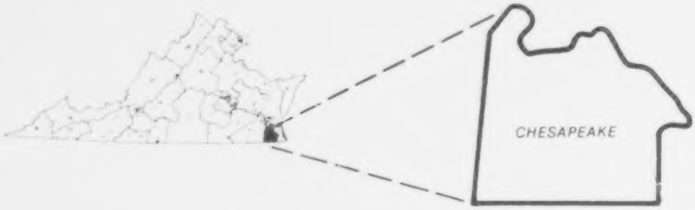
More detailed information regarding revenues and expenditures of the judicial system appear in Appendix D.

CASELOAD ANALYSIS: BY CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



Capitol, Richmond
Occupied by Court 1789-1847; 1866-1870

FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The First Judicial Circuit serves the city of Chesapeake. According to the 1980 Census, the population of the circuit was 114, 486. This represents a 27% increase from the 1970 listing of 89,850 and nearly twice the 1960 population.

During 1981 the area was authorized two circuit judgeships and was served by William L. Forbes and William H. Hodges. The population per circuit court judge of 57,243 was nearly 21% higher than the state average of 47,317 and ranked the First Circuit seventh highest among the state's thirty-one circuits in this measure.

The commenced caseload for 1981 of 2,558 represented an increase of 74 cases from 1980. This rise was a result of a combined increase of 31 criminal and 43 civil commenced cases. The commenced caseload per judge for the First and the state average were identical at 1,279.

The caseload composition for 1981 was 30% law, 37% equity, 19% felony and 14% misdemeanor, a composition showing little change from 1980. Civil cases continued to be high relative to the state distribution of 21% law and 34% equity. However, the criminal distribution fell below the state average of 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor.

There were 2,449 cases concluded within the circuit during the year compared to 2,544 in 1980. This represents a decrease of 56 civil and 39 concluded criminal cases.

The number of jury trials decreased slightly from 109 to 105. Correspondingly, there were 53 jury trials per judge compared to the state average of 50. The judges of the First Circuit spent 155 days hearing these cases which were 65% in criminal and 35% in civil.

Nearly 45% of the 634 law cases assigned trial dates during the year were given dates more than 90 days ahead. There were 1,172 criminal cases assigned dates 57% of which could not be heard during the present term. Of the 667 cases assigned past present term, 76% were felonies and 24% misdemeanors.

A total of 717 cases, or 43% of the total of 1,163 concluded civil cases were concluded within one year. Of the 786 concluded criminal cases, 671 or 85% were concluded within five months of filing.

Two general district court judgeships were authorized for the First Judicial District during 1981. These were filled by Charles B. Cross, Jr. and Russell I. Townsend. Two juvenile and domestic relations district court judges, E. P. Grissom and James A. Leftwich, were also authorized to serve in the district. Judge Leftwich was also designated to assist the Fifth Judicial District during the year. There were 77.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days used by the judges during the year, or 19.4 per judge. This was below the state figure of 26.6.

The year witnessed an increase of 658 or 2% in the general district new caseload from 1980's 33,811 to 34,469 cases. Interestingly, hearings declined by 350, a .7% drop, from 1980 for a total of 47,583. This represents a hearing per case ratio of 1.38 compared to the state average of 1.18.

The number of general district cases showed significant change during the year. Civil cases declined by 1,249 or 10% from 1980's 12,191 for a total of 11,942 while the number of traffic cases increased by 1,435 or 11% for a total of 15,000. Criminal cases rose by 7% from the previous year's total of 7,055 for a 1981 total of 7,527. The decline in new civil cases was accompanied by a 14% decline in hearings, totalling 12,150; similarly, the rise in traffic cases resulted in an 8% rise in traffic hearings which totalled 18,262. Criminal hearings showed a 2% increase for a yearly total of 17,171.

The two general district judges averaged 17,235 new cases and 23,792 hearings each during 1981 which ranked the district 22nd in the state for new cases heard per judge, below the urban mean of 22,732 and below the urban measure of 29,245 hearings per judge.

The general district caseload composition for 1981 reflected 22% criminal, 44% traffic, and 34% civil cases. The district continued to have a slightly higher proportion of civil and criminal cases and a lower proportion of traffic cases when compared to the average state general district caseload composition of 17% criminal, 51% traffic, and 32% civil.

There were 4,593 new cases reported in 1981 by the juvenile and domestic relations district court, accompanied by 11,723 hearings. This represents a 10% rise in new cases from 1980 and a 6% increase in total hearings. Juvenile cases rose 5% while adult cases increased by 19%. The 1981 caseload was composed of 40% adult and 60% juvenile cases compared to the state average of 34% adult and 66% juvenile. Hearings per cases showed a decline from 1980 and was calculated at 2.55. The 1981 state ratio was 1.88 hearings per case.

Chesapeake's two judges (with Judge Leftwich equivalent to .7) averaged 2,702 new cases and 6,896 hearings. This ranked the district ninth out of the fourteen urban districts in regards to the case per judge ratio. The 1981 urban mean was 3,321 new cases and 6,353 hearings per judge.

The First District was authorized nine magistrates, including a chief magistrate during 1981. They reported a total of 14,349 hours of duty and received 28,634 requests for processes, 14,407 phone calls and 3,475 in-person inquiries. Transactions were down 6.7% from the 30,776 reported in 1980. During 1981 the magistrates issued 24,352 processes, also a decline from the previous year. Of the 8,009 requests for arrest warrants, 6,808 were issued. Arrest warrants accounted for 28% of all issued processes.

The magistrates of the First reported 8,913 bond transactions. Of the total processes, (5,858), 13% were felony bonds and 87% were misdemeanor bonds. Fifty-eight percent of all bonds were secured. Of the 3,410 secured bonds, 83% were for misdemeanors.

A total of 88 search warrants and 9,003 civil warrants were also issued during 1981. Committal and release orders numbered 1,303 and 775, respectively.

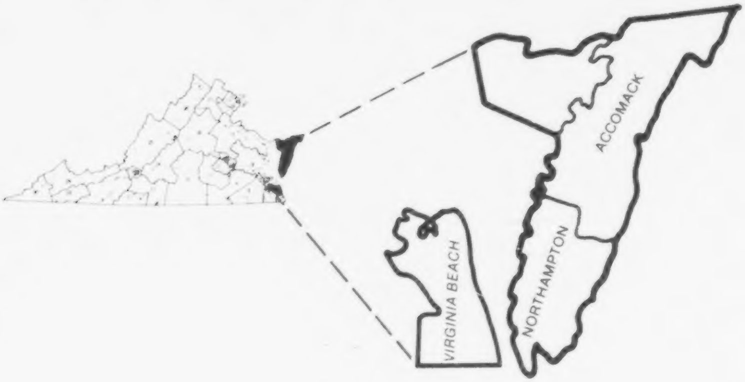
SECOND JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Second Judicial Circuit is made up of the Eastern Shore counties of Accomack and Northampton and the city of Virginia Beach. The 1980 Census reports a population for the entire circuit of 308,092 which represents a 43% increase since 1970. During this period Virginia Beach has shown a growth in population of 52% while the Eastern Shore counties of the circuit have grown by 6%.

During 1981 the Second Circuit was authorized seven judgeships and was served by Bernard G. Barrow, N. Wescott Jacob, Henry L. Lam, Austin E. Owen, Philip L. Russo, George W. Vakos, and Kenneth N. Whitehurst. The population per judge of 44,013 ranks the Second twenty-third in the state and below the state mean of 47,317.

There were 8,077 cases commenced during 1981, an increase of 251 from 1980. This growth was the result of an additional 241 commenced civil and 10 criminal cases. The Second Circuit commenced cases per judge was 1,152 compared to the state average of 1,279. The circuit ranked twenty-first among the 31 circuits for this measure.

The 1981 new caseload consisted of 22% law, 38% equity, 20% felony, and 20% misdemeanor; totaling 60% civil and 40% criminal. State figures were 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony, and 16% misdemeanor; totaling 56% civil and 44% criminal.

A total of 8,068 cases were concluded during 1981, 88% of which were concluded in the city of Virginia Beach. Having experienced a 6% general rise over 1980, concluded cases consisted of 58% civil and 42% criminal.

Jury trials increased 7% to 178 and occupied 255 days of judges' service. Each judge averaged 36 jury trial days compared to the state average of 50.

Of the 1,734 civil cases assigned trial dates, 622 or 36% were set more than 90 days ahead. With criminal cases, 2,708 or 44% of the 6,198 assigned were not given trial dates in the present term. The age of concluded cases shows that 44% of the 4,698 civil cases were disposed of within 12 months of filing and 67% of the 3,370 concluded criminal cases were terminated within five months.

The city of Virginia Beach comprises the Second Judicial District and is authorized three general district court judgeships. Serving during 1981 were Constantine A. Spanoulis, John B. Preston, Robert L. Simpson, and H. Calvin Spain. Judge Simpson has announced his retirement effective July 1, 1982, when R. Stanley Hudgins will assume the seat. Judge Spain replaced Judge Constantine Spanoulis who retired on July 31, 1981. Three juvenile and domestic relations district court judges served the Second as well. These included Fred P. Aucamp, John K. Moore, and J. Davis Reed. The judges of the district used 188 substitute and recalled retired judge days during the year for an average of 31.4 per judge, somewhat higher than the state average of 26.6.

There were 90,990 new cases and 104,061 hearings in the district representing increases of 14% and 10% respectively from 1980. The greatest increase occurred in the number of traffic cases which rose 19% to 51,647 comprising 57% of the total caseload. Criminal cases rose 9% to 17,872 and civil cases increased 8% to 21,471.

The judges averaged 30,330 new cases and 34,687 hearings compared to the urban average of 22,732 and 29,245, respectively. The hearings per case ratio of 1.14 was below the urban measure of 1.29.

The juvenile and domestic relations district court reported 14,357 new cases, an increase of 6% from 1980 while the number of hearings rose 2% to 23,252. Adult cases constituted a majority of the increase rising 19% compared to an increase of 2% in juvenile cases. Adult cases numbered 3,818 or 27% of total caseload and juvenile cases reported were 10,539 for 73%. Average state caseload composition was 34% adult and 66% juvenile.

With 4,786 cases per judge, the district ranked second among the state districts and well above the urban mean of 3,321. The hearings per case ratio was 1.62, below both urban mean (1.92) and state mean (1.88).

The Second District was authorized sixteen magistrates during the year. They received 34,909 telephone calls and 9,401 in-person inquiries during their 25,663 hours of activity. The magistrates handled 62,571 requests for processes, a 7% increase over 1980. Issued processes for the year totaled 57,950, of which 26% or 15,236 were for civil warrants.

Requests for arrest warrants were reported as 18,107, with 96% being issued. Statewide, arrest warrants were issued for 86% of the requests. Forty percent of the 7,029 bonds issued were secured. Of those secured, 25% were for felonies. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 9.5 per ten requests. Committals and releases numbered 5,180 and 3,921, respectively.

District 2A is composed of Accomack and Northampton Counties. The district was served by one judge fulfilling both general and juvenile and domestic relations needs. Wescott B. Northam served during 1981. Only 5.5 substitute days were used during the year.

The district reported 15,256 new cases and 11,660 hearings. Of the new cases, 13% were criminal, 52% traffic, and 35% civil. Both traffic and civil cases showed increases of 7% and 28% respectively while criminal cases declined by 5%. Within the district, Accomack County accounted for most of the increase in traffic and civil cases; for example, the county's increase in civil cases constituted 85% of the total district growth and 72% of the total traffic caseload. Accomack's total caseload increased 17% compared to Northampton's rise of 1%.

The composition of the 1981 caseload was 13% criminal, 52% traffic, and 34% civil, very similar to state averages of 17% criminal, 51% traffic, and 32% civil. The caseload per judge (with Judge Northam as a 0.75 FTE judge) was 20,341 compared to the state mean of 19,949, ranking the district eleventh in the state; this measure also exceeded the rural mean, 16,976. Hearings per judge (15,547) and per case (0.76) were both lower than rural means of 18,805 and 1.11 respectively.

There were 1,078 juvenile and domestic relations cases (an increase of 15%) and 1,428 hearings (an increase of 9%) reported during 1981. The greatest growth in new cases occurred in juvenile cases which rose 24% to 735 cases to constitute 68% of the total caseload. Adult cases increased only by .3%, a change of 1 case to constitute 32% of the caseload.

Within the district, Accomack's juvenile and domestic relations caseload increased 18% compared to Northampton's 11% rise; total caseloads were 725 and 353 respectively. Accomack showed a 34% increase in juvenile cases and a 10% decline in adult cases while Northampton showed a 5% increase in juvenile and a 20% increase in adult cases.

Judge Northam (as a 0.25 FTE judge) heard 4,312 cases, ranking the district 3rd in the state above the mean of 3,067 and well above the rural mean of 2,804. The hearings per case ratio stood at 1.32 for the year.

Four magistrates were authorized to serve District 2A. During the 3,175 hours of activity, the magistrates reported driving 4,798 miles, receiving 5,208 telephone calls and handling 4,505 requests for processes. Of these requests, 83% or 3,719 resulted in a process being issued.

Arrest warrants were issued for 91% of the 2,030 requests and included 373 for felonies, 1,428 for misdemeanors and 43 for summonses. Bond requests totaled 1,322 of which 470 unsecured and 269 secured bonds were issued. Eighty-one percent of the secured bonds were for misdemeanors. The magistrates issued 28 search warrants and 102 civil warrants during the year. Committals and releases numbered 550 and 266, respectively.

THIRD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

PORTSMOUTH

The city of Portsmouth comprises the Third Judicial Circuit. The 1980 population according to the 1980 Census was 104,577. This figure represents a 6% decline in population since 1970 and a 17% decline since 1960 when the city had 121,973 citizens.

Three circuit court judgeships were authorized during 1981. Serving were Dennis F. McMurran, William H. Oast, Jr., and Lester E. Schlitz. Judge McMurran replaced Judge R. Winter Bain who retired on January 31, 1981. The population per judge was 34,859 which ranks the circuit twenty-sixth in the state.

In 1981, 4,241 cases were commenced, increasing by 4% or 143 over 1980. The number of civil cases increased only 0.3% while criminal cases commenced grew by 6% to reach 2,474. The growth in the number of criminal cases was due to a 25% increase in misdemeanor cases (reaching 1,242) and a 13% increase in felony cases (reaching 1,231). There were 1,414 cases per judge in the Third giving it a rank of eighth in the state and a measure above both state and urban means of 1,279 and 1,292 respectively.

The caseload composition showed 21% law, 21% equity (or 42% in civil), 29% felony, and 29% misdemeanor (or 58% in criminal) cases. State figures were 21% law, 34% equity, 28% felony, and 16 % misdemeanor.

The number of concluded cases grew by 707 or 18% to reach 4,639. Concluded civil cases rose by 20% while criminal cases increased 16%. The greatest change in civil cases was a 31% growth in equity cases which increased from 799 to 1,049. Criminal cases grew the greatest in the number of misdemeanors which increased 27% to 1,117 cases. Law cases grew by 11%, felony cases by 9% during the year.

Of the 292 jury trials, 83 (28%) were civil and 209 (72%) were criminal. These cases required 197 days with criminal cases occupying 61% of this time. The judges of the circuit averaged 97 jury trials each, nearly twice the state mean of 50. The measure of jury trials per judge was the highest throughout the state. Of the 2,296 criminal cases assigned trial dates, 1,117 or 49% were not scheduled during the present term. The age of concluded cases shows that 42% (907) of the 2,156 civil cases terminated were disposed of within one year. Nearly 93% (2,297) of the 2,483 criminal cases terminated were cleared within five months of their filing date.

The district was authorized three general district judgeships. Archie Elliott, Jr., Stanley L. Morris, and Donald H. Sandie served the district. Judge Sandie has announced his retirement effective July 1, 1982, when James A. Cales, Jr. will take the bench. Two juvenile and domestic relations district court judges were authorized also during 1981. Serving were Cecil W. Johnson and Von L. Piersall, Jr. A total of 43.3 substitute and recalled retired judge days were used during 1981. The per judge ratio of 8.7 days of assistance was well below the state average of 26.6 days.

The district reported 48,825 new cases and 61,259 hearings. This caseload was 4% greater than 1980's increasing by 1,663 cases. The greatest growth in commenced cases occurred in traffic which rose 9% (1,605) to 20,403. The number of civil cases rose 5% while criminal cases declined 8% from 10,411 to 9,598. A corresponding 13% growth in traffic hearings occurred accompanied by a decline of 3% in the number of criminal hearings and a decrease of 5% in civil hearings.

Caseload composition showed a distribution of 20% criminal, 42% traffic, and 38% civil cases. State averages were 17% criminal, 51% traffic, and 32% civil. Cases per judge was calculated to be 16,275, twenty-third highest in the state and below both state and urban averages of 19,949 and 22,732, respectively. The judges each held on an average 20,420 hearings, well below the urban average of 29,245. Hearings per case equaled 1.25 compared to an urban mean of 1.29.

An increase of 629 cases or 18% occurred in new juvenile and domestic relations cases reaching 4,062. Hearings increased by 1% to 10,725. Adult cases showed a 47% increase, 632 additional cases being reported in 1981; juvenile cases decreased by only 3. Of the new cases, 51% were juvenile and 49% were adult compared to state figures of 66% and 34%, respectively.

Cases per judge stood at 2,031 ranking the district thirteenth among the 14 urban districts and below the urban mean of 3,321. There were 5,363 hearings per judge (urban mean—6,353) and a hearings per case ratio of 2.64 (urban mean—1.92).

The Third District was authorized six magistrates during 1981. The magistrates reported a total of 10,849 duty hours during which they received 34,270 requests for processes, 16,974 telephone calls and 7,386 in-person inquiries. Transactions declined sharply, 28%, in comparison to the 47,450 reported in 1980. The magistrates of the Third issued 25,998 processes, a 40% decline, during 1981.

Of the 9,692 requests for arrest warrants, 86% were issued by the magistrates. Statewide, 86% of all requests for arrest warrants were processed as well.

Bond transactions numbered 12,179. Of the total processed, 94% or 5,255 were for misdemeanors. Fifty-six percent of all bond processes were secured. Of the secured bonds, 92% were for misdemeanors.

Civil warrants, 5,486, accounted for 21% of all processes issued. During 1981, committal and release orders number, respectively, 3,491 and 1,674.

FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

The only jurisdiction in the Fourth Judicial Circuit is the City of Norfolk. The city's 1980 census population (266,979) shows a 13% decline since 1970. The circuit was authorized nine judgeships for 1981. Those serving were Joseph E. Baker, William Moultrie Guerry, Morris B. Gutterman, John P. Harper, Thomas R. McNamara, Edward L. Ryan, Jr., Robert W. Stewart, Alfred W. Whitehurst, and John W. Winston. The population per judge stood at 29,664 ranking the circuit thirtieth well below the state mean of 47,317.

In 1981, the circuit commenced 13,930 cases, a decline of 682 or 4.7% from 1980. This decline was the result of a 13% fall in criminal cases wherein felonies declined 2%, misdemeanors 21% and habeas corpus/post convictions 14%, a net decrease of 1,088 cases. Civil cases actually increased by 406 cases or 7% with equity cases growing by 11% compared to a slight .3% increase in law cases. There were 1,548 cases per judge ranking the circuit fourth in the state, above the urban mean 1,292.

The distribution of caseload showed: law cases, 17%; equity, 30%; felony, 26%; and misdemeanor, 27%. This results in 47% civil and 53% criminal cases comprising the total caseload. State figures are 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony, and 16% misdemeanor.

Concluded cases numbered 11,986, an 11% decrease from the 13,420 of 1980. Of these cases, 4,639 (or 39%) were civil in nature, while 7,347 (or 61%) were criminal.

Jury trials numbered 297 with 56% (167) being criminal cases. Jury trials occupied 395 days, 74% of which were for civil cases.

Trial dates were assigned to 1,592 civil and 19,163 criminal cases. Of the civil cases, 333 or 21% were set more than 90 days ahead while 8,801 or 46% of the criminal were not assigned within the present term. Of the 4,639 civil cases concluded 42% were disposed of within one year and 85% of the 7,347 criminal cases were terminated within five months.

The Fourth District was authorized five general district court judgeships and three juvenile and domestic relations court judgeships during 1981. Serving the general district court were Joseph A. Jordan, Jr., Lawrence C. Lawless, Fred E. Martin, Jr., Leonard B. Sachs,and William L. Shapero. Judge Lawless assumed the bench upon the retirement of Judge Vernon D. Hitchings, Jr. on January 31, 1981. The juvenile and domestic relations court judgeships were filled by Edwin A. Henry, James G. Martin, IV, and Lester V. Moore, Jr. Judge James G. Martin retired on February 1, 1982, and was replaced by Judge John C. Morrison, Jr. The judges used 223.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days, an average of 27.9 days each. The state average per judge was 26.6 days.

The district had 160,177 commenced cases, a decline of 762 or 0.5%. Hearings rose 6.2% to 201,538. Norfolk general district court is divided into three divisions. Of the new cases, 23% were in the Criminal Division, 43% in Traffic and 34% in the Civil Division. State averages were 17% criminal, 51% traffic, and 32% civil. Traffic cases increased most substantially, rising 11% to total 68,709; criminal cases numbered 36,549, only a 0.5% increase from 1980, while civil cases declined 5% or 2,912 cases to reach 54,919 for the year.

On the average, each judge heard 32,035 cases (state average was 19,949), and held 40,308 hearings (state average was 23,488). There were 1.25 hearings per case compared to the 1.18 statewide ratio.

The juvenile and domestic relations district court reported 10,424 new cases, a decrease of 1% from the 10,571 reported in 1980. Hearings dropped by 3% to number 20,474 for the year. Nearly 30% of this caseload was adult cases with 70% being juvenile. Statewide the J&DR caseload was 66% juvenile and 34% adult new cases. Adult cases showed a 9% growth to 3,117 while juvenile cases declined 5% to 7,307 total cases for 1981.

Cases per judge were 3,475, above the state average of 3,067. For this measure the district ranked 10th highest throughout the Commonwealth. Each judge also had on the average 6,825 hearings, again above the state mean of 5,760. The 1981 hearing per case ratio was calculated at 1.96.

In 1981, the Fourth district was authorized thirteen magistrates, including the chief magistrate. The magistrates reported 22,142 duty hours during which they received 33,329 telephone calls and 24,184 in-person inquiries as well as 126,006 requests for processes. These transactions decreased by 7% from the number reported in 1980. Of the 126,006 requests, the magistrates issued 111,586 processes or 89%. Statewide, 82% of the requested processes were granted.

Arrest warrant requests totaled 34,498 with 94% being issued. Of that total, 24,358 were for arrest warrants and 7,932 were for summonses. The magistrates of the Fourth received 23,866 bond requests. They issued 3,975 unsecured bonds and 8,440 secured bonds. Of the secured bonds, 6,963 were for misdemeanors and 1,477 were for felonies. Civil warrants issued amounted to 45,679 or 41% of the total number of processes issued.

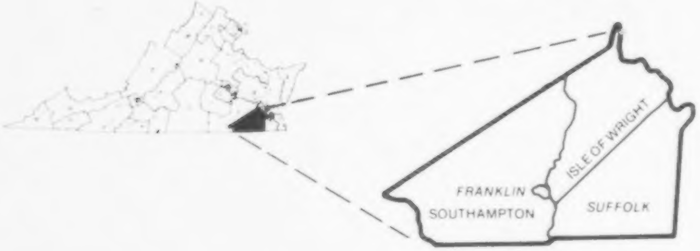
FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The cities of Suffolk and Franklin, along with the counties of Southampton and Isle of Wight comprise the Fifth Circuit. Since 1970, the population of the area has grown by 7% to a 1980 figure of 95,263 according to the U.S. Census. Isle of Wight County has shown the greatest percentage change (16%) but Suffolk continues to dominate having nearly 50% of total circuit population.

The Fifth circuit was served by three judges during 1981: E. Everett Bagnell, James C. Godwin, and Benjamin A. Williams, Jr. The judges of the Fifth also assist in the First Judicial Circuit. Total population per judge was 31,754, a rank of twenty-ninth in the state.

The commenced caseload was 3,060, a decline of 2% or 58 cases. Civil cases declined nearly 6% with law dropping 10% to 705 and equity dropping 3% to 985; criminal cases increased by 159 cases (20%) to reach 936, and increase most of which was due to a 20% increase in felony cases. The number of misdemeanor cases and habeas corpus/post conviction cases declined by 14% and 72%, respectively. Within the circuit, Suffolk accounted for the greatest growth in both civil and criminal cases, increasing by 7% and 18%, respectively. The city also accounted for 68% of the total caseload.

Cases per judge were reported as 1,020 for the year. This measure was below the state mean of 1,279 and ranked twenty-eighth in the state. Of the total caseload, 23% were law, 32% equity, 31% felony, 14% misdemeanor. Statewide figures were 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony, 16% misdemeanor.

Concluded cases rose 3% to 2,461 with an 18% growth in civil and a 9% decline in criminal, a net change of 70 cases.

The 127 jury trials took 113 days of the courts' calendar. Criminal cases numbered 54% of total jury trials and required 58% of total days spent hearing these cases. Trial dates were assigned to 346 civil and 2,042 criminal cases with 113 or 33% of these civil cases being set 90 days or more ahead and only two criminal cases not assigned to the present term. Of the 1,244 civil cases concluded, 50% were done so within one year. Criminal cases were disposed of at a rate of 67% within five months of filing.

The Fifth District was authorized two general district and one juvenile and domestic relations court judges. In 1981, the general district courts were served by judges Robert B. Edwards and William Wellington Jones. Judge R. Baird Cabell handled the district's juvenile court with some assistance from Judge Leftwich from the First District. A total of 63.6 substitute days were utilized during the past year.

New cases in the general district courts increased slightly in 1981. Both criminal and civil cases grew by 11% and 5%, respectively; traffic cases, however, declined by 13%. This resulted in a 0.5% increase in total cases. Within the district, Isle of Wight County showed a 19% increase in criminal cases and Southampton reported an 18% increase in civil cases. The city of Franklin continued to show the greatest overall percentage growth in new cases reported, 7% during 1981.

Caseload composition was 16% criminal, 50% traffic, 34% civil. State figures were 17% criminal, 51% traffic, 32% civil.

Per judge, the district reported an average of 17,492 new cases and 22,692 hearings. This was below state means of 19,949 cases and 23,488 hearings. The hearings per case ratio of 1.30 was also below the state's average of 1.18.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court Judge Cabell (with assistance from Judge Leftwich) handled 4,164 new cases and 8,658 hearings both of which declined slightly from 1980 levels. The number of new cases dropped 2%; hearings declined 0.3%. Adult cases, which constituted 48% of the total caseload, increased 3% to reach 2,000 while juvenile cases, 52% of the total, declined 6% to reach 2,164 cases.

The cases per judge average was 3,203 with 6,660 hearings per judge, both measures being above state means of 3,067 cases and 5,760 hearings. The hearings per case ratio, 2.08, also fell above the state's 1.88 ratio.

Nine magistrates were authorized for the Fifth District in 1981 including the chief magistrate. They worked a combined total of 14,720 hours. During that time, they received 32,791 requests for processes, 14,083 telephone calls and 3,727 in-person inquiries. The magistrates reported driving 13,011 miles in carrying out their responsibilities. Transactions increased by 10% over 1980 and the number of processes also grew by 10%. Of the 9,607 requests for arrest warrants, 5,201 or 54% were issued. This was below the state average of 86%.

The magistrates issued 3,781 bonds, of which 2,311 were secured and 1,470 were unsecured. Of the secured bonds, 83% were for misdemeanors.

In 1981, 5,795 civil warrants were issued in this district accounting for 23% of the total number issued. In addition, committals and release orders numbered 2,154 and 2,412, respectively.

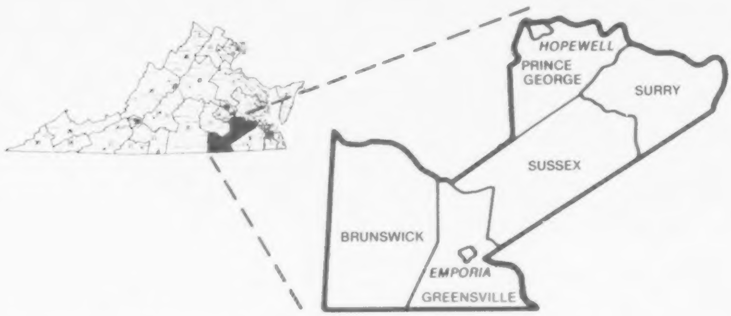
SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The counties of Brunswick, Greensville, Prince George, Surry, Sussex and the cities of Emporia and Hopewell make up the Sixth Judicial Circuit. The 1980 population for the area was reported at 97,425, a 1% increase over 1970's population of 96,264. Three counties, Greensville (14%), Prince George (6%) and Surry (3%), experienced population growth. Circuit court judges were Ligon L. Jones and Robert G. O'Hara. Judge Jones retired on December 31, 1981, and was replaced by William Park Lemmond. The population per circuit court judge of 48,713 ranked the area seventeenth highest among the 31 circuits. Statewide, the population figure was 47,317 per circuit judge.

There were 1,983 cases commenced during 1981, which was a 4% decrease from the 2,073 new cases of 1980. Civil cases decreased by 3% while criminal cases fell by 8%. The two judges averaged 992 commenced cases which ranked the circuit last among all circuits, whose judges averaged 1,279.

The 1981 circuit court disposed of 1,975 cases, 204 more than in 1980. The largest rise in terminated cases occurred in civil where a 16% increase was reported. The caseload distribution was 21% law, 44% equity, 28% felony and 7% misdemeanor. The circuit was weighted more heavily with equity cases in comparison to the statewide distribution of commenced cases.

Jury trials totaled 109 in 1981, up from 83 in 1980. The two judges spent 60 days hearing these jury trials with criminal trials occupying 35 days (58%) and civil taking 25 days (42%).

In 1981, 639 criminal and 276 civil cases were assigned trial dates. Fourteen percent of the criminal cases were not assigned in the present term; 51% of the civil cases were given dates 90 days ahead. Of the 695 criminal cases concluded, 82% were disposed of within five months while in the civil category 43% were concluded within one year.

The Sixth District was authorized two general and two juvenile and domestic relations court judges. Serving the general district court were C.C. Connelly and James A. Luke. P.I. Leadbetter and C.A. Perkinson served as J&DR court judges. Judge Samuel E. Campbell replaced Judge Leadbetter who retired December 31, 1981. The judges of the district used 94.1 substitute and recalled retired judge days in 1981.

The general district courts reported 49,309 new cases and 45,769 hearings in 1981. These figures represent a 2% decline in new cases and a 7% decline in hearings. Both criminal and traffic cases declined during the period while civil cases grew by 4%. Within the district, Brunswick, Greensville and Sussex reported declines in caseloads dropping 11%, 2% and 24%, respectively. In Surry, traffic cases increased 68% and civil cases rose 50%. Emporia also experienced a 70% growth in traffic cases. The hearing per case ratio for the Sixth was 0.93 compared to a rural mean of 1.11. Judges of the district averaged 24,655 new cases, well above the state average of 19,949.

The 1981 caseload was composed of 70% traffic, 18% civil and 12% criminal cases. State averages are 51% traffic, 32% civil and 17% criminal.

In 1981, the J&DR caseload totaled 3,466 new cases and 7,583 hearings, growing from last year's figures by 20% and 12%, respectively. Juvenile cases were up 12% to reach 2,151 while adult cases grew by 149 cases or 13% to reach 1,315 cases. Within the district, all localities showed a significant rise in total caseload except for Sussex county which showed a 28% decline. Most significantly, Brunswick's total J&DR commenced caseload grew by 79% and Prince George experienced a 40% rise.

The two judges of the Sixth averaged 1,733 cases and 3,792 hearings each. This caseload ranked the district lowest among the 18 rural districts whose average was 2,804 cases per judge. The rural average for hearings per judge was 5,146. Hearings per case stood at 2.19.

The Sixth District was authorized 22 magistrates including the chief magistrate. A total of 28,914 requests for processes, 16,197 telephone calls and 8,629 in-person inquiries were handled during the magistrates' combined 33,114 activity hours. The requests for processes declined by 5% compared to 1980's 30,373. Correspondingly, the number of processes issued fell by nearly 7% from the previous year. Overall, the magistrates issued 85% of the requested processes.

During 1981, the magistrates issued 91% of the 10,390 requests for arrest warrants. These included 1,057 processes for felonies, 8,293 for misdemeanors and 65 summonses. Bond requests numbered 10,711 of which 7,676 were issued. Of the 4,273 secured bonds, 92% were for misdemeanors. Bond processes accounted for 31% of all processes issued in 1981. The magistrates handled 2,831 committals and 2,714 releases during the same period.

SEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

NEWPORT NEWS

The city of Newport News is the only locality designated in the Seventh Judicial District. Population of this circuit was reported at 144,903 according to the 1980 U.S. Census. Compared to the 1970 population, the city has experienced a 5% increase over the last decade.

Three circuit judgeships were authorized in 1981. The judges serving were Fred W. Bateman, Douglas M. Smith, Henry D. Garnett and J. Warren Stephens. Judge Bateman replaced Judge Garnett who retired on March 31, 1981. Population per judge was 48,301 or nineteenth highest in the state. The state average was 47,317.

The 1981 commenced caseload of 4,690 represents an increase of 17% or 687 cases in comparison to 1980. This increase was the result of an increase of 280 cases or 13% in civil cases and an increase of 407 cases or 23% in criminal. Commenced cases experienced the greatest growth in the category of felony cases, which rose 25% or 243 cases to reach 1,267. Commenced caseload per judge of 1,563 ranks the circuit third in the state, well above the state average of 1,279 and urban mean of 1,292.

The composition of the 1981 commenced caseload was 17% law, 36% equity, 27% felony and 20% misdemeanor. The circuit was weighted more heavily in equity and misdemeanor cases compared to statewide percentages of 34% and 16%, respectively. State figures for other cases showed a composition of 22% law and 28% felony.

The circuit concluded 4,580 cases in 1981, an 11% increase over 1980's, 4,119 cases. Greatest growth occurred in criminal concluded cases which increased 20% or 362 cases to reach 2,143. Civil concluded cases increased by 4%.

Jury trials totaled 118, up 42% over 1980's 83. This was an average of 39 per judge, falling below the state average of 50. The three judges spent 76 days hearing these trials.

Trial dates were assigned to 457 civil cases of which 245 (54%) were set beyond 90 days. For the 3,348 criminal cases set, trial dates in the present term were not assigned to 1,354 (40%). Of the 2,437 civil cases terminated 1,262 (52%) were disposed of within one year. In the criminal section, 2,143 were concluded with 1,800 (84%) being terminated within five months of filing.

The Seventh District was authorized three general district and two juvenile and domestic relations judges. In 1981, the general district court was served by Robert W. Curran, James H. Harvell and Randolph T. West. In the juvenile court, the district was served by F. Thompson Wheeler II and Robert M. Yacobi. These judges used a total of 115.9 substitute and recalled retired judge days, or 23.2 per judge, below the state's 26.6 average.

The general district caseload in 1981 was 68,859 new cases, a decrease of 2% from 1980. Hearings, however, increased 4% to total 118,355 for the year. The hearings per case ratio was 1.72. Traffic cases declined by 2% with civil cases also decreasing by 6%. Criminal new cases grew by 959 or 7% to reach 14,106. Caseload composition showed a predominance of traffic cases which represented 40% of the total caseload. Civil cases constituted 39% and criminal 21% of the total. Statewide distribution was 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil.

The average caseload per general district judge in 1981 was 22,953 new cases and 39,452 hearings each ranking the district fifth among urban areas for the measure of new cases per judge. The urban average was 22,732 new cases.

The 1981 juvenile and domestic relations caseload was 4,692 new cases and 12,263 hearings. New cases rose 13% over 1980's figures and hearings showed an 11% increase. The growth in caseload was attributable to a growth of 419, 17%, in juvenile cases which represented 63% of total new cases and an increase of 8% in adult cases. Judges averaged 2,346 cases each and 6,132 hearings compared to the respective urban means of 3,321 and 6,353. The hearings per case ratio was 2.61, above the urban mean of 1.92.

Six magistrate positions were authorized for the Seventh District. These magistrates reported 11,260 hours of activity during which they handled 31,319 telephone calls, 15,661 in-person inquiries and received 134,766 requests for processes. They issued processes for 61% of the requests. The 82,214 processes reflected a 10% increase over the 75,047 issued in 1980.

The magistrates received 39,542 requests for arrest warrants. Of the 56% issued, 2,923 were for felonies, 17,729 were for misdemeanors and 1,361 were summonses. Bonds issued totaled 10,951. Of the 6,085 which were secured, 77% or 4,658 were for misdemeanors. The magistrates of the Seventh processed 25,092 civil warrants and 202 subpoenas during 1981. Committals and releases numbered 9,844 and 10,666, respectively.

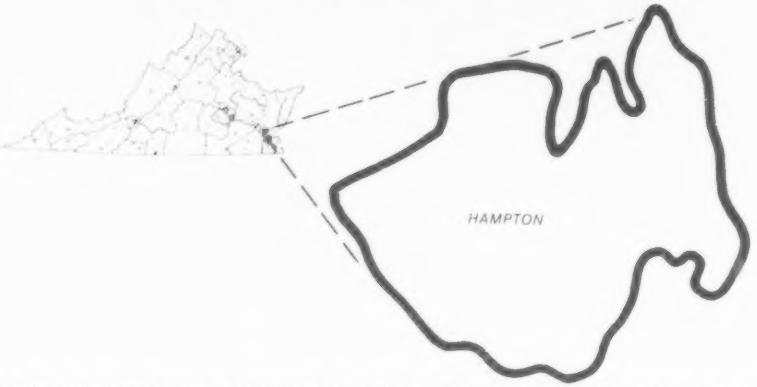
EIGHTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The City of Hampton is the single locality in the Eighth Judicial Circuit. The population of Hampton as determined by the 1980 U.S. Census was 122,617, a 2% increase since 1970.

Two judgeships were authorized in this circuit and were filled by Edgar A. Massenburg and Nelson T. Overton. The population per judge in the circuit was 61,309 which ranked fifth highest in the state.

In 1981, 2,759 cases were commenced, a 1% decrease from 1980. Criminal cases dropped by 12 (or 1%) while civil cases declined by 28 (or 2%). The 1,380 commenced caseload per judge was above the urban mean of 1,292 and ranks tenth among all 31 circuits.

The composition of the 1981 commenced caseload was 21% law, 41% equity, 20% felony, 18% misdemeanor. This distribution compared to state averages of 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony, and 16% misdemeanor.

The judges disposed of 2,629 cases, a decrease of 13% from 1980's 3,012 concluded cases. Concluded civil cases decreased by 347; criminal cases declined by 36.

There were 72 jury trials or 36 per judge. This compared to a state average of 50 per judge. Fifty-two days were required to hear these jury trials.

Trial dates were set for 415 civil and 918 criminal cases. Of the law cases, 48 (12%) received dates 90 days ahead while 9 (1%) of the criminal cases were not assigned for the present term. Forty-six percent of the 1,654 concluded civil cases were terminated within one year. Ninety-six percent of the criminal cases were finished within five months.

During 1980, the district was served by Judges Henry D. Kashouty and Thomas H. Wilson II in the general district court and Judges Paul Crider, Jr. and Nelson T. Durden in the juvenile and domestic relations district court. The judges of the district used 148.4 substitute and recalled retired judge days, averaging 37.1 per judge.

Hampton's general district court reported 48,278 new cases and 73,834 hearings in 1981. New cases reflected a 4% increase over the 46,666 cases reported in 1980 while hearings rose 9% or 6,223. The traffic caseload grew by 1,341 cases or 8% accompanied by a 5% increase, or 890 cases, in the civil category. Criminal cases declined nearly 7% to 8,159. The caseload per judge averaged 24,139 compared to the urban average of 22,732, giving a rank of fourth among these districts. Hearings per case were 1.52.

The composition of the 1981 new caseload was 17% criminal, 40% traffic, and 43% civil. Hampton's proportion of civil cases was higher than the state average of 32%.

The juvenile and domestic relations district court reported 5,599 new cases and 15,390 hearings, increases of 18% and 9%, respectively, from 1980 figures. Adult cases, representing 30% of total caseload, reflected a growth of 279 or 22%. Juvenile cases grew by 568 cases or 16%. Across the state, figures showed an average composition of 66% juvenile, 34% adult. The district's judges averaged 2,800 new cases and 7,695 hearings. Urban averages were 3,321 and 6,353, respectively. The hearings per case ratio was 2.75, higher than the urban measure of 1.92.

The Eighth District was authorized six magistrates who reported working 10,897 hours during 1981. Telephone calls and in-person inquiries numbered 9,690 and 3,662 during the year. Of the 29,535 transactions, 20,416 processes were issued. Both transactions and processes declined in 1981 by 18% and 22%, respectively. Arrest warrants and bonds accounted for 63% and 31% of the total processes issued.

Of the arrest warrants requested, 94% were issued. Bond transactions totaled 14,102. Of this number, 3,550 non-secured bonds were issued, 93% of which were for misdemeanors. During the year the magistrates issued 196 search warrants and 16 subpoenas. Since the responsibility for issuing civil warrants was transferred from the magistrates to the clerk's office of the general district court during 1981, only two civil warrants were processed by the district's magistrates. Committals and releases numbered 489 and 91, respectively.

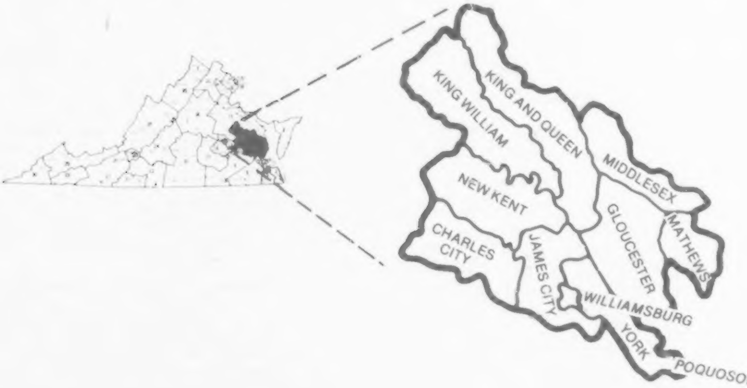
NINTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Ninth Judicial Circuit is comprised of the counties of Charles City, Gloucester, James City, King and Queen, King William, Mathews, Middlesex, New Kent, York and the cities of Williamsburg and Poquoson. The circuit covers an area of 1,871 square miles east of Richmond and is bound by the James River in the south and the Rappahannock in the north. The 1980 population was 143,418 according to the U.S. Census, an increase of 30% from 1970's 109,955 listing.

The circuit was served by three judges: Russell M. Carneal, John E. DeHardit, and G. Duane Holloway. The 1981 population per judge stood at 47,806, twentieth highest in the state. The judges of the Ninth commenced 3,023 cases in 1981, a 2% increase from 1980. Civil cases declined by 2% or 40 cases; however, criminal cases showed a 10% increase or 108 to reach 1,161 cases. Within criminal cases, felonies rose 21%. The judges averaged 1,008 commenced cases each ranking their circuit thirtieth in the state.

The composition of the Ninth's commenced caseload was 22% law, 40% equity, 25% felony, and 13% misdemeanor, very similar to last year's distribution.

Concluded cases totaled 2,902, 4% more than 1980's 2,793. Concluded civil cases dropped 8% while criminal cases increased by 249 cases or 26%.

Jury trials fell again during 1981 dropping from 92 to 78. The judges averaged 26 jury trials each, well below the state average of 50. Sixty-five days were spent hearing these cases.

There were 600 civil cases assigned trial dates, 395 (66%) of which were set at least 90 days ahead. Of the 1,445 criminal cases assigned dates, 440 (30%) were not set for the present term. Of the 1,193 concluded criminal cases, 81% reached disposition within five months from date of scheduling. Nearly 52% of the civil concluded cases were terminated within one year.

In 1981, the Ninth District was authorized two general district court judges, William T. Bareford and J. R. Zepkin, and two juvenile and domestic relations district court judges, Herbert I. L. Feild and John G. Sowder. The four judges of the district used 136.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days, an average of 34.1 per judge.

The general district court reported 37,036 new cases (a decrease of 2% from 1980) and 38,878 hearings (an increase of 3%). This decrease in cases was due to a 10% decline in criminal and a 0.2% decrease in civil cases. Traffic cases increased slightly by 0.6%. Within the district, King and Queen county showed a 30% increase in criminal cases. A 49% increase in traffic cases was observed in Middlesex county and civil cases grew by 47% in Mathews county. Mathews and Middlesex experienced total growth in caseload of 19% and 20%, respectively.

New caseload composition was 21% criminal, 59% traffic, 20% civil; state composition averaged 17% criminal, 51% traffic, 32% civil.

New cases per judge averaged 18,518 while hearings per judge stood at 19,439. Hearings per case were 1.05 on the average. The caseload per judge figure ranked the district fifth among rural districts and above the rural mean of 16,976.

The number of new cases reported by the juvenile and domestic relations district court increased by only 1% between 1980 and 1981 with 4,190 being reported during the latest year. Hearings showed a 4% rise reaching 10,119.

Nearly 35% of the new caseload was composed of adult cases which grew 11% to 1,457. Juvenile cases actually declined by 3% or 92 cases during the period to reach 2,733. Within the district, Middlesex county showed a 53% decline in juvenile cases. Williamsburg-James City combined showed a 40% growth in adult cases.

The judges of the juvenile court averaged 2,095 new cases each and 5,060 hearings. Rural averages for these two measures were 2,804 and 5,146, respectively. The hearings per case ratio stood at 2.42, above the rural average of 1.84.

The nineteen authorized magistrates in the Ninth District received 19,836 requests for processes in 1981 which represented little change (−0.2%) from 1980. In the execution of their duties, the magistrates reported driving 29,281 miles. Eighty-five percent of the transactions resulted in the issuance of processes. The 16,877 issued processes represented a decline of 254 from those reported in 1980. During the year, the magistrates issued 6,390 arrest warrants, 86% of the requested number. These were composed of 1,207 felonies, 4,082 misdemeanors and 1,101 summonses. A total of 2,681 bonds were issued, 32% of which were secured. There were 576 felony bonds and 2,165 misdemeanor bonds issued.

Issued search warrants numbered 84; civil warrants processed totaled 4,974. The magistrates issued 1,228 committals and 824 releases.

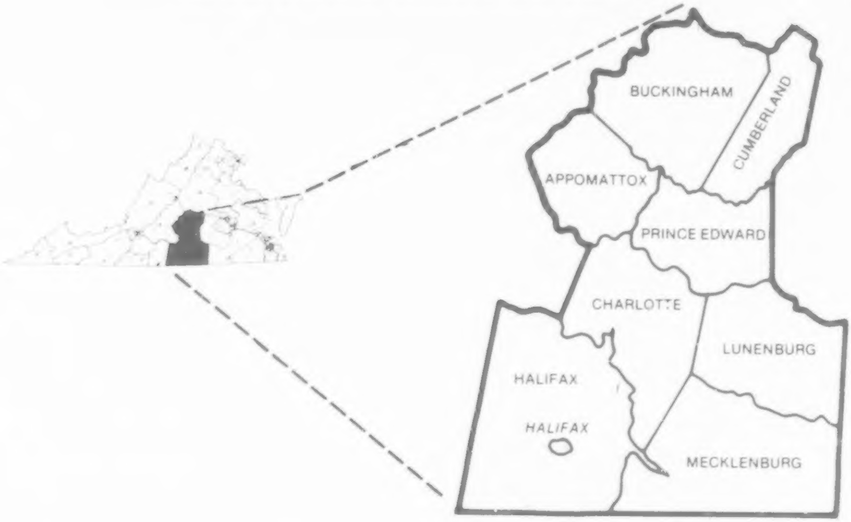
TENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Tenth Judicial Circuit consists of the counties of Appomattox, Buckingham, Charlotte, Cumberland, Halifax, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg and Prince Edward and the city of Halifax. This area comprises 3,916 square miles, the largest among the circuits. The population for the circuit reached 139,585 according to the 1980 U.S. Census, an increase of 6% from 1970.

Judges Meredith C. Dortch and John R. Snoddy, served the circuit court in 1981. The population per judge was 69,793 and ranked the circuit first statewide. The state average stood at 47,317.

The Tenth Circuit commenced 2,501 new cases in 1981, an increase of 4% from 2,402 cases reported the previous year. This increase was the result of an 11% growth in criminal cases in the circuit. The composition of the 1981 commenced caseload was 19% law, 36% equity, 31% felony, 14% misdemeanor, varying little from the state's average distribution. The caseload per judge measure was 1,251, ranking fifteenth in the state and below the rural mean of 1,262.

Within the circuit, the county of Appomattox showed a 22% decline in new caseload while Cumberland reported the greatest percentage change (+36%) among all jurisdictions of the area.

Concluded cases numbered 2,357 or 11% more than 1980's 2,122. Civil cases increased by 40 or 3% while criminal grew by 195 or 23%.

During 1981, 27 civil jury trials and 38 criminal jury trials were heard in the circuit. This occupied a total of 61 jury days. The number of jury trials per judge stood at 33, lower than the state average of 50.

Trial dates were assigned to 241 civil cases, 75 (31%) of which were set at least 90 days ahead. Of the 916 assigned criminal cases, 281 (31%) were not set within the present term. The age of terminated cases reveals that 44% of concluded civil cases reached disposition within one year while 78% of terminated criminal cases were concluded within five months of filing.

Judges William Hay, Jr., Robert B. Spencer, Jr. and Robert T. Vaughan served the general district court in 1981. Juvenile and domestic relations district court judges were Charles L. McCormick and J. Taylor Williams. The five judges of the district used 98.9 substitute and recalled retired judge days during the year.

In 1981, the district's caseload was 55,166 new cases and 53,344 hearings, representing increases of 5% and 6%, respectively. Increased caseloads were reported in five district jurisdictions: Appomattox (5%), Buckingham (34%), Mecklenburg (9%), Lunenburg (3%), and Prince Edward (2%). Buckingham County showed significant increases in traffic cases (30%) and civil cases (60%).

The Tenth's general district court caseload was composed of 14% criminal, 65% traffic, 21% civil, a composition which continued more heavily weighted in traffic cases than statewide averages. The caseload per judge averaged 18,389 new cases, sixth highest among rural districts and well above the rural mean of 16,976. The district's hearings per case ratio of 0.96 remained below the rural mean of 1.11.

In 1981, the juvenile and domestic relations district court reported 5,142 new cases and 8,921 hearings. The hearing per case ratio was 1.73, compared to a rural measure of 1.84. New cases grew 5% from 1980 and hearings were up 6%. The growth in new caseload was the result of an 11% increase in adult cases and a 2% increase in juvenile cases. Juvenile cases constituted 62% of the total caseload. Within the district, Cumberland and Mecklenburg counties reported the greatest percentage growth in new cases, 14% and 11%, respectively.

The two juvenile and domestic relations district court judges averaged 2,571 cases and 4,461 hearings each. This measure ranked sixth among the 18 rural districts and below the rural means of 2,804 cases and 5,146 hearings.

The Tenth District was authorized 24 magistrates who reported 23,788 hours of activity during 1981. They also reported receiving an average 47 telephone calls and 21 in-person inquiries per day. In the district having the largest geographical area, the magistrates drove 61,142 miles and handled 34,894 requests for processes, a slight decline from 1980. Processes were issued for 86% of these requests. More than half of these processes were arrest warrants and bonds. Arrest warrant processes included 1,405 felonies, 7,932 misdemeanors and 60 summonses. Secured bonds numbered 3,093, 20% of which were for felonies. Civil warrants totaled 8,320 for the year. Committals and releases were listed as 2,832 and 2,365, respectively.

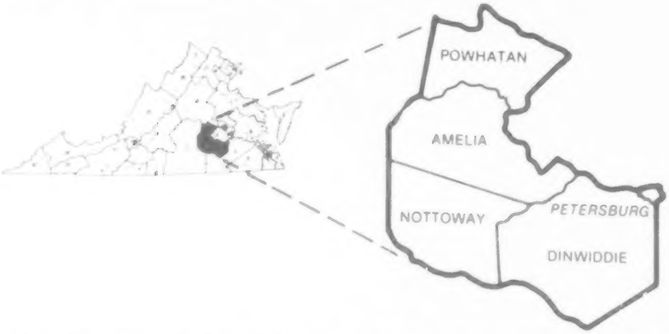
ELEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



Comprising the Eleventh Judicial Circuit are the counties of Amelia, Dinwiddie, Nottoway, and Powhatan as well as the city of Petersburg. The 1980 U.S. Census reports the population of the circuit as 99,790 which constitutes a 10% increase over the past decade. The county of Powhatan grew by 70% during this period. Dinwiddie and Petersburg continue to represent two-thirds of the area's total population.

The circuit was authorized two circuit court judges during 1981 with Oliver A. Pollard, Jr., and Thomas V. Warren serving. There were 49,895 residents per judge, a rank of thirteen among the 31 circuits.

The Eleventh commenced 2,163 new cases in 1981, 197 (10%) more than in the previous year. This growth was attributable to a 24% increase in criminal cases which reached 1,038. Civil cases declined by three cases. Within the circuit, the city of Petersburg showed a caseload 23% higher than 1980's while Amelia's caseload declined 17%.

Caseload composition was 19% law, 33% equity, 38% felony, 10% misdemeanor. State average composition of new cases was 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor. Commenced cases per judge totaled 1,082, twenty-fifth in the state and below the rural mean of 1,262.

The judges concluded 1,866 cases, 4% more than the year before. Although concluded criminal cases grew 7% the number of concluded civil cases fell by 1%.

There were 113 jury trials in the year, 20 civil and 93 criminal; these required 99 days to hear. Jury trials per judge, 57, was above the statewide measure of 50. Trial dates were set more than 90 days ahead for 50% of the 222 civil cases assigned while 14% of the 1,351 criminal cases assigned dates were scheduled beyond the present term. Nearly 57% (571) of the 1,002 concluded civil cases met disposition within one year of filing. Criminal cases showed a disposition rate of 84% (729) of the total 864 cases within five months of filing.

In the Eleventh District, James F. D'Alton, Jr. and Richard E. Lewis, Jr., served the general district court and Ben L. Campbell and L. L. Mason, Jr., served as authorized judges in the juvenile and domestic relations district court. These judges used 87.8 substitute and recalled retired judge days, for an average of 22.0 each. This compares to a state average of 26.6 for this measure.

The general district court reported 36,208 new cases and 49,777 hearings for the year. These figures represent decreases of 3% and 5%, respectively, compared to 1980. Criminal new cases grew by 7% while traffic cases were down 4% and civil decreased by 7%. Within the circuit, the county of Nottoway showed the greatest increase with new cases growing 4%. Powhatan showed a 64% growth in criminal cases over 1980.

The composition of new cases was 22% criminal, 45% traffic, and 33% civil. This compares to average state composition of 17% criminal, 51% traffic, 32% civil.

The judges each averaged 18,104 new cases, eighth among rural districts and above the rural average of 16,976. Hearings per judge were 24,889, again higher than the rural mean, 18,805. The hearing per case ratio stood at 1.37.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, 4,128 new cases were reported, a decrease of 6% or 240 cases. Correspondingly, hearings declined, dropping 9% to reach 7,726. Juvenile cases declined 10% while adult cases grew 3%. The caseload composition was 60% juvenile and 40% adult new cases. Statewide this breakout was 66% and 34%, respectively. New cases per judge numbered 2,064, fifteenth among the 18 rural districts and well below the state average of 3,067. Hearings per judge averaged 3,864 and hearings per case 1.87.

Fourteen magistrate positions were authorized for the Eleventh District in 1981. They reported working a combined total of 15,904 hours. During that time they received 24,216 requests for processes, 14,910 telephone calls and 5,739 in-person inquiries. The magistrates reported driving 26,701 miles in the course of their duties. Of the 24,216 transactions, 19,564 processes were issued, or 81%. Transactions declined by 6% while processes issued increased by 4% compared to 1980. During the year the magistrates handled 9,365 requests for arrest warrants, issuing 8,289 or 89%. This was slightly higher than the state average of 86%. Arrest warrants comprised 42% of the district's total processes.

Bonds issued totaled 5,023, of which 1,894 were secured. Of the secured bonds, 22% were for felonies and 78% were for misdemeanors.

During the year, 547 civil warrants and 811 search warrants were issued. Committals and release orders totaled 3,138 and 1,495, respectively.

TWELFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

CHESTERFIELD
COLONIAL HEIGHTS

Chesterfield County and the city of Colonial Heights constitute the Twelfth Circuit. During the decade 1970-1980, the population of the area increased by 71% to reach 157,881. Chesterfield county showed a growth of 83%, making it the second fastest growing area in the state within this time period. Colonial Heights grew by 9%. The 1980 population of Chesterfield county was reported as 141,372.

The circuit was served by two judges during the first half of 1981. Effective July 1, 1981, an additional judgeship was authorized for the area. Serving were Ernest P. Gates, D. W. Murphey and John F. Daffron who was elected to the circuit bench by the General Assembly when the new judgeship was authorized. Population per judge (3 judges) stood at 52,627 for the year, eleventh in the state and above the state average of 47,317.

The new commenced caseload for the circuit reached 3,165, a change of 22 cases or only 0.7%. Civil cases held fairly constant, decreasing by 0.5%. Criminal cases showed an overall increase of 4%. Within the circuit, Colonial Height's commenced caseload declined 15%; Chesterfield's grew by 2%.

Commenced caseload composition was 16% law, 53% equity, 16% felony and 15% misdemeanor. State average composition was 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor. The commenced case per judge ratio was 1,055 for 1981, twenty-sixth among the state circuits and below the urban mean of 1,292.

Growing by 5%, the number of concluded cases for the period reached 2,886, a change of 146 cases. This results in a measure of 962 concluded cases per judge compared to an urban average of 1,240. Concluded civil cases grew by 8% to 2,147; concluded criminal cases declined by 3% to 739 for 1981.

There were 24 civil and 22 criminal jury trials held during 1981 in the circuit. Hearing these cases required 48 days of the courts' calendar, 29 days or 60% being used to hear civil cases. Of the total 388 civil cases assigned trial dates, 188 or 48% were assigned at least 90 days ahead; 62 or 7% of the 910 criminal cases assigned were not assigned within the present term.

The age of commenced cases showed that of the 2,147 civil cases concluded, 1,120 or 52% reached disposition within one year of filing while 668 or 90% of the 739 concluded criminal cases were disposed of within five months.

Within the Twelfth District, three general district court judgeships were authorized. Serving were John F. Daffron, William R. Shelton, John A. Snead and William N. Humphries, Jr. Judge Humphries filled the position of Judge Daffron when the latter assumed his duties in the circuit court of the Twelfth, July 1, 1981. Serving the juvenile and domestic relations district court were Marvin L.

Garner and John H. Thomas. The judges used 187.2 substitute and recalled retired judge days during 1981, for an average of 37.5 each. This stood well above the state average of 26.6.

The number of new cases reached 36,331 (a growth of only 1% from 1980) and hearings rose to 48,073 (an increase of 2%). Within the district, the City of Colonial Heights showed a significant increase in new cases which grew by 1,150 or 34%. In Chesterfield, total caseload actually declined by 3% or 800 cases.

Districtwide, traffic cases grew by 30%; criminal cases rose by 13%; civil cases declined by 10%. Composition of caseload was 15% criminal, 63% traffic and 22% civil, a composition weighted more heavily in traffic cases than the average state composition of 52% traffic.

New cases per judge averaged 12,100, ranking the district lowest among the 14 urban districts and well below the urban mean of 22,732. The number of hearings per judge was 16,024 compared to an urban average of 29,245. The hearings per case ratio was 1.32.

In the J&DR district court, 4,968 new cases were commenced, a 6% decline from the previous year. Hearings, however, reached 13,140, a 3% rise. Adult cases, which totaled 1,495 (30% of total new caseload), declined by 4%. Juvenile cases totaled 3,473 and dropped by 6% from 1980.

The two judges averaged 2,484 new cases each, tenth among urban districts; 6,570 hearings per judge were reported. The hearings per case ratio was 2.64, higher than the urban mean of 1.92.

The Twelfth District was authorized eleven magistrates in 1981. They reported 13,779 hours of activity during which they received over 26,500 telephone calls and in-person inquiries as well as 23,471 requests for processes. These transactions increased by less than 1% from 1980's 23,346. The magistrates issued 19,160 processes during the year, of which 38% were for arrest warrants and 26% for bonds.

Of the 7,794 requests for arrest warrants, 92% were issued and included 1,071 for felonies, 5,358 for misdemeanors and 769 summonses. Bonds issued during the year numbered 5,044: 3,381 unsecured and 1,663 secured. Nearly 58% of the bond requests were issued. Thirty percent of the secured bonds were for felonies. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 9.7 per every ten requests. Committals and releases numbered 3,719 and 3,049, respectively.

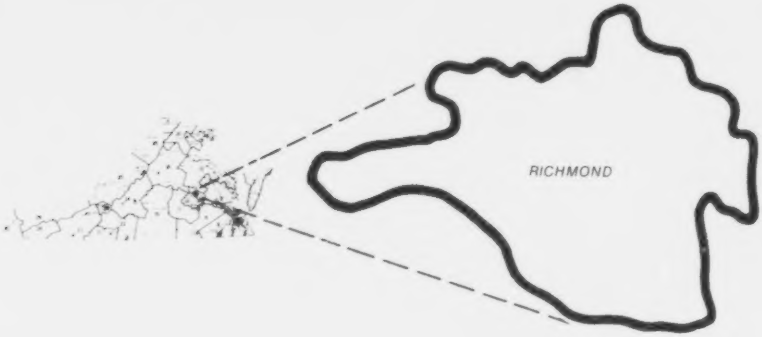
THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Thirteenth Judicial Circuit serves the city of Richmond. The city's population has declined 12% since 1970 with a 1980 U.S. Census listing of 219,214.

The Thirteenth Circuit is divided into two divisions. Division I holds court in the John Marshall Courts Building. Division II serves the southside section of Richmond. Eight judgeships were authorized to serve the circuit during 1981. Serving the circuit court were Thomas N. Nance, Marvin F. Cole, James M. Lumpkin. James E. Sheffield, William E. Spain, Willard I. Walker, James B. Wilkinson and Frank A. S. Wright. Judge Nance replaced Judge J. Randolph Tucker, Jr. effective March 1, 1981, after Judge Tucker retired on June 30, 1980.

The population per judge was 27,402, lowest among the state's 31 circuits. The state average stood at 47,317.

During the year, the circuit reported 8,736 commenced cases, an increase of 3% from 1980's 8,461. This growth was attributable to increases of 10% and 6%, respectively, in the number of commenced felony and misdemeanor cases. Law and equity cases each increased by less than 1%. Within the circuit, Division I showed growth in both civil (1%) and criminal (6%) cases. Division II, however, reported a 7% decline in civil cases while criminal cases rose 14%.

The composition of the Thirteenth's 1981 commenced caseload was 32% law, 26% equity, 34% felony and 8% misdemeanor. State averages were 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor.

The number of commenced cases per judge was 1,092, giving the circuit a ranking of twenty-fourth among the state's 31 circuits and below the urban mean of 1,292.

Concluded cases numbered 8,689, an increase of nearly 11% from 1980. Most of this growth arose from the 13% growth in Division I which accounted for 82% (7,134) of the total concluded cases by the year's end. Division II's concluded caseload grew by 3% in comparison.

There were 119 civil and 326 criminal jury trials in the circuit. Division I was responsible for 65% of the total jury trials reported, numbering 291. The circuit's jury cases required 505 days to be heard.

Trial dates were assigned to 2,117 civil and 3,883 criminal cases. Nearly 69% or 1,453 of the civil were assigned at least 90 days ahead while 43% or 1,681 of the criminal were not assigned in the present term. Over half (55%) of the 4,781 terminated civil cases reached disposition within one year of filing. Of the 3,908 concluded criminal cases, 3,646 (93%) were terminated within five months.

Within the Thirteenth District, the general district court caseload was handled by four divisions: Criminal, Traffic, Civil and Manchester. The district was authorized seven general district court judges in 1981. Serving were Jose R. Davila, Jr., Robert W. Duling, Melvin R. Hughes, Jr., W. Jerry Roberts, Henry J. Schrieberg, Edgar L. Turlington, Jr., and Robert Lee Harris. Judge Hughes was elected by the 1981 General Assembly to fill the general district court vacancy created by the assignment of Thomas N. Nance to the circuit court. Judge Harris replaced Judge Thomas A. Williams, Jr., who retired on December 31, 1981. Serving the J&DR district court were Alton E. Bryant, Jr., Willard H. Douglas, and Arlin F. Ruby. The judges used a total of 272.7 substitute and recalled retired judge days. This was an average of 27.5 days per judge, slightly above the state mean of 26.6.

The Thirteenth District reported the largest commenced caseload in the state for 1981 with 224,400 cases. This represented a 19% rise over 1980 figures. Hearings rose 17% to reach 251,561. Criminal cases grew by 12% attaining 18,037; traffic cases increased by 5% reaching 54,473. Civil cases, however, rose most dramatically, increasing by 26% from 1980's caseload to 151,890 for 1981. This civil caseload was the greatest of any district in the state.

New caseload composition was 8% criminal, 24% traffic, 68% civil, a composition extremely skewed toward civil cases in comparison to state averages of 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil.

Cases per judge numbered 32,057, the highest in the state and well above the state mean (19,949) and urban mean (22,732). There were 35,937 hearings per judge and 1.12 hearings per case. Urban averages were 29,945 and 1.29 for these two measures, respectively.

The J&DR district court new caseload was reported at 15,333, a rise of 21% over 1980's figure and second greatest in the state. Hearings reached 18,368, up 4% from 1980.

Nearly 55% of the total caseload was made up of juvenile cases which grew 6% to reach 8,388 for 1981. Adult cases, 45% of the caseload, were numbered at 6,945, an increase of 1,114 or 2%. On a statewide basis, juvenile cases comprised 66% of the total new caseload.

There were 5,111 cases per judge on the average, a rank of first among urban districts and much greater than the urban average of 3,321. Hearings per judge were 6,123 (urban average 6,353) and the hearings per case ratio stood at 1.20, below the urban average of 1.92.

NOTE: Special Magistrates (employees of the locality) served this area. Statistical information was not obtained from them in 1981.

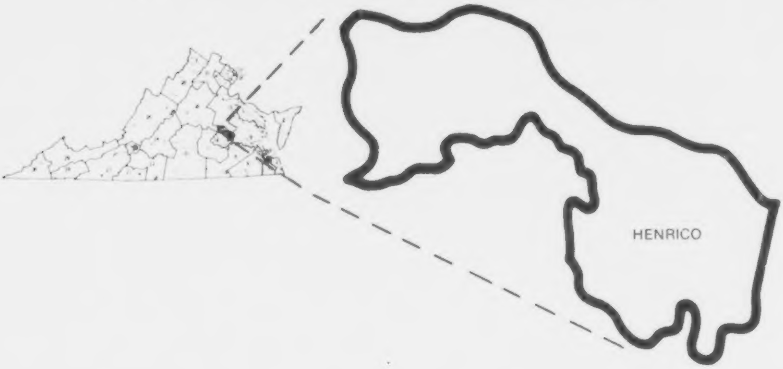
FOURTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



Henrico County alone comprises the Fourteenth Judicial Circuit. This county's population was listed as 180,735 by the U.S. Census of 1980. This represents a 17% increase of the 1970 figure of 154,364.

This circuit was authorized four judgeships in 1981. Serving the circuit court were Edmund W. Hening, Jr., E. Ballard Baker, L. Paul Byrne and Robert M. Wallace. Population per judge was 45,184, twenty-second among the state's 31 circuits.

In 1981, commenced cases grew by 6% to reach 4,077. The circuit's civil caseload decreased by 226 cases or 9% from 1980's 2,432 to reach 2,206. Criminal cases more than offset this decline, however, with its 31% growth to 1,871 cases. In particular, felony cases increased by a staggering 103% from 1980's figures to reach 1,077 cases in 1981. Misdemeanors and law cases both declined by 14%; equity cases dropped 7%.

The composition of the commenced caseload was 16% law, 38% equity, 26% felony, 19% misdemeanor and 1% habeas corpus/post conviction. This composition represents a lesser percentage of law and felony cases compared to the average state composition.

The number of cases per judge averaged 1,019, twenty-fourth in the state and below both the state and urban means for this measure (1,279 and 1,292, respectively).

The judges concluded 3,597 cases, 10% more than in 1980. Civil cases concluded increased 11% to 2,127; criminal cases concluded increased 10% to 1,470. There were 129 jury trials held, 94 (73%) being criminal in nature. It required 148 days to hear the circuit's trials, 57% of the time being used to hear criminal cases.

Of the 411 civil cases assigned trial dates, 410 were set at least 90 days ahead; 1,410 criminal cases received dates also and 560 (40%) were not assigned in the present term. There were 2,127 civil cases concluded, 1,021 (48%) of which were disposed of within one year. Meeting disposition within five months of filing were 1,346 (92%) of the 1,470 terminated criminal cases.

Three general district court judgeships were authorized for the Fourteenth in 1981. Judges Donald R. Howren, Joseph F. Spinella and H. Ratcliffe Turner served. In the juvenile and domestic relations district court Judges Augustus S. Hydrick and J. Mercer White, Jr. served as authorized. The district used 142.1 substitute and recalled retired judge days, or an average of 28.4 per judge. The state average was 26.6 days per judge.

The district reported 64,944 new cases and 67,267 hearings. This caseload was an increase of 8% or 4,664 cases from 1980; hearings grew by 0.4%. All categories of new cases showed increases from 1980, criminal increasing 2% to 5,526; traffic was up 4% to 36,272; civil grew by 15% to 23,146. Caseload composition was 9% criminal, 56% traffic, 35% civil compared to the state average distribution of 17% criminal, 51% traffic, 32% civil.

The cases per judge averaged 21,648, eighth highest in the state and second among urban districts. The urban mean was 22,732. Hearings per judge were 22,422 (urban mean 29,245) and hearings per case averaged 1.03 (urban mean 1.29).

In the J&DR district court, 6,634 new cases were reported with 11,780 hearings. This new caseload reflected a decrease of 7% from 1980. Hearings were down by 5%. Of the new cases, 61% or 4,041 were juvenile in nature. These juvenile cases showed a 12% decline from the previous year. Adult cases increased, however, rising 2% to reach 2,593 and comprising 39% of total caseload. Statewide composition of cases averaged 66% juvenile and 34% adult.

Each judge averaged 3,317 cases and 5,890 hearings. This case per judge ratio was sixth highest among urban districts. The hearings per case ratio stood at 1.78, below the urban mean of 1.92.

Nine magistrates were authorized in the Fourteenth district during 1981. They reported working 16,059 hours handling nearly 64,000 telephone calls and 7,000 in-person inquiries and reviewing 41,868 requests for processes. Of these requests, 89% or 37,271 resulted in the issuance of a process. Transactions and processes decreased by 7% and 6%, respectively, from the number reported in 1980.

Of the 8,967 requests for arrest warrants, 8,480 were issued: 1,374 for felonies, 6,538 for misdemeanors and 568 summonses. The magistrates received 10,692 requests for bonds, issuing 6,730 or 63%. Of the number issued, 3,764 were secured. Of the secured bonds, 82% were for misdemeanors. There were 80 search warrants issued. Committals and releases numbered 4,753 and 3,970, respectively.

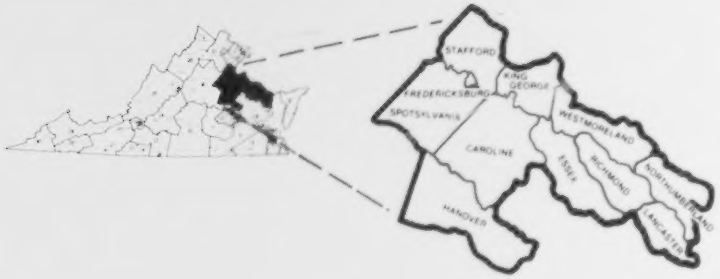
FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Fifteenth Judicial Circuit is comprised of ten counties: Caroline, Essex, Hanover, King George, Northumberland, Richmond, Spotsylvania, Stafford, Westmoreland and Lancaster and the city of Fredericksburg. According to the 1980 U.S Census, this area experienced an overall population growth of 38% from 1970 to reach a 1980 listing of 218,886. Within the circuit, the counties of Spotsylvania and Hanover showed the greatest percentage change. Spotsylvania grew by 110%, making it the fastest growing county in the state within this time period; Hanover county grew by 83%.

During 1981, the Fifteenth Circuit was authorized four judgeships which were filled by Dixon L. Foster, John A. Jamison, Richard H. C. Taylor and J. M. H. Willis, Jr. Population per judge was 54,722, a ranking of tenth in the state, above the mean of 47,317.

The judges of the Fifteenth commenced 4,603 new cases during 1981, a slight decline (1%) from 1980. Civil cases declined 7% while criminal cases grew 8%. Within the circuit, Essex County showed a decrease of 24% in their commenced caseload; Spotsylvania County declined by 23%. Richmond County, however, showed a 34% growth in commenced cases. Caseload composition was 24% law, 37% equity, 24% felony and 15% misdemeanor. State averages were 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor. Commenced cases per judge averaged 1,151 or twenty-second in the state. The state average was 1,279; rural average was 1,262.

Concluded cases grew 1% in number from 1980 to 1981 reaching 4,694 for the year. A 2% decline in civil cases was more than offset by an increase of 7% in the number of criminal cases which reached 1,775.

The number of jury trials was 248, 76% (189) of these being criminal, the remaining civil. The circuit utilized 230 days to hear these cases, 70% of this time used for hearing criminal trials.

Seventy-one percent of the 632 civil cases assigned trial dates were set at least 90 days ahead. There were 1,475 criminal cases held, 28% of which were not assigned in the present term. The age of concluded cases showed that 54% of the 2,919 completed civil cases met disposition within one year; 81% of the 1,775 concluded criminal cases were disposed of within five months of filing.

In the Fifteenth District, four general district judgeships were authorized for 1981. Serving were Andrew G. Conlyn, Robert R. Gwathmey III, J. Peyton Farmer and J. L. Savage. The juvenile and domestic relations district court was served by William J. Cox and J. Peyton Farmer. Judge Farmer replaced Judge Horace A. Revercomb, Jr., in the general district court, who retired on September 5, 1981. Judge Walther B. Fidler was appointed to fill the J&DR vacancy on May 5, 1982. The judges of the district used 219.7 substitute and retired recalled judge days, an average per judge of 36.6. This is 10 days greater than the state average, 26.6.

In 1981, 75,787 new cases were commenced and 74,938 hearings were held. These figures represent increases of 7% and 1%, respectively, from 1980 statistics. While criminal cases declined 2%, both traffic and civil cases increased, rising 12% and 1%, respectively. Caseload composition was 15% criminal, 64% traffic, 21% civil compared to state averages of 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil.

Within the district, Hanover County accounted for 21% of the commenced caseload and 72% of the total district growth for the year with an increase of 30% over 1980's reported cases. Richmond County reflected a 20% rise in caseload.

Cases per judge averaged 18,947, fourth among rural districts and above the rural mean of 16,976. There were 18,735 hearings per judge and the hearings per case ratio was 1.11.

In the J&DR district court, 8,057 new cases were reported, an increase of 6% from 1980's 7,568. Hearings also experienced growth, rising 4% to total 13,185. The new cases were composed of 68% juvenile and 32% adult cases. Juvenile cases reached 5,477, an increase of 5%. Adult cases grew by 8%.

Within the district, Hanover showed the greatest change in J&DR caseload with a growth of 29%. King George's caseload grew 20% from the previous year.

The district was fourth among rural districts in new cases per judge with a figure of 4,029, above the state (3,067) and rural (2,804) means for this measure. Hearings per judge reached 6,593 and hearings per case averaged 1.64.

Thirty-two magistrate positions were authorized for the Fifteenth, the largest number in any one district. These magistrates reported a total of 27,193 hours of activity during the year. They handled approximately 14,000 telephone calls and 5,000 in-person inquiries. The magistrates reported driving 93,493 miles during the year. They received 32,082 requests for processes. These transactions declined by 6% in 1981. Eighty-two percent of the requests ended in processes being issued. This was identical to the state average. Of the 12,368 requests for arrest warrants, 11,243 or 91% were issued. Statewide, magistrates issued 86% of the requested arrest warrants.

A total of 6,703 bonds were issued throughout the year. Of these, 44% were secured: 460 for felonies and 2,505 for misdemeanors. The magistrates received 86 requests for search warrants and issued 74. They handled 3,990 committals and 2,868 releases in 1981.

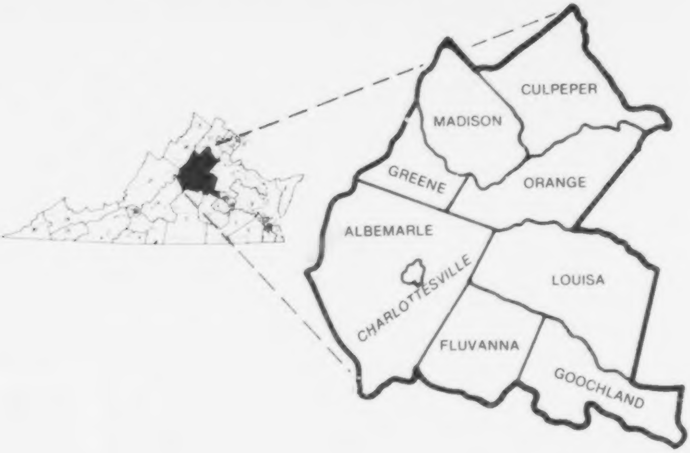
SIXTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Sixteenth Judicial Circuit is composed of eight counties: Albemarle, Culpeper, Fluvanna, Goochland, Greene, Louisa, Madison and Orange and the city of Charlottesville. Total area population grew to 194,069 in 1980 according to the U.S. Census, an increase of 26% from 1970. Albemarle and Greene counties showed the highest rate of growth, 48% and 45%, respectively.

The Sixteenth Circuit was authorized four judgeships in 1981 and these were filled by Vance M. Fry, David F. Berry, F. Ward Harkrader, and Herbert A. Pickford III. Judge E. Gerald Tremblay replaced Judge Fry who retired on February 2, 1982. The population per judge was 48,517, eighteenth among the 31 circuits.

The 1981 commenced caseload was 4,792, 4% or 172 greater than 1980's figure. This increase was the result of a decline of 55 civil cases and an increase of 227 criminal cases. Within the Sixteenth, increased caseloads were reported by Albemarle (12%), Culpeper (9%), Fluvanna (12%), Goochland (37%) and Madison (24%). Greene's caseload fell by 17%, Louisa's by 8%, Orange's by 10%, and Charlottesville's by 5%. The judges of the circuit averaged 1,198 commenced cases, less than the rural mean of 1,262.

The composition of the 1981 caseload was 18% law, 34% equity, 35% felony and 13% misdemeanor. The state's distribution was 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor.

Concluded cases numbered 4,630, 10% more than in 1980. Civil cases grew 4%; criminal cases by 17%. Two hundred sixty-nine jury trials were conducted in 1981. A total of 272 days were spent hearing these jury trials. The judges averaged 67 jury trials each in comparison to the state mean of 50.

Trial dates were assigned for 527 civil cases, 62% of which were set more than 90 days ahead. Of the 1,849 criminal cases set for trial, 32% or 584 were not set during the present term. Of the 2,342 civil terminations, 1,171 or 50% were concluded within one year of filing. Of the 2,288 criminal terminations, 1,869 or 82% met disposition within five months.

In 1981, the Sixteenth Judicial District was authorized six judgeships. Basil C. Burke, Jr., Stephen H. Helvin, Franklin J. Jenkins and D. B. Marshall served in the general district courts. William D. Reams, Jr. and Ralph P. Zehler, Jr. served the juvenile and domestic relations district court. The judges of the Sixteenth used 203.1 substitute days in 1981 averaging 33.9 days each.

The general district courts reported 71,427 new cases and 77,207 hearings in 1981 compared to 66,928 cases and 74,488 hearings in 1980. The 4,499 additional cases was the result of increases in all case types. Civil new cases rose by 12% or 623 cases. Criminal and traffic caseloads gained by 4% and 5%, respectively. Within the district, the greatest absolute changes were recorded in Culpeper and Charlottesville which had increases in new caseloads of 1,242 and 1,850, respectively. These increases represented respective percentage increases of 15% and 17% for each locality. Orange county showed a growth of 17% in new cases.

The general district court judges averaged 17,857 new cases and 19,302 hearings each which were well above the rural means of 16,976 new cases and 18,805 hearings per judge. On the average, 1.08 hearings were held per case compared to the rural mean of 1.11.

The 1981 J&DR caseload included 6,298 new cases, 10,638 hearings and 5,686 dispositions. The 7% increase in new cases resulted from 460 additional adult cases and 39 fewer juvenile cases. Nearly 66% of total new cases were juvenile in nature, identical to the state average distribution.

Within the district, increases in the new J&DR caseload were reported in six localities: Louisa (23%), Albemarle (13%), Goochland (11%), Charlottesville (8%), Fluvanna (7%) and Madison (6%). Respective decreases of 8%, 2% and 1% were reported for Greene, Orange and Culpeper.

The judges of the J&DR district court averaged 3,149 new cases and 5,319 hearings each. The 1981 rural values were 2,804 new cases and 5,146 hearings per judge. The hearings per case ratio of 1.69 fell below the rural mean of 1.84.

The Sixteenth is authorized twenty-two magistrate positions. On the average, the district received 43 telephone calls, 20 in-person inquiries and 115 requests for processes per day during the calendar year 1981. The total number of transactions, 41,802, reflected a 6% decrease from the previous year. Of those requests, 93% resulted in a process being issued. Statewide the figure was 82%. During the course of their 19,667 activity hours, the magistrates received 20,337 requests for arrest warrants. Of this number, 95% were issued. This was above the state average of 86%.

Of the 9,354 requests for bonds, a total of 5,726 unsecured bonds were issued. Seventy-five percent of the secured bonds issued were for misdemeanors. The magistrates reported issuing 3,693 civil warrants and 112 search warrants in 1981. Committals and releases numbered 4,382 and 3,307, respectively.

SEVENTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

Arlington County is the only locality in the Seventeenth Judicial Circuit. Based on the 1980 U. S. Census, Arlington's population was 152,599. This represents a 12% decline from the 1970 Census count of 174,284.

During 1981, the circuit was authorized four judgeships: Paul D. Brown, Charles H. Duff, Charles S. Russell and William L. Winston. Thomas R. Monroe replaced Judge Charles S. Russell who was elected to the Supreme Court of Virginia on March 1, 1982. The population per judge measure of 38,150 was twenty-fifth in the state and below the state average of 47,317.

The circuit commenced in 1981 4,157 cases, 498 more than in 1980 (a 14% increase). This increase was the result of 34 additional civil filings and 464 additional criminal cases. The judges of the circuit averaged 1,039 commenced cases, twenty-seventh among the state's 31 circuits.

The composition of the 1981 caseload was 18.7% law, 26.8% equity, 48.8% felony, 4.6% misdemeanor and 1.1% habeas corpus/post conviction. The state's distribution was 21.4% law, 34.1% equity, 28.2 felony, 16.0 misdemeanor and .3% habeas corpus/post conviction.

Concluded cases numbered 3,995, a 26% increase over 1980. Concluded civil cases increased by 10%; concluded criminal cases rose 58%.

Two hundred twenty jury trials were conducted in 1981. A total of 340 days were spent hearing these jury trials. The judges averaged 55 jury trials each in comparison to the state mean of 50.

Trial dates were assigned for 763 civil cases, 62% (472) of which were set for more than 90 days ahead. Of the 2,971 criminal cases set for trial, 27% (794) were not assigned in the present term. Of the 2,295 civil terminations, 33% (750) were concluded within one year of filing. Of the 1,700 criminal terminations, 61% (1,044) were disposed of within five months of filing.

The Seventeenth Judicial District was authorized five judgeships during 1981. Serving the general district court were Richard W. Corman, Joseph C. Gwaltney and Thomas R. Monroe. Francis Everett Thomas, Jr. replaced Judge Corman who retired February 1, 1982. Eleanor S. Dobson replaced Judge Monroe who was appointed to the Circuit Court on March 15, 1982. The J&DR district court was served by Andrew B. Ferrari and Berton V. Kramer. The judges used a total of 102.9 substitute and recalled retired judge days in 1981, an average of 20.6 days per judge. The state average was 26.6 days per judge.

Judges of the Seventeenth District reported 53,603 new cases and 66,245 hearings for 1981. The number of new cases increased 17% over 1980 figures while hearings were 12% greater. The increase in new cases was due to a 25% increase (1,235 cases) in criminal cases and a 20% increase (6,437 cases) in traffic cases. Civil cases were 25 fewer in 1981 than in 1980.

The caseload composition was 12% criminal, 73% traffic and 15% civil compared to state averages of 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil.

The new case per judge ratio was 17,868, tenth among the 14 urban districts and lower than the urban mean of 22,732. Hearings per judge averaged 22,082 (urban mean was 29,245) and the hearings per case ratio stood at 1.23.

The J&DR district court reported 3,055 new cases, 11,388 hearings and 3,019 dispositions. Both the number of new cases and hearings declined by 5% from 1980's figures. Adult cases declined by 9% to reach 601 while juvenile cases decreased by 5% to reach 2,454, or 80% of the total J&DR new caseload for 1981. The average state composition showed juvenile cases representing 66% of total caseload.

New cases per judge averaged 1,528, ranking fourteenth out of the 14 urban districts; hearings per judge were 5,694, lower than the urban mean of 6,353. The hearings per case ratio was 3.73, much above the urban mean of 1.92.

NOTE: The Seventeenth District is served by a Special Magistrate System (employees of the locality). Statistical information was not obtained from them during 1981.

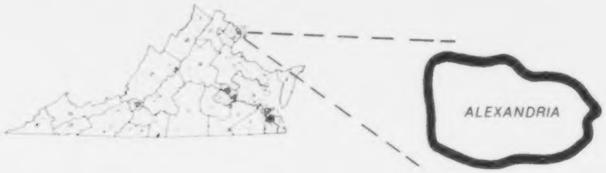
EIGHTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The City of Alexandria alone makes up the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit. Alexandria's population was 103,217 according to the 1980 U. S. Census. This is a 7% decline since 1970.

The circuit was authorized three judgeships in 1981. Serving were Albert H. Grenadier, Donald Hall Kent and Wiley R. Wright, Jr. The population per circuit court judge of 34,406 was twenty-seventh among all 31 circuits.

There were 3,476 commenced cases in the Eighteenth Circuit in 1981, a 5% increase from 1980. This change was the result of 8% more civil and 1% more criminal cases being commenced. Ranking twentieth among state circuits, the judges of the Eighteenth averaged 1,159 commenced cases each. The state and urban means were 1,279 and 1,292, respectively.

The composition of the 1981 caseload was evenly weighted between civil and criminal cases. Specific figures were 20% law, 30% equity (or 50% civil), 32% felony, 18% misdemeanor (or 50% criminal).

Concluded cases increased by 4% or 144 during the year. Concluded criminal cases showed a growth of 163 or 11% with the greatest growth occurring in the number of misdemeanor cases which rose by 25%.

Jury trials totaled 125. These trials occupied 102 days of the court's calendar. With an average of 42 jury trials per judge, the circuit was below the state average of 50.

Trial dates were set beyond 90 days of filing for 56% of the 249 civil cases scheduled for trial. Nearly 66% of the 842 criminal cases set for trial received dates not within the present term. The age of concluded cases reflected that 43% of the concluded civil cases were terminated within 12 months of filing; 79% of the concluded criminal cases reached disposition within five months of filing.

The district was authorized two general district court judsges and one juvenile and domestic relations district court judge for 1981. Judges Robert T. S. Colby and D. F. O'Flaherty heard general district cases while the juvenile and adult cases were handled by Judge Joseph L. Peters, Jr. The three judges of the district averaged 27.0 substitute and recalled retired judge days in 1981, slightly above the statewide average of 26.6 assistance days.

There were 41,551 new cases, 51,681 hearings and 41,745 dispositions reported in the general district court in 1981. New cases rose by 19%; hearings grew 16%. The growth in new cases was the result of an increase of 27% in traffic cases and an increase of 11% in civil cases. Criminal cases declined by 8%.

The district's 1981 caseload composition was 10% criminal, 66% traffic, 24% civil. Compared to the statewide percentages of 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil, the district is more heavily weighted with traffic cases.

Cases per judge averaged 20,776, ninth among urban districts and below both urban and state means, 22,732 and 19,949, respectively. The hearings per judge measure was 25,841 (urban mean 29,245); hearings per cases stood at 1.24 (urban mean 1.29).

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, a total of 2,382 new cases were reported with 6,915 hearings, representing declines of 168 new cases and 1,526 hearings. Decreases were noted in both juvenile and adult caseloads. Juvenile cases accounted for 70% of the new caseload compared to a state average of 66% juvenile cases. The new cases per judge of 2,382 was eleventh among urban districts. The urban mean for this measure was 3,321. Hearings per case averaged 2.90, higher than the urban average of 1.92.

NOTE: Special Magistrates (employees of the locality) served the Eighteenth District. Statistical information was not obtained from them for 1981.

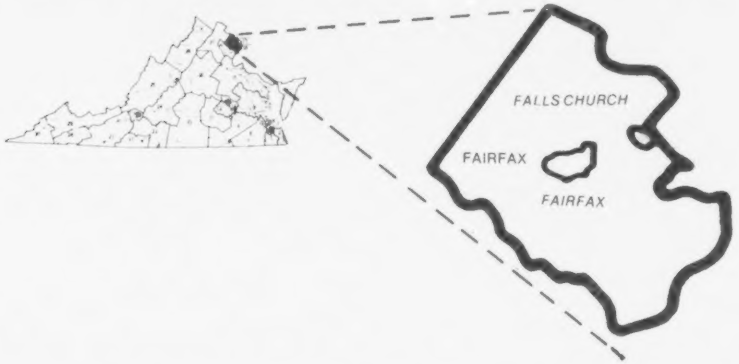
NINETEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Nineteenth Judicial Circuit is composed of the localities of Fairfax County and the cities of Fairfax and Falls Church. The reported 1980 population for the area was 625,806, representing a 28% increase since 1970. Fairfax county experienced a 31% rise in population while both cities of the circuit showed declines of 12% in their populations.

The circuit was authorized nine judgeships in 1981: F. Bruce Bach, James C. Cacheris, Lewis H. Griffith, Richard J. Jamborsky, Barnard F. Jennings, Thomas J. Middleton, Burch Millsap, Lewis D. Morris and William G. Plummer. Judge Barbara M. Keenan replaced Judge Cacheris on February 17, 1982, when he was elected to the Federal District Court. Two additional judgeships were granted effective July 1, 1982. The 1982 General Assembly elected Johanna L. Fitzpatrick and Quinlan H. Hancock to fill these positions. The population per circuit court judge was 69,534, third highest in the state. The state mean was 47,317.

The circuit reported 13,779 new cases commenced in 1981, a 12% increase from 1980. Civil cases grew 6% and criminal cases increased 26%. Only law cases showed a decline during the year and that decline was only 38 cases or 1%. The 1981 measure of commenced cases per judge was calculated at 1,531, above the state average of 1,279.

The 1981 commenced caseload composition was 25% law, 40% equity, 22% felony and 13% misdemeanor. Statewide averages were 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor.

Concluded cases numbered 13,342, 24% more than 1980's 10,767. The growth was the result of rises of 21% in civil and 30% in criminal concluded cases.

There were 532 jury trials during 1981 which required 681 days of the courts' calendar. Eighty-six percent of the 1,443 civil cases assigned trial dates were set at least 90 days ahead; 24% of the 3,569 assigned criminal cases could not be assigned within the present term. Of the 8,884 civil terminations, 39% were concluded within one year of filing. Meeting disposition within five months of filing were 3,765 (or 84%) of the 4,458 concluded criminal cases.

There were seven general district court judgeships authorized in the Nineteenth District. G. William Hammer, Richard T. Horan, Robert M. Hurst, Stuart P. Davis, Frank B. Perry III, Thomas J. Rothrock and J. Conrad Waters, Jr. served.

Judge Davis replaced Judge Barbara M. Keenan, who was appointed to the circuit court in February 1982. Five judges served the juvenile and domestic relations district court: Frank L. Deierhoi, Johanna L. Fitzpatrick, Thomas J. Fortkort, Arnold B. Kassabian and Michael J. Valentine. Judge Fitzpatrick was elected to the circuit court effective July 1, 1982. Gaylor L. Finch, Jr. will fill the J&DR vacancy on that date. The judges each used 26.9 substitute and recalled retired judge days on the average during 1981, very near the state average of 26.6.

The Nineteenth District reported 145,765 new cases, 176,111 hearings and 142,517 dispositions. New cases grew by 5% from 1980; hearings increased 4% and dispositions rose by 2%. Within the district, the city of Fairfax showed the greatest absolute and percentage growth. New cases there increased by 689 cases of 10%.

The district's growth in new cases was the result of increases in both criminal and civil cases, the one growing 3%, the other rising 33%. This increase in civil cases may be misleading since prior to 1981 the Fairfax County general district court did not report civil "no-service" cases. Traffic cases declined by less than one percent. Caseload composition was 14% criminal, 67% traffic and 19% civil. This compared to a state average distribution of 17% criminal, 51% traffic, 32% civil.

The judges of the Nineteenth general district court aveaged 20,824 cases, eighth highest among the 14 urban districts and below the urban mean of 22,732. Each judge heard 25,159 hearings on the average and there were 1.20 hearings per case.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, new cases totaled 17,364 or 6 fewer than in 1980. Hearings rose by 1,540 or 6% to reach 26,641. Adult cases grew 8% to 3,711 while juvenile cases, declining by 2%, accounted for 79% of total new commenced caseload. The average proportion of juvenile cases statewide was 66%.

The J&DR district court judges each handled an average of 3,473 cases, fifth among urban districts. Hearings per judge averaged 5,328, below the urban mean of 6,353. The hearings per case ratio was 1.53.

NOTE: Special Magistrates (employees of the localities) served this district. Statistical information was not obtained from them in 1981.

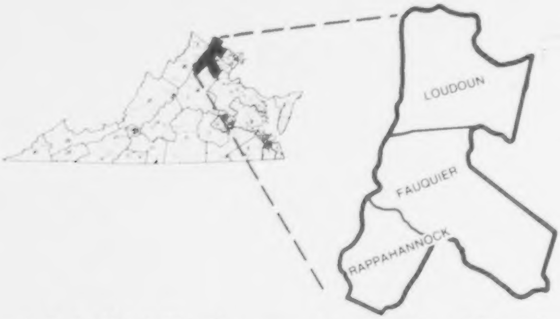
TWENTIETH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Twentieth Judicial Circuit serves the counties of Fauquier, Loudoun and Rappahannock. According to the 1980 U. S. Census, the circuit's population has grown 45% during the last decade. By county, the increases were 36% in Fauquier, 55% in Loudoun and 17% in Rappahannock. The total population was listed as 99,409 persons.

The circuit was authorized two judgeships, held by Carleton Penn and William S. Robertson. An additional judgeship was granted effective July 1, 1982, and the 1981 General Assembly elected Thomas D. Horne to fill the position. The population per judge of 49,705 was fourteenth highest among the state's circuits.

In 1981, the circuit commenced 2,487 new cases, an 18% increase from 1980. The commenced caseload grew in all categories, civil cases increasing 6% compared to a 41% rise in criminal cases. Misdemeanors showed a significant rise of 66%.

The commenced caseload composition was 21% law, 39% equity, 31% felony and 9% misdemeanor. The statewide distribution was 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor.

Each judge of the circuit averaged 1,244 cases, near the state average of 1,279 and rural average of 1,262.

Concluded cases numbered 2,123 or 130 more than the previous year. While the number of concluded civil cases changed by one case, criminal cases increased by 129 or 18%.

Eighty jury trials were held during 1981, 50 of which were for criminal cases. The court needed 98 calendar days to hear these jury trials. In the assignment of cases for trial, 74% of the 149 set civil cases were placed at least 90 days hence on the courts' calendar while 42% of the 372 assigned criminal cases were not fixed in the present term. Concerning cases terminated, 55% of the concluded civil cases met disposition within one year of filing; criminal cases were terminated at a rate of 65% within five months of the filing date.

The district was authorized two general district court judgeships and one juvenile and domestic relations district court judgeship. Serving the general district court were Archibald M. Aiken, Jr. and John Alexander. Judge A. Burke Hertz heard adult and juvenile cases. A second J&DR judgeship has been granted for the district effective July 1, 1982. John P. Ryan has been elected to fill this position. The three judges of the district used an average of 17.9 substitute and recalled retired judge days each, substantially below the state average of 26.6 days per judge.

During 1981, 27,545 new cases were commenced in the general district court, an increase of 2,682 cases from 1980. Hearings increased 11% to 32,317. Both criminal and traffic cases showed 13% growth during the year; civil cases grew by 2%. Within the district, new commenced caseloads grew in Fauquier and Loudoun counties by 9% and 14%, respectively. Rappahannock's caseload actually declined 7%.

The 13,773 cases per judge average ranked the district sixteenth among the 18 rural districts, below the rural mean of 16,976. Hearings per judge averaged 16,159 (rural average 18,805) and hearings per case were 1.17 (rural average 1.11).

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, there were growths of 9% and 3% respectively, in new cases and hearings. The new cases totaled 4,037 and hearings numbered 6,475. Adult cases accounted for 33% of the total J&DR commenced caseload and numbered 1,342, an 11% increase from 1980. Juvenile cases grew by 196 cases or 8%.

Ranking third among the state's rural districts, the Twentieth showed an average cases per judge of 4,037. The rural mean was 2,804. The hearings per case averaged 6,475 with 1.60 hearings per case reported.

Nine magistrates were authorized to serve the Twentieth Judicial District. They reported working 5,773 hours during 1981 receiving 5,943 telephone calls, 1,275 in-person inquiries and 12,358 requests for processes. In response to the requests, the magistrates issued 10,055 processes. The 81% rate of issuance for processes was comparable to the statewide average of 82%.

Requests for arrest warrants numbered 4,521. Ninety-three percent of these were issued including 700 for felonies, 2,870 for misdemeanors and 619 summonses. Statewide, magistrates issued 86% of the arrest warrants requested. The magistrates in the Twentieth issued 506 secured and 2,027 unsecured bonds. Twenty-five percent of the secured bonds involved felonies. The magistrates reported issuing 33 of the 36 requested search warrants. They processed 1,510 committals, 1,390 releases and 156 subpoenas during 1981.

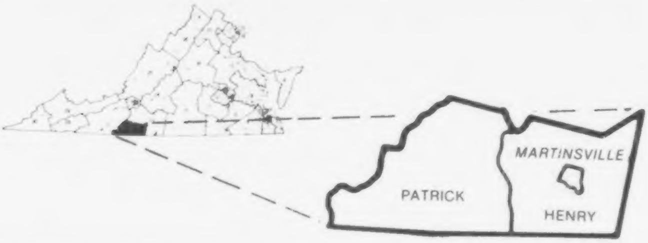
TWENTY-FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Twenty-First Judicial Circuit consists of Henry and Patrick counties and the city of Martinsville. The population of the circuit has increased by 9% since 1970, to total 93,450, according to the 1980 U. S. Census. Martinsville's population declined by 8% during the 1970-80 time period, while the counties of Patrick and Henry increased by 15% and 13%, respectively.

The circuit was authorized two judgeships during 1981 and was served by John D. Hooker and Frank I. Richardson. Kenneth M. Covington replaced Judge Hooker who retired January 31, 1982. The population per circuit court judge of 46,725 was slightly below the state mean of 47,317.

There were 3,149 commenced cases in the Twenty-First Circuit in 1981, a 15% decrease from 1980. This change was the result of 44 additional civil cases and 592 fewer criminal cases. All classes of circuit court cases showed declines save equity cases which grew by 22%. The circuit ranked second highest in the state with regards to commenced cases per judge with a figure of 1,575, well above the state mean of 1,279 and the rural mean of 1,262.

The commenced caseload composition was 22% law, 24% equity (or 46% in civil), 29% felony, 25% misdemeanor (or 54% in criminal). The statewide distribution was 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony, 16% misdemeanor.

The judges of the Twenty-First concluded 4% more cases in 1981 than in 1980, a total of 3,043 cases. This growth was due to a 13% increase in civil cases; criminal cases changed slightly, declining by four cases. The circuit also led the state in criminal cases concluded per judge with 1,038, nearly double the state average of 545. The 1,522 total cases concluded per judge was also substantially higher than the state average of 1,223.

There were 139 jury trials during the year. These trials required 126 days of the courts' calendar. Examination of assigned cases shows that 55% of the 193 civil cases assigned trial dates were set more than 90 days ahead. Eighteen percent of the 1,245 assigned criminal cases could not be set within the present term. There were 967 civil terminations and 60% of these (577) were disposed of within one year of filing. Of the 2,076 criminal cases concluded, 85% (1,757) met disposition within five months.

The Twenty-First District was served by two general district court judges and one juvenile and domestic relations district court judge in 1981. Serving were Kenneth M. Covington and J. Frank Greenwalt, Jr. Judge Charles M. Stone was appointed to replace Judge Covington who was elected to the Circuit Court in February 1982. Judge J. English Ford heard juvenile and domestic relations cases. The judges of the district used a total of 46.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days, or an average of 15.5 each.

Representing a 17% rise from 1980, new general district cases totalled 22,117 for the year. There were 24,151 hearings and 21,751 dispositions. Hearings grew by 7%; dispositions increased by 18%.

All categories of cases grew in number in 1981 with civil cases showing the greatest growth of 31% over 1980. Traffic and criminal cases rose by 11% and 4%, respectively. The caseload composition was 20% criminal, 35% traffic, 45% civil compared to a statewide composition of 17% criminal, 51% traffic, 32% civil.

Within the district, all localities showed increased caseloads. Henry County showed a 39% rise in civil cases and all categories of cases in Martinsville increased by nearly 25%.

The new cases per judge were 11,059. This was the lowest in the state. State and rural averages for this measure were 19,949 and 16,976, respectively. Hearings per case numbered 1.09.

In the juvenile and domestic relations area, 3,158 new cases, 4,067 hearings and 2,650 dispositions were reported. The new caseload was 10% less than in 1980. Hearings also fell, decreasing by 14%. The decline in new cases was due to declines in both adult and juvenile cases. Adult cases numbered 73 fewer and juvenile totaled 267 fewer than in the previous year. Juvenile cases represented 58% of the total caseload compared to the state average of 66%.

There was an average of 3,158 new cases and 4,067 hearings per judge. This caseload per judge was eighth highest among the 18 rural districts, above the rural mean of 2,804. The hearings per case ratio was 1.29.

Nine magistrates were authorized in the Twenty-First District. In 1981, they reported 12,674 hours of activity during which they received 22,210 telephone calls, 7,176 in-person inquiries and 28,381 requests for proceses. Transactions declined by 2% from the 28,843 reported in 1981. Ninety-seven percent of the requests for action ended in processes being issued in comparison to a statewide rate of 82%. Of the 6,245 arrest warrants requests, 6,063 or 95% were issued. Bond requests numbered 4,096, of which 1,293 unsecured and 2,041 secured bonds were issued. Of the secured bonds issued, 77% were for misdemeanors. The magistrates issued 8,078 civil warrants and 20 search warrants. Committals and releases numbered 1,810 and 2,838, respectively.

TWENTY-SECOND JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

FRANKLIN
PITTSYLVANIA
DANVILLE

Three localities comprise the Twenty-Second Judicial Circuit: the counties of Franklin and Pittsylvania and the city of Danville. According to the 1980 U. S. Census the population of the Circuit was 147,529, 11% higher than in 1970. While the counties of Franklin and Pittsylvania grew in population by 27% and 13%, respectively, Danville's population declined by 2%.

During 1981, the circuit was authorized three judgeships. Serving were Beverly A. Davis III, Samuel M. Hairston, and James F. Ingram. The population per judge was 49,176, sixteenth among the state's 31 circuits.

There were 4,540 commenced cases in 1980. This represented a 13% rise from the previous year. All categories of cases increased in number, felonies showing the greatest growth of 22%. Civil cases increased by 3%; criminal cases rose by 20%. Within the circuit, Pittsylvania showed the most substantial growth in total new caseload, 24%.

The 1981 caseload composition was 15% law, 26% equity, 35% felony, 24% misdemeanor. This composition shows a greater proportion of criminal cases (59%) than the statewide average of 44%.

Commenced cases per judge numbered 1,513, giving the Twenty-Second a ranking of fifteenth in the state, well above the state average of 1,279 and rural average of 1,262.

In 1981, 57 additional cases were concluded than in 1980 for a total of 4,566. This growth was the result of 111 fewer civil cases, a loss offset by 168 additional criminal cases.

Jury trials totaled 238 in the year, 84% of which were criminal trials. The court used 150 days to hear these trials. The jury trial per judge average of 79 was the third highest in the state, above the state mean of 50.

There were 473 civil cases assigned trial dates, 21% of which were set more than 90 days ahead. Nearly 4% of the 2,566 assigned criminal cases could not be set within the present term. Meeting disposition within one year of filing were 1,271 (or 72%) of the 1,769 terminated civil cases. Of the 2,797 criminal cases concluded, 2,735 (or 98%) were disposed of within five months.

There were two general district court judgeships authorized in 1981: T. Ryland Dodson and F. Nelson Light served. In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, Spiros B. Skenderis and Robert F. Ward served as authorized judges. The four judges of the district each used an average of 23.4 substitute and recalled retired judge days during the year compared to the state mean of 26.6 days per judge.

New cases numbered 36,645 (an increase of 3% from 1980) and hearings totaled 43,143 (an increase of 6%). Civil cases grew by 18% or 2,189 cases, more than offsetting declines of 1% and 7%, respectively, in criminal and traffic cases. Within the district, only Danville's new caseload increased and that was by 12% over 1980 figures.

The composition of caseload was 23% criminal, 37% traffic, 40% civil. Statewide composition was 17% criminal, 51% traffic, 32% civil.

Each judge averaged 18,323 cases, seventh highest among the 18 rural districts. The average number of hearings per judge was 21,572. The 1981 hearing per case ratio was 1.17.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, 5,172 new cases and 11,695 hearings were reported. Both of these measures showed declines from 1980 totals decreasing 13% in the category of new cases and 7% in hearings. Within the district, all localities showed declines in new caseload with the greatest percentage change occurring in Franklin County where a 20% drop was recorded. Juvenile cases accounted for 60% of the district's total caseload compared to a state average of 66% for these cases.

Per judge, there were on the average 2,586 cases, twelfth highest among the 18 rural districts and below the rural mean of 2,804. Hearings per judge were 5,848; hearings per case were 2.26.

The Twenty-Second was authorized twelve magistrates during 1981. During their 17,738 hours of activity, they received 14,866 telephone calls, 6,536 in-person inquiries and 43,334 requests for processes. Of this number, 84% resulted in processes being issued. This rate is comparable to the 82% reported statewide.

Requests for arrest warrants numbered 10,988 with 9,678 being granted. These included 1,351 for felonies, 7,495 for misdemeanors and 832 summonses. Nonsecured bonds totaled 3,983 of which 94% were for misdemeanors. Secured bonds included 491 for felonies and 1,390 for misdemeanors. Search warrants were granted for 98% of the 66 requests. Civil warrants, 11,532, accounted for 32% of the 36,532 processes issued during the year. Committals and releases numbered 5,020 and 3,940, respectively.

TWENTY-THIRD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

ROANOKE
SALEM
ROANOKE

Roanoke County and the cities of Roanoke and Salem comprise the Twenty-Third Judicial Circuit. This region serves as the pilot area for the Court Automated Information System. The population of the circuit was 197,123 according to the 1980 U. S. Census. This figure represents a nine percent increase over the number of residents reported in 1970. Roanoke City with a population of 100,220 accounts for 51% of the circuit's population.

During 1981 the circuit was authorized five judgeships. Judges Ernest W. Ballou, Jack B. Coulter and Kenneth E. Trabue sat in Roanoke City while Judges Frederick L. Hoback and Lawrence L. Koontz, Jr. held court in Roanoke county and the city of Salem. The population per judge figure of 39,425 ranked the circuit twenty-fourth among the 31 circuits, highest ranked first. The state average for this measure was 47,317.

The Twenty-Third commenced 6,625 cases in 1981, 7% more than 1980's 6,176 cases. Criminal cases increased by 449 cases or 7% while civil cases declined by 26 cases or 1%. The number of misdemeanors rose by 35% to reach 719. Within the circuit, Roanoke county showed a growth in caseload of 11%; Roanoke city's caseload increased by 5%. Salem, however, experienced a slight decline in the number of new cases, a decrease of 66 cases or 1%

The caseload composition for 1981 was 19% law, 32% equity, 38% felony, 11% misdemeanor. The circuit was more heavily weighted in felonies than the state average composition.

Ranking thirteenth in the state and above the urban mean of 1,292, the judges of the circuit each commenced an average of 1,325 cases.

There were 14% more concluded criminal cases and 3% fewer concluded civil cases in 1981, resulting in a total of 6,342 terminations or 4% more than those reported the previous year. Jury trials numbered 123 and 140 days were used to hear them. With an average of 25 jury trials per judge, the circuit was second lowest in the state along with the Second Circuit for this measure. The state mean was 50 jury trials per judge.

In the assignment of cases for trial dates, only 3% of the 325 set civil cases were placed 90 days ahead. In criminal cases, 21% of the 3,272 assigned cases were not set in the present term. Terminated within one year of filing were 1,579 or 48% of the 3,266 concluded civil cases. For concluded criminal cases, 88% or 2,722 were disposed of within five months.

The Twenty-Third district was authorized five general district judgeships in 1981. Serving were James P. Brice, Gerald O. Clemens, Charles O. Cornelison, Edward S. Kidd, Jr. and Arthur B. Crush, Jr. Judge Crush replaced Judge Norman P. Moore who retired on January 19, 1981. The judges of the Twenty-Third were designated to provide assistance to the Twenty-Seventh Judicial District during the year. The J&DR district court was authorized three judgeships and James W. Flippin, Frederick L. Hoback, Jr. and Roy B. Willett served. These judges used a total of 264 substitute and recalled retired judge days during 1981, an average of 33.4 days per district judge.

The district reported 75,868 new cases, 83,937 hearings and 69,432 dispositions. New cases increased by 11%, hearings by 6% from 1980. Dispositions showed a 16% increase. The increase in new cases was the result of 1,322 additional criminal, 5,535 additional traffic and 889 additional civil cases. Within the district, Roanoke county showed an increase in caseload of 25%, the greatest increase among the three localities.

The new cases handled per judge averaged 15,174 or next to the lowest among the 14 urban districts. There were 16,787 hearings per judge on the average compared to the urban mean of 29,245. The hearings per case ratio stood at 1.10.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, 9,847 new cases, 16,447 hearings and 7,616 dispositions were recorded. New cases declined 1% from 1980 while hearings were 7% fewer and dispositions 4% less than in the previous year. While adult cases rose by 174 cases or 6%, juvenile cases declined by 268 cases or 4%. Adult cases numbered 3,202; juvenile cases numbered 6,645.

Within the district, Salem showed an increase in J&DR cases of 7%; Roanoke county's caseload grew by 1%. The city of Roanoke experienced a 3% decline in cases, however.

New cases per judge averaged 3,282, or seventh among the 14 urban districts. The urban mean was 3,321. Hearings per judge averaged 5,482, below the urban mean of 6,353. The hearings per case ratio of 1.67 was also below the urban mean of 1.92.

Eleven magistrates were authorized in 1981 for the Twenty-Third district. They reported 18,369 hours of activity during which they received 24,139 telephone calls, 10,087 in-person inquiries and 75,667 requests for processes. Of the total requests, 54,082 processes were issued. During the year, the magistrates issued 17,218 arrest warrants. Of this number, 82% were for misdemeanors. Bond requests numbered 27,708 with 9,857 being issued. Of the 6,571 unsecured bonds, 95% were for misdemeanors. The magistrates issued 3,286 secured bonds, of which 1,311 were for felonies. Committals and releases numbered 12,883 and 11,697, respectively, for the year. The magistrates issued 176 search warrants and 1,983 subpoenas.

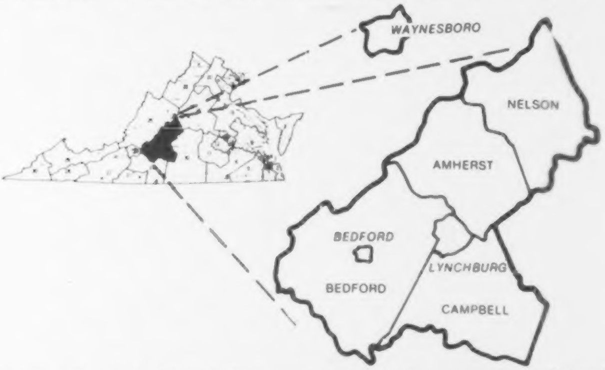
TWENTY-FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Twenty-Fourth Circuit is comprised of the counties of Amherst, Bedford, Campbell and Nelson and the cities of Bedford, Lynchburg and Waynesboro. The population of the circuit was listed as 209,740 by the 1980 U.S. Census. This population reflects a 14% increase over the 1970 census figure of 184,622. The city of Lynchburg and the surrounding Campbell County contained 53% of the circuit's population with 112,167 residents.

In 1981 the circuit was authorized four judgeships and was served by Robert C. Goad, J. Samuel Johnston, Jr., Norman K. Moon, O. Raymond Cundiff and William W. Sweeney. Judge Johnston replaced Judge Cundiff who retired on May 1, 1981. The population per judge of the circuit was 52,435, ranking the circuit twelfth highest throughout the state.

The Twenty-Fourth Circuit reported 5,185 commenced cases, an increase of 133 from 1980. Civil commenced cases rose by 2% from the previous year to reach 2,584; criminal commenced cases increased by 3% and totaled 2,601. Within the circuit, the caseloads of the cities of Lynchburg and Waynesboro declined by 2% and 14%, respectively. Amherst county showed the greatest percentage growth in the area with a caseload 16% greater than in 1980.

The four judges of the circuit averaged 1,296 commenced cases in 1981, thirteenth highest among the 31 circuits and above the rural mean of 1,262.

The composition of the 1981 caseload was 18% law, 32% equity, 32% felony and 18% misdemeanor. Statewide the distribution was 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor. Concluded cases showed a slight increase of 1% and totaled 5,105 for the year.

In 1981, 271 jury trials were held, occupying 253 days of the court's calendar. Trial dates were assigned for 705 civil cases, 51% (or 357) were set more than 90 days ahead. Of the 2,524 criminal cases assigned, 27% (or 670) could not be set in the present term. Fifty-six percent of the 2,627 civil terminations met disposition within one year of filing; concluded within five months were 2,230 (90%) of the 2,478 terminated criminal cases.

In the Twenty-Fourth district, four general district court judgeships were authorized in 1981. Serving were James S. Farmer, Leroy E. Glass, Coy M. Kiser, Jr., J. Samuel Johnston, Jr. and Richard S. Miller. Judge Miller filled the general district court vacancy created by the appointment of Judge J. Samuel Johnston, Jr. to the circuit court on May 1, 1981. Judge Glass has announced his intentions to retire on July 1, 1982. Three judgeships were authorized to serve in the juvenile and domestic relations district court. Lawrence Janow, W. Raymond Minnix and Earl W. Wingo served the district in this capacity. Judge Dale H. Harris replaced Judge Wingo who retired on January 3, 1982. The seven judges of the district used a total of 225.2 substitute and recalled retired judge days for an average of 32.6 days per judge. The state average for this measure was 26.6.

In 1981, the general district court reported 62,286 new commenced cases, 73,412 hearings and 60,320 dispositions. This new caseload was 2% greater than in 1980; hearings showed a growth of 8% from the previous year.

The growth in new cases was the net result of 18 additional criminal cases and 1,223 additional traffic cases. Civil cases fell by 282. Within the district, Lynchburg showed the greatest absolute growth in caseload with 1,476 additional cases this year or an increase of 6%. The caseload in Waynesboro also grew by 6% while that of Bedford and Nelson Counties declined by 12% and 3%, respectively.

The caseload composition was 23% criminal, 50% traffic, 27% civil, a composition more heavily weighted in criminal cases than the average statewide distribution which was 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil.

The judges of the district each averaged 15,572 cases during the year. This figure ranked the area twelfth among 18 rural districts and below the rural mean of 16,976. The state average was 19,949 cases per judge. There were an average of 18,353 hearings per judge and 1.17 hearings per case.

In the J&DR district court, 8,328 new cases, 17,580 hearings and 7,558 dispositions were reported. All three showed growth from the previous year's figures. New caseload increased by 1,132 cases or 16%; hearings rose by 731 or 4%; dispositions grew by 494 or 7%. Nearly 61% of the new caseload was juvenile cases compared to a state average of 66% juvenile.

The growth in new cases was due to an increase of 507 (11%) juvenile cases and an additional 625 (24%) adult cases. Within the district, Nelson county and Waynesboro showed declines of 9% and 5%, respectively, in total J&DR caseload. Lynchburg's caseload increased by 766 or 33% to reach 3,086; Amherst saw an increase of 245 new cases or 25% more than in 1980.

The judges of the juvenile and domestic relations district court each averaged 2,776 cases and 5,860 hearings in 1981. This caseload per judge ranked the district eleventh among the 18 rural districts whose average caseload per judge was 2,804. The hearings per case ratio was 2.11 compared to the rural mean of 1.84.

In 1981, the Twenty-Fourth District was authorized 19 magistrates. They reported working a total of 29,621 hours. During this time, they drove 54,036 miles, handled 30,469 telephone calls, 9,674 in-person inquiries and reviewed 41,550 requests for processes. Of the total number of requests, 82% resulted in processes being issued. This rate paralleled the statewide figures.

Requests for arrest warrants numbered 19,298 for the year. The magistrates issued 16,289 of these: 1,739 for felonies, 12,276 for misdemeanors and 2,274 summonses. Personal recognizance bonds issued totaled 8,088 while secured bonds included 475 for felonies and 959 for misdemeanors. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 8.7 for every ten requests. Committals and releases for the year were reported as 2,902 and 1,883, respectively.

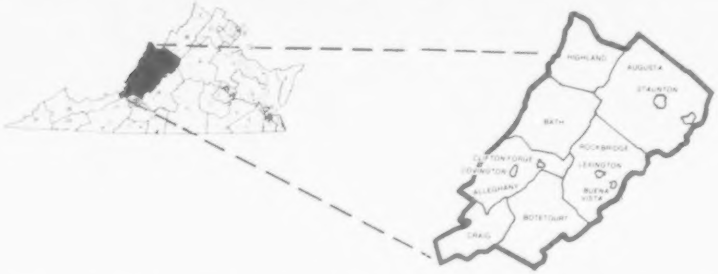
TWENTY-FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Twenty-Fifth Circuit is comprised of seven counties: Alleghany, Augusta, Bath, Botetourt, Craig, Highland and Rockbridge. The cities of Buena Vista, Clifton Forge, Covington, Lexington and Staunton are also included in the circuit. The population of the circuit was listed as 171,966 by the U.S. Census of 1980. This figure represents a 10% increase since 1970.

Judges Rudolph Bumgardner III, William S. Moffett, Jr. and Duncan M. Byrd, Jr. served the circuit court during 1981. Judge Byrd replaced Judge Roscoe B. Stephenson, Jr. who was elected to the Supreme Court of Virginia on March 1, 1981. The population per judge figure was 57,322; this was the sixth highest among the 31 circuits for this measure, well above the state mean of 47,317.

The 1981 commenced caseload was 4% higher than in 1980 with 197 additional cases. This caseload of 4,820 was the result of 163 additional civil and 34 additional criminal cases. Within the circuit, Bath county showed the greatest percentage increase in commenced cases which grew by 40%. Staunton's caseload declined by 175 cases or 23%. The city of Clifton Forge and counties of Rockbridge, Highland and Craig showed little or no increase in caseload.

The 1981 caseload composition was 16% law, 40% equity, 30% felony and 15% misdemeanor. The statewide distribution was 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor. Ranking first in the state, the circuit's commenced caseload per judge of 1,607 was well above the state mean of 1,279 and rural mean of 1,262.

Nearly 13% more cases were concluded in 1981 compared to 1980 totals. The 4,509 concluded cases reflected a 9% rise in civil and a 17% rise in criminal cases. Of the 2,327 concluded civil cases, 45% were disposed of within one year of filing. Of the 2,182 concluded criminal cases, 71% were cleared within five months.

There were 129 jury trials in 1981, occupying 108 days of the courts' calendar. Thirty-eight percent of the civil cases assigned trial dates were set at least 90 days ahead. For criminal cases, 17% of the 1,996 cases could not be assigned in the present time.

Seven judges served the Twenty-Fifth district in 1981: William E. Carson, Sr., Joseph E. Hess, Elmer C. Westerman, Jr. and Thomas H. Wood served the general district court while Robert S. Culpepper, John B. Curry II and Harrison May served the juvenile and domestic relations district court. Judge Carson replaced Judge Byrd in the district court on May 1, 1981. Judge May replaced Judge A. L. Larkum who died on December 21, 1981. The judges of the district each used an average of 29.9 substitute days during 1981 compared to a state average of 26.6 days per judge.

Reported in general district court for 1981 were 52,674 new cases, 57,676 hearings and 51,862 dispositions. The new caseload was 461 cases less than 1980's reported figure, a decline of 1%. Hearings, however, grew by 4%; dispositions were up by 2%. Criminal cases and civil cases declined respectively by 7% and 1%. Traffic cases rose by 1%.

Within the district, increases in new caseload were reported by five localities: Staunton (2%), Alleghany (4%), Botetourt (20%), Craig (20%) and Lexington (22%). Other jurisdictions showed declines ranging from 3% in Rockbridge to 25% in Buena Vista. The district's general caseload composition was 17% criminal, 64% traffic and 19% civil, a composition lower in civil cases than the statewide distribution of 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil.

Ranking next to lowest among 18 rural districts, the Twenty-Fifth averaged 13,169 new cases per judge; hearings averaged 14,419 per judge. The rural means for these measures were 16,976 and 18,805, respectively. The hearings per case ratio was 1.09.

In the J&DR court, 5,650 new cases, 9,869 hearings and 4,749 dispositions were reported. New cases declined by 3% or 164 cases; hearings, however, showed an increase of 2% or 236 hearings. Both adult and juvenile cases declined in 1981 compared to 1980. There were 129 fewer adult cases and 35 fewer juvenile cases. The number of juvenile cases constituted 69% of the total caseload; adult cases 31%. Statewide, the distribution was 66% juvenile and 34% adult.

Within the district, Alleghany reported an increase in new caseload of 23%. An increase of 19% was reported in Rockbridge county. Lexington showed a decline of 64% or 392 cases in their J&DR caseload. Other declines were reported as well: Highland (44%), Bath (19%), Botetourt (13%), Buena Vista (10%) and Augusta (5%).

The judges averaged 1,883 cases and 3,290 hearings each in 1981. This caseload per judge was next to the lowest among all 18 rural districts. The rural mean was 2,804. The rural case mean for hearings per judge was 6,353. The hearings per case ratio was 1.75 compared to the state average of 1.92.

Twenty-nine magistrates were authorized for the district during 1981. During the reported 23,712 hours of activity, they received 14,071 telephone calls and 10,476 in-person inquiries as well as 28,561 requests for processes. Ninety-two percent of these requests resulted in a process being issued, higher than the state average of 82%. The number of processes issued was 26,346.

The magistrates received 12,483 requests for arrest warrants, granting 92%. They included 1,432 for felonies, 9,740 for misdemeanors and 325 summonses. The number of bonds issued during 1981 was 6,092, of which 38% were secured. Secured felony bonds were reported as 463 for the year. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 8.4 for every ten requested. During the year, the magistrates issued 130 civil warrants and 1,256 subpoenas. Committals and releases totaled 3,999 and 2,696, respectively.

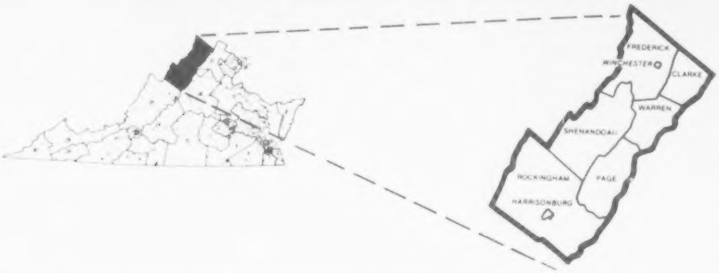
TWENTY-SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Twenty-Sixth Judicial Circuit contains the counties of Clarke, Frederick, Page, Rockingham, Shenandoah and Warren and also the cities of Harrisonburg and Winchester. According to the 1980 U.S. Census, the population of the circuit was 209,201. This figure represents a 24% increase since 1970. All jurisdictions experienced a growth in population during the decade with the most significant increases occurring in Rockingham (60%), Frederick (42%) and Warren (39%).

For the Twenty-Sixth circuit, three judgeships were authorized in 1981. Serving were Henry H. Whiting, Joshua L. Robinson and Robert K. Woltz. The three judges served an average of 69,734 residents each. This was the second highest population per judge figure in the state, well above the state mean of 47,317.

In 1981, there were 4,270 new cases reported in the circuit, an increase of 22% from 1980's 3,496. This growth was attributable to a decline of 1% in civil cases and a growth in criminal cases of 63%. Criminal cases rose by 792 cases to reach 2,042. Interestingly, the number of felony cases increased by 94% or 808 cases from 1980 to 1981 while the number of misdemeanors actually declined by 4% during the same period.

Within the circuit, the caseloads of Clarke county and the city of Winchester showed little change. However, all other jurisdictions showed significant increases in the number of new commenced cases. The percentage increases for these localities were as follows: Rockingham (17%), Frederick (20%), Page (37%), Warren (40%) and Shenandoah (42%).

The caseload composition for 1981 was 18% law, 34% equity, 39% felony and 9% misdemeanor. This composition showed a higher proportion of felony cases than the statewide distribution of 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor. The circuit ranked seventh highest in the state with 1,423 new cases per judge, well above the respective state and rural means for this measure of 1,279 and 1,262.

There were 4,060 cases concluded in 1981, an increase of 16% from 1980. Concluded civil cases rose by 10% while criminal cases increased by 25%. Of the 2,333 concluded civil cases, 52% (1,226) were terminated within twelve months of filing; 82% (1,410) of the 1,727 concluded criminal cases met disposition within five months.

There were 253 jury trials in the circuit which occupied 256 days of the courts' time. Each judge heard an average of 84 jury trials, a figure ranking second highest among the 31 circuits. The state mean was 50 jury trials per judge. Of the 336 civil cases assigned trial dates, 27% were set at least 90 days ahead. For the 1,091 criminal cases assigned, 36% were not set within the present term.

Six judgeships were authorized for the Twenty-Sixth district in 1981. Serving the general district court were Robert E. Hayes, John A. Paul, Harold G. Potts and David G. Simpson. Serving the juvenile and domestic relations district court were B. B. Bowers and Carle F. Germelman, Jr. The judges each used an average of 19.5 substitute and recalled retired judge days during the year.

There were 76,621 new cases and 83,860 hearings reported in the general district court in 1981. These measures represented increases of 5% and 4%, respectively, from the 1980 totals. The number of traffic cases showed the greatest growth, increasing by 2,905 cases or 7% to reach 46,469. Criminal and civil cases increased, the first by 1% and the latter by 4%. The caseload composition was more heavily weighted in traffic cases than the statewide distribution. For the district, the composition was 16% criminal, 61% traffic and 23% civil. Statewide, the composition was 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil.

Within the district, Clarke showed the greatest growth in new caseload with a 44% rise over 1980 totals. Winchester showed a 15% increase. Warren's caseload increased by nearly 10%, while in Shenandoah and Frederick increases of 8% were seen. Rockingham's caseload grew by 4%. Only Page showed a decline in this measure, one of 10%.

The general district court reported 19,155 cases per judge (third highest among rural districts), 20,965 hearings per judge and a hearings per case ratio of 1.09.

There were 7,403 J&DR new cases reported and 10,704 hearings. New cases increased by 8%, hearings grew by 9% from 1980 to 1981. There were 184 additional adult cases and 330 additional juvenile cases reported in 1981. Sixty-five percent of the total new caseload was composed of juvenile cases, very near the state average of 66% juvenile.

Within the district, all jurisdictions showed an increase in caseload except Frederick which reported one less J&DR case. Shenandoah showed the greatest growth with their caseload increasing 23%. A rise of 13% was reported in Clarke.

The district reported 3,702 J&DR cases per judge, on the average, 5,352 hearings per judge and 1.45 hearings per case. This caseload per judge figure ranks the district fifth among the 18 rural districts, above both state and rural means of 3,067 and 2,804, respectively.

Nineteen magistrates were authorized for the Twenty-Sixth District during 1981. The magistrates reported 20,725 hours of activity during which they received nearly 18,000 inquiries and 40,899 requests for processes. Of the total transactions, 34,897 processes were issued. This year's transactions and processes reflect respective increases of 4% and 2% from the number reported in 1980.

The magistrates of the district reported receiving 15,090 requests for arrest warrants of which 94% resulted in a process being issued. This was higher than the statewide percentage of 86%. Issued bonds included 6,735 unsecured and 2,535 secured. Of the secured bonds, 19% were for misdemeanors. Search warrants issued totaled 159. Committals and releases totaled 5,289 and 4,717 respectively, for the year.

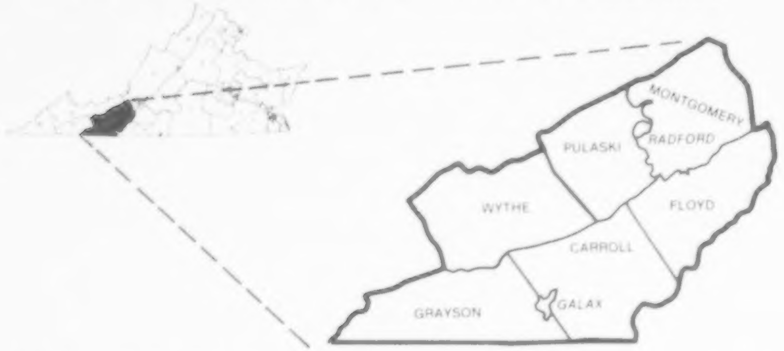
TWENTY-SEVENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Twenty-Seventh Judicial Circuit serves the southwestern counties of Carroll, Floyd, Grayson, Montgomery, Pulaski and Wythe and the cities of Galax and Radford. The population in 1980 was reported at 199,428 by the U.S. Census, a 21% increase over that of 1970. With an increase of 35%, Montgomery is the largest county in terms of population with 63,516.

The circuit in 1981 was authorized three judgeships. R. William Arthur, Kenneth I. Devore and Dale W. LaRue served the circuit. The population per judge based on the 1981 Census was 66,476 which ranks this circuit fourth highest throughout the state.

The judges of this circuit commenced 4,090 cases in 1981, an overall decrease of 3% from 1980 figures. These figures represent an increase in the civil caseload of 84 or 4% and a decline in criminal cases of 204 or 11%. Carroll, Grayson, Wythe and Radford all showed increases of 11%, 11%, 9% and 15%, respectively. However, Floyd's commenced caseload declined by 3%. Montgomery and Pulaski showed respective decreases of 6% and 22%. The judges commenced an average of 1,363 cases, 84 more than the state mean of 1,279. As a result, the Twenty-Seventh circuit ranks eleventh among the 31 circuits statewide in the measure of commenced cases.

The composition of the circuit's commenced caseload was 20% law, 39% equity, 27% felony and 14% misdemeanor. This composition compared favorably to the statewide composition of 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor.

In 1981, 4,069 cases were concluded, 267 (7%) more than the 3,804 cases reported in 1980. Civil cases concluded totaled 2,386 and criminal terminations were reported as 1,683.

Jury trials totaled 159 in 1981. Jury days numbered 140. Each judge averaged 53 jury trials, three more than the state mean of 50.

In assigning trial dates for the 365 civil cases, 127 (35%) were set more than 90 days in advance. In the criminal area, 1,430 cases were set for trial, 373 (26%) of which were not assigned in the present term. The age of concluded cases indicated that 57% or 1,355 of the 2,386 civil terminations met disposition within one year of filing. For the 1,683 criminal terminations, 1,502 (89%) were cleared within five months of filing.

The Twenty-Seventh district was authorized three general district judgeships in 1981. George B. Cooley, James H. Joines and John C. Snidow, Jr. served the district. The district also received assistance from the judges of the Twenty-Third district during 1981. Judges William F. Thomas, Jr., G. Garland Wilson and James L. Tompkins, III served the juvenile and domestic relations district court. Judge Jacque W. Pierce replaced Judge Wilson who retired on March 1, 1982. The third judgeship for the juvenile and domestic relations district court was granted effective July 1, 1981. The J&DR judges of the Twenty-Seventh also provide assistance to the Twenty-Eighth juvenile and domestic relations courts. The judges of the district averaged 34.3 substitute days each, compared to the state average of 26.6 days.

The general district courts had 53,179 new cases and 58,732 hearings in 1981, reflecting less than a one percent increase over the caseload reported in 1980. Criminal new cases declined by 1,248 to total 12,153 for the year, a decrease of 9%. Traffic and civil cases numbered 27,759 and 13,267, respectively, the first showing an increase of 1% over 1980 figures, the latter a rise of 12%. The new caseload was weighted 23% criminal, 52% traffic and 25% civil. The statewide distribution was 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil.

Within the district, Grayson, Montgomery and Pulaski showed declines in new cases of 11%, 10% and 3%, respectively. Galax showed an increase of 43% while Radford's caseload rose 24%.

The general district judges averaged 17,726 new cases and 19,577 hearings each. In new cases per judge the district ranked tenth among the 18 rural districts whose average was 16,976 new cases per judge. The hearings per case ratio was 1.10, very near the rural mean of 1.11.

The two judges of the J&DR district court handled 6,656 new cases and 11,341 hearings during 1981. New cases declined by 312 or 5% while hearings remained nearly unchanged with an increase of only 32 (0.3%). A 2% decline in adult cases was accompanied by a 6% decline in juvenile cases. The new caseload was weighted 39% adult and 61% juvenile.

Within the district, the most significant growth in new cases occurred in Galax and Grayson where increases measured 33% and 25%, respectively. Pulaski reported a decline of 22% in new cases; in Wythe, new cases fell by 7%.

The judges of the Twenty-Seventh averaged 2,377 J&DR district court new cases and 4,050 hearings each in 1981, below the rural averages of 2,804 new cases and 5,146 hearings per judge. The hearings per case ratio of 1.70 fell below the rural mean of 1.84.

The Twenty-Seventh District was authorized twenty-three magistrates during 1981. During the 41,814 hours of activity, the magistrates recorded 37,351 telephone calls, 13,132 in-person inquiries and 57,036 requests for transactions. For these requests, 50,031 processes were issued.

The magistrates handled 18,232 requests for arrest warrants, issuing 1,947 for felonies, 12,378 for misdemeanors and 1,586 summonses. Bond transactions numbered 12,479, of which 70% were issued. Non-secured issued bonds totaled 6,254. Of the 2,527 secured bonds, 72% were for misdemeanors. Search warrants were issued at a rate of 8.4 per ten requests. The magistrates processed 10,995 civil warrants and 2,643 subpoenas. Committals and releases were reported as 5,350 and 5,338, respectively.

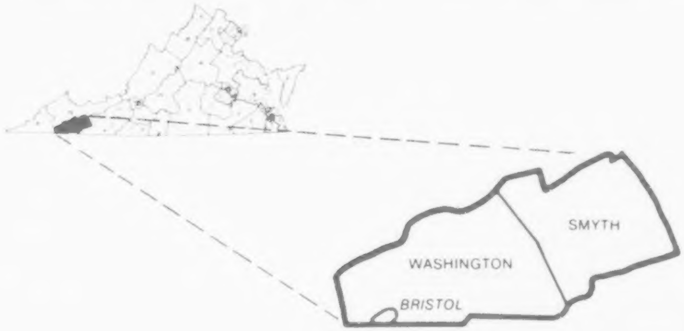
TWENTY-EIGHTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Twenty-Eighth Circuit serves the counties of Smyth and Washington and the city of Bristol. The 1980 U.S. Census lists the population of the area as 98,895, a 14% increase over the number reported in 1970. Within the circuit Washington and Smyth counties grew by 29% and 6%, respectively. The city of Bristol was listed as having 612 fewer residents, a decline of 3%.

The circuit was authorized two judges during 1981 and was served by Wayne L. Bell and J. Aubrey Matthews. Judge Charles B. Flannagan II replaced Judge Bell who retired on December 1, 1981. The population per judge was 49,448, slightly above the statewide average of 47,317.

During 1981, the circuit commenced 2,181 cases, 146 fewer than 1980's 2,327. Civil filings were fairly stable with less than a one percent decline while the criminal commenced cases declined by a more substantial 14%. The localities of the circuit reported the following changes in commenced caseloads for 1981: Symth reported a decline of 7 cases or 1%; Washington reported a decline of 169 or 20%; Bristol showed an increase of 16 cases or 3%. The judges of the Twenty-Eighth averaged 1,091 new cases each, ranking the circuit twenty-fourth among the 31 circuits.

There were 2,356 cases terminated in the circuit in 1981, representing a 15% increase over the 2,058 concluded the previous year. Civil conclusions rose by 38%; criminal concluded cases increased by 12%.

There were 78 jury trials in 1981, 58 fewer than the year before. Jury trials occupied 90 days. The two judges of the circuit averaged 39 jury trials each, below the state mean of 50.

In assigning trial dates for the 298 civil cases, 18% or 55 cases were set beyond 90 days. Of the 588 criminal cases set for trial, only 6% or 37 cases were not given dates in the present term. The age of concluded cases indicated that 52% of the 1,513 civil cases concluded reached disposition within twelve months of filing. Of the 843 terminated criminal cases, 672 or 80% were concluded within five months.

The Twenty-Eighth Judicial district was authorized two general district court judgeships and one for the juvenile and domestic relations district court during 1981. An additional J&DR district court judgeship was granted effective July 1, 1982. Francis M. Hoge and T. L. Hutton, Jr. served the general district and Charles H. Smith, Jr. sat in the juvenile and domestic relations court. During 1981, the J&DR courts received assistance from the judges of the Twenty-Seventh Judicial District. The 1982 General Assembly elected Eugene E. Lohman to fill the new J&DR judgeship position. The district's judges used 68.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days in 1981, averaging 22.9 per judge.

The district's 1981 general district caseload was reported as 29,641 new cases and 29,216 hearings, representing increases of 5% and 1%, respectively. Criminal cases grew by only 50 cases or 1% while traffic cases increased by 1,480 or 9%. Civil filings declined by 266 or 6%. Within the district, Smyth reported a 2% increase in commenced new cases; Bristol reported a 29% increase. In Washington, new cases declined by 1,333 cases or 11%.

The composition of the 1981 caseload was 25% criminal, 61% traffic and 14% civil. The statewide composition was 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil. The judges of the district averaged 14,821 new cases and 14,608 hearings each, measuring below the rural values of 16,976 new cases and 18,805 hearings per judge. On the average, 0.98 hearings were held for each of the district's cases. The rural ratio was 1.11.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, 4,420 new cases were reported with 7,796 hearings. This caseload is 3% fewer than 1980's 4,557, a decline of 137 cases. Total hearings, however, showed an increase of 2%. The decline in caseload was due to a decrease of 358 cases or 12% in juvenile cases and an increase of 221 cases or 15% in adult cases. The 1981 caseload was composed of 60% juvenile and 40% adult cases. The statewide distribution was 66% juvenile and 34% adult.

Within the district, Smyth and Bristol reported increases of 19% and 13%, respectively, in their J&DR court caseloads. Washington's caseload declined by 25%.

The judges (with 0.2 FTE from the 27th) of the juvenile and domestic relations district court each averaged 3,683 new cases and 6,497 hearings. This caseload per judge measure was sixth highest among the 18 rural districts, above both state and rural means of 2,804 and 3,067, respectively. The hearings per case ratio stood at 1.76.

Eleven magistrate positions were authorized in the Twenty-Eighth District during 1981. The magistrates reported 12,575 hours of activity during which they received over 14,500 telephone calls and in-person inquiries and handled 28,978 requests for processes. These transactions reflected a 16% decline from the 34,293 reported in 1980. Processes issued also declined, totaling 26,315. Processes were issued for 91% of the requests which was above the statewide percentage of 82%.

For the 10,152 requests for arrest warrants, 8,962 were issued. These included 921 felony arrest warrants, 7,704 for misdemeanors and 337 summonses. The magistrates handled 7,895 bond requests, granting 5,572. Of the 1,841 secured bonds, 16% were for felonies. Committals and releases numbered 4,652 and 4,918, respectively, for the year.

TWENTY-NINTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT

BUCHANAN
DICKENSON
TAZEWELL
BLAND
RUSSELL

The Twenty-Ninth Judicial Circuit serves the southwestern Virginia counties of Bland, Buchanan, Dickenson, Giles, Russell and Tazewell. The population of the area increased by 22% from 1970 to reach 164,226 as reported by the 1980 U.S. Census. All jurisdictions within the circuit showed increases in the number of residents. Tazewell, Buchanan and Russell continued to constitute over 70% of the circuit's population.

The circuit's three judgeship authorizations were filled by Nicholas E. Persin, Glyn R. Phillips and Robert Lee Powell. Tne population per judge was listed as 54,742, ninth highest in the state and above the state mean of 47,317.

The 1981 commenced caseload was 4,224, an increase of 11% or 419 over 1980's 3,805. This increase was the result of 85 additional civil and 334 additional criminal cases. Within the circuit, all jurisdictions reported increases in caseload except Tazewell where new cases declined by 95 or 7%. Increases for other localities ranged from less than one percent in Giles to 32% in Russell. Buchanan reported a 25% rise in caseload; Bland's new caseload increased by 30%.

The composition of the 1981 caseload was 29% law, 30% equity, 21% felony and 20% misdemeanor. This composition was more heavily weighted with law and misdemeanor cases than the statewide distribution of 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor.

The circuit court judges each averaged 1,408 new cases, ninth highest among the state's 31 circuits.

Concluded cases totaled 4,027 or 20% more than in 1980 when 3,354 terminations were reported. Civil terminations increased by 16% to reach 2,343. Fifty percent of these concluded civil cases were disposed of within one year of filing. Criminal terminations rose by 26% to reach 1,684. Of these cases, 1,329 or 79% met disposition within five months.

There were 533 civil cases assigned trial dates in 1981, 11% of which were set at least 90 days ahead. Of the 1,831 criminal cases assigned, 28% were not heard in the present term.

The judges of the circuit heard 233 jury trials using 193 days during 1981. This was an average of 78 jury trials per judge, a measure fourth highest in the state and well above the state mean of 50.

The Twenty-Ninth Judicial District was authorized three general district judges: Thomas J. Bondurant, Wade S. Coates and Pat B. Hale. The juvenile and domestic relations district courts were served by Charles B. Andrews and Susan Bundy. The judges of the district used 74.0 substitute days, averaging 14.8 days per judge. This measure was below the 26.6 substitute days per judge statewide.

There were 43,798 new cases and 52,268 hearings in the general district court in 1981. New cases showed a decline of 2% or 723 from 1980 while hearings rose by 3% or 1,738. This decline in new cases was due to a 15% drop in civil cases while criminal and traffic cases increased by only 6% and 3%, respectively.

Within the district, caseloads declined in Bland (12%), Buchanan (2%) and Dickenson (3%). Increases were reported in Giles (11%), Russell (9%) and Tazewell (8%). The total district new caseload composition was 25% criminal, 49% traffic and 26% civil. This shows a higher proportion of criminal cases than the statewide distribution of 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil.

The general district court judges each averaged 14,599 new cases and 17,423 hearings in 1981. This caseload was fifteenth among 18 rural districts and below the rural mean of 16,976 new cases per judge. The hearings per case ratio was 1.19, slightly above the rural average of 1.11.

In the J&DR court, 5,704 new cases and 10,363 hearings were reported, increasing from 1980. The rise in caseload was attributable to 272 additional adult and 42 additional juvenile cases. Within the district, Dickenson showed the greatest increase in new cases reporting an additional 205 or 49% in 1981. In Bland, new cases declined by 25%.

The district showed a higher proportion of adult cases (42%) than statewide (34%). The judges each averaged 2,852 cases during the year, slightly above the rural district average of 2,804. Each judge averaged 5,182 hearings. The hearings per case ratio was 1.82.

Twenty-one magistrates positions were authorized for the Twenty-Ninth District during 1981. They reported 23,614 hours of activity, 21,753 telephone calls and 10,733 in-person inquiries. The magistrates received 5% more requests for processes than reported in 1980. Of the 57,998 requests, 85% resulted in a process being issued. Statewide this value was 82%. The 49,327 processes included 12,430 arrest warrants and 9,107 bonds. Arrest warrants were issued at a rate of 8.9 per ten requested and bonds at 6.2 per ten requested. Of the 4,286 secured bonds, 16% or 683 were for felonies. The magistrates of the district issued 8,225 civil warrants and 62 search warrants. Committals and releases for 1981 numbered 6,119 and 6,551, respectively.

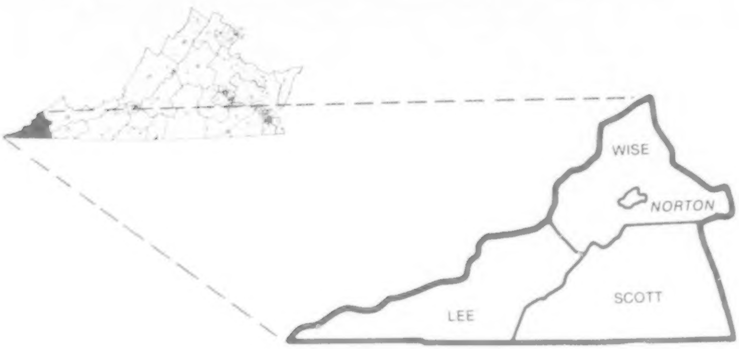
THIRTIETH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Thirtieth Judicial Circuit is made up of the counties of Lee, Scott and Wise. All three counties showed increases in population over the decade 1970-1980. According to the 1980 U.S. Census, the area's population was 99,644, 17% greater than in 1970.

Effective July 1, 1981, the Thirtieth Judicial Circuit was authorized three judgeships. S. W. Coleman III, M. M. Long, Jr., and John Robert Stump served the circuit. The population per judge was 33,215, ranking twenty-eighth among the state's 31 circuits. The state average for this measure was 47,317.

The 1981 commenced caseload totaled 3,502, 5% less than 1980's reported 3,690. There were four fewer civil cases and 184 fewer criminal cases in 1981 than in 1980. Within the circuit, all jurisdictions showed a decline in commenced cases. The greatest decrease was in Lee County which recorded 110 fewer cases, a drop of 11%.

The new caseload composition was 31% law, 30% equity, 20% felony and 19% misdemeanor. This hows a greater proportion of law and misdemeanor cases than the statewide distribution of 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor. The new caseload per judge figure of 1,167 ranked nineteenth in the state, below the respective state and rural averages of 1,279 and 1,262 cases.

There were 1,768 civil and 1,128 criminal cases concluded in the circuit in 1981. These represent declines in both categories from 1980 of 5% and 26%, respectively. The total number of concluded cases totaled 2,896, a 14% decline from 1980's 3,385 terminations. Of the civil terminations, 53% (943) were disposed of within 12 months of filing. Nearly 75% (851) of the criminal cases concluded met disposition within five months.

The number of jury trials was 223, 21% fewer than in 1980. These trials occupied 199 days of the court's calendar. The jury trial per judge average of 74 was above the state average and ranked fifth highest throughout the circuits. Of the 557 civil cases assigned trial dates, 39% (217) were set at least 90 days ahead. There were 1,890 criminal cases assigned dates and 8% (153) of them could not be heard in the present term.

Two general district court judgeships were authorized to serve in the Thirtieth District in 1981. William C. Fugate and Montie S. Meeks served as judges. In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, one judgeship was authorized with Richard E. Smith serving. An additional juvenile and domestic relations court judgeship was granted effective July 1, 1982. James C. Robertson was elected to fill the position. The judges of the district used 97.6 substitute and recalled retired judge days in 1981.

The general district courts handled 30,911 new cases, 46,207 hearings and 29,841 dispositions during the year. The decline of 5% in caseload was due to 5% (704) fewer traffic and 15% (1,318) fewer civil cases. Criminal cases increased by 5% (512). Within the district, all jurisdictions reported declines in new cases: Lee County reported a 9% decrease while Scott and Wise counties showed respective declines of 12% and 1%.

The new caseload composition was 33% criminal, 42% traffic and 25% civil. This gives the district a greater proportion of criminal cases than the statewide distribution of 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil.

Ranking thirteenth in the rural districts, the measure of new cases handled per judge averaged 15,456. There were 23,104 hearings per judge in 1981 and the hearings per case ratio was 1.49.

In the juvenile and domestic relations district court, 4,223 new cases, 9,339 hearings and 3,915 dispositions were reported. With adult cases increasing by 21% and juvenile cases showing an increase of 4%, the total new juvenile and domestic relations caseload grew by 12% or 447 cases. Hearings increased by 23% from 1980 to 1981.

Within the district, Lee and Wise counties reported increases in new caseloads of 8% (83) and 23% (485), respectively. Scott county's caseload declined by 18% (121). The district overall showed a greater proportion of adult cases (49%) than the statewise measure of 34% adult and 66% juvenile cases.

Judge Smith averaged 4,224 new cases and 9,339 hearings during the year. This figure was the second highest among the 18 rural districts whose average caseload per judge was 2,804 cases. The hearings per case ratio was 2.21 compared to a rural average of 1.84.

During 1981, twelve magistrate positions were authorized for the Thirtieth District. The magistrates reported 19,020 hours of activity during which they received 7,106 telephone calls and 4,284 in-person inquiries. They handled 34,065 requests for processes, which reflected a 32% increase over the 25,835 reported in 1980.

The magistrates issued 9,306 arrest warrants, of which 1,465 were for felonies; 7,394 for misdemeanors; and 447 summonses. Bond processes numbered 6,560 for 1981. Of the 4,194 secured bonds, 17% were for felonies. The magistrates of the Thirtieth reported issuing 109 search warrants and 4,482 civil warrants during the past year. Committals and releases numbered 5,044 and 4,063, respectively.

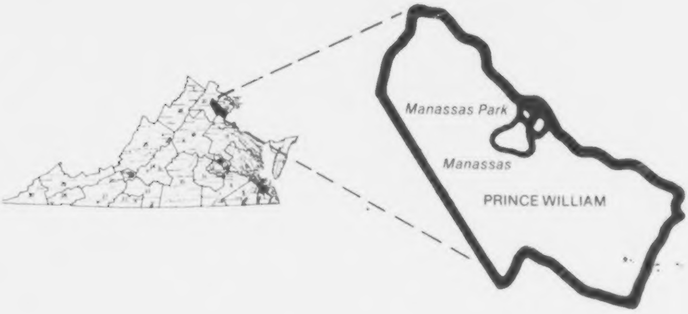
THIRTY-FIRST JUDICIAL CIRCUIT AND DISTRICT



The Thirty-First Judicial Circuit includes Prince William County and the cities of Manassas and Manassas Park. The 1980 U.S. Census lists the population of the area as 166,665. This population figure reflects an increase of 50% over the 1970 population.

The circuit was authorized three judgeships in 1981. H. Selwyn Smith, Percy Thornton, Jr., and Herman A. Whisenant, Jr., served the circuit court. The population per circuit court judge was 55,555, eighth highest throughout the state.

In 1981, the circuit commenced 3,737 cases, up 11% from the previous year. Civil and criminal filings increased 5% and 26%, respectively. The 1981 commenced caseload per judge was 1,246, slightly below the state average 1,279.

The composition of the commenced caseload was 27% law, 40% equity, 24% felony and 9% misdemeanor. This distribution varied from the statewide composition of 22% law, 34% equity, 28% felony and 16% misdemeanor.

Terminations increased by 23% during the year and totaled 3,916. Civil terminations increased by 708 or 33%, while 25 or 3% more criminal cases were concluded.

Jury trials numbered 119 for the year to reflect an increase of 13% from 1980's 105. The judges averaged 40 jury trials each compared to the state value of 50. The court needed 155 days to hear jury trials.

Trial dates were assigned to 375 civil cases of which 65% were set ahead more than 90 days. Forty percent of the 1,141 criminal cases scheduled for trial were not assigned dates in the present term. Nearly half of the 2,887 concluded civil cases received a disposition within 12 months of filing. On the criminal side, 80% of the 1,029 terminated cases were concluded within five months.

The general district court was authorized three judgeships in 1981, the third judgeship being granted effective July 1, 1981. Serving this court were Frank A. Hoss, Jr., and William R. Murphy. Joseph A. Gallagher assumed the bench when the third judgeship became effective. Patrick D. Molinari and Raymond O. Kellam served the juvenile and domestic relations district court with Judge Molinari replacing Judge Gallagher when he assumed the general district court judgeship. The judges used a total of 99.7 substitute days in 1981.

The 1981 general district caseload included 65,271 new cases, 69,972 hearings and 64,371 dispositions. New cases reflected a 10% increase over the number reported in 1980. Hearings increased by 15%. Criminal cases declined by 1,213 or 13%. Traffic and civil cases increased by 4,817 (11%) and 2,360 (30%), respectively. The 1981 caseload composition was 12% criminal, 72% traffic and 16% civil. Compared with the statewide breakout of 17% criminal, 51% traffic and 32% civil, the district was weighted more heavily with traffic cases.

New cases per general district judge averaged 21,757, below the urban mean of 22,732, and ranked the district sixth among the 14 urban districts. Hearings per judge, 23,324, was lower than the urban average of 29,245. The hearings per case ratio was 1.07.

The juvenile and domestic relations caseload reported an increase of 8% to total 8,592 new cases for 1981. This growth was the result of 322 (21%) additional adult cases and 304 (5%) additional juvenile cases. Hearings decreased by 6% to reach 15,578 for the year. The caseload composition was 79% juvenile and 21% adult, a composition more heavily weighted with juvenile cases than the statewide distribution of 66% juvenile and 34% adult.

The Thirty-First's 4,296 new cases per judge ranked the district third among the urban districts for this measure. Hearings per judge averaged 7,789 (urban mean 6,353) and the hearings per case ratio was 1.81 (urban mean 1.92).

Eleven magistrates were authorized for the Thirty-First District during 1981. They reported receiving 50,781 requests for processes during their 17,261 hours of activity. Eighty-two percent of the requests resulted in a process being issued. This is identical to the statewide average.

Of the 12,316 requests for arrest warrants, the magistrates issued 1,360 felony warrants, 9,354 misdemeanor warrants and 738 summonses. Secured bonds totaled 2,459 or 29% of all bonds issued. Of the total secured bonds, 559 were for felonies. During 1981, 70 search warrants and 423 civil warrants were granted. Committals and releases numbered 7,317 and 6,380, respectively.

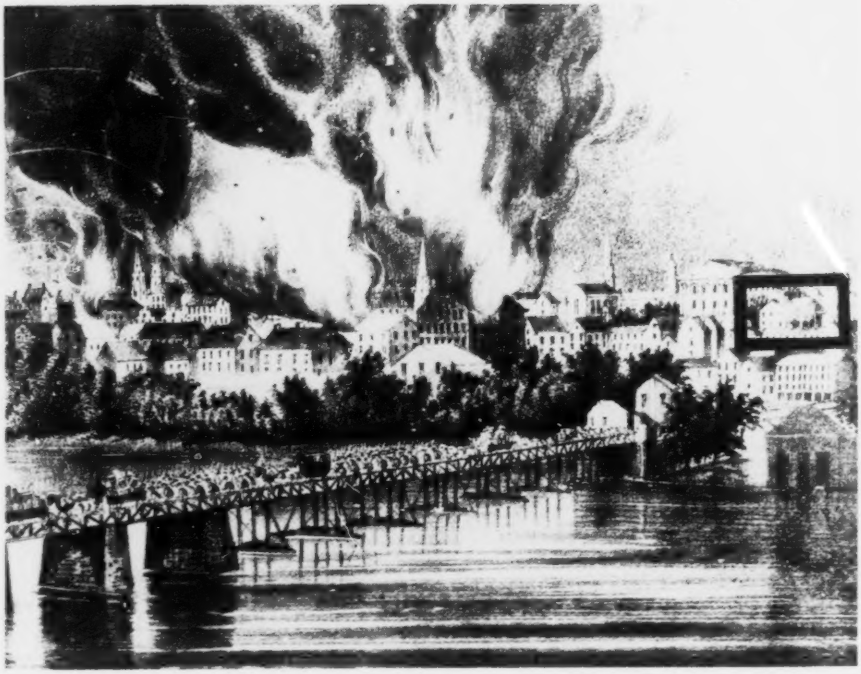
ADMINISTRATION



State Courthouse, Richmond
Occupied by Court 1847 - 1865

OFFICE OF THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

The Office of the Executive Secretary of the Supreme Court of Virginia serves as the administrative arm of the Virginia court system. The Executive Secretary, who is appointed by and holds office at the pleasure of the Supreme Court, is the state court administrator and assists the Chief Justice in executing the policies and programs of the judicial branch of government.

Under the direction of the Chief Justice, the Executive Secretary has responsibility for the development and maintenance of a personnel classification system for court personnel. The O.E.S. also serves as the financial management center for the judicial branch acting as the payroll and accounting office for the court system and preparing the budget for the judicial system.

The office is generally responsible for the compilation of all statistics regarding the judiciary and has the duty of continually evaluating the state judicial systems and planning for changes in organization and procedure. In addition, the administrative office offers legal research and technical business management assistance to the judges and clerks as well as providing data processing support services to the courts. Finally, the state court administrator serves as the secretary of the Judicial Council, both Judicial Conferences, the Committee on District Courts and provides general liaison between the court system and the Legislature, the Executive Branch, the bar, the news media and the general public.

In discharging these duties the primary mission of the Office of the Executive Secretary is to assist the courts in improving the quality and efficiency of the administration of justice in Virginia. Two major approaches are employed to accomplish this objective. Activities either are directed at introducing better business management practices to the courts or toward modernizing and making more uniform the legal procedures utilized by the judicial system.

Major activities within the Office during 1981 included the continuing development of CAIS - the Court Automated Information System, completion of the Circuit Court Personnel System Study as well as a study on cost containment within the criminal fund and involuntary mental commitment fund, and a comprehensive revision of the Virginia Magistrate's Manual. Reports on these projects as well as on the Office's on-going responsibilities and services are presented on the following pages.

ASSISTANT EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

The Assistant Executive Secretary's main areas of responsibility continue to be:

(1) Serving as a focal point for assignment of judges throughout the state;

(2) Preparation of designations for both circuit and district courts;

(3) Processing Medical Malpractice Panels and answering inquiries related to procedures and assignments; and

(4) Reviewing foreign attorney (reciprocity) applications and making a report on each to the Supreme Court for its decision.

1981 Designations

The year 1981 saw an 18.5 percent increase in designations issued by the Supreme Court. Of the 403 designations issued, 291 (72%) were in circuit courts and 112 (28%) were in district courts. Of note is the increased use of designated judges in the district court system, a 5 percent increase over 1980.

Assistance designations constituted the largest category. In 1981, 259 (or 64%) assistance designations were issued. Disqualification designations amounted to 112, or 28% of the total. In addition there was at least one designation in the following categories: compensation board appeals, vote recount, disbarment, annexation and change of venue.

Medical Malpractice Review Panels

The first Medical Malpractice Review Panel was assigned in December 1976. By December 31, 1981, 461 panels had been designated. In 1981, 113 panel assignments were made, and this represents an increase of 33 more assignments than in the previous year.

The largest incidence of claims continue to be filed in the state's urban areas. Hospital administrators, orthopedic and general surgeons and doctors with practices in obstetrics and gynecology account for the largest number of panel actions.

Foreign Attorney Applications

The number of foreign attorney applications increased from 121 to 129 in 1981. Of the number received and reviewed by the Assistant Executive Secretary, 79 were approved, 16 denied, 1 was withdrawn and 33 remained pending at the end of the year. Of the 129 applications received, 125 fell within the general license category (Rule 1A:1) and 4 within the patent and trademark category (Rule 1A:2).

Other Duties

The Assistant Executive Secretary also reviews applications for Hearing Officer positions and maintains files on those who are selected. Six new Hearing Officers were selected in 1981, and at the end of the year there were 76 on the list maintained by the Supreme Court. Hearing Officers are asked to travel throughout the state as needed and serve on a rotational basis.

EDUCATION

The first impact of the reduction of the LEAA grant for continuing judicial education was felt during 1981. The 50% reduction in this grant for FY82 required stoppage of all out-of-state education as of July 1, 1981. All judges and clerks were notified of this action in April. Additionally, all monies remaining in the out-of-state fund for FY81 were restricted to newly elected judges who could arrange to attend the "basic course" at either the American Academy of Judicial Education, the National Judicial College or the National College of Juvenile Justice prior to July of 1981. An unexpected repayment of education funds from the Department of Welfare did allow partial funding for nine juvenile judges' attendance at the 44th Annual Conference of the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges in July. While not popular, these actions were well accepted by the judges and clerks.

Other immediate steps that were taken were to place limits on meal reimbursement at the spring mandatory conferences and to offer all five spring 1982 conferences to the single hotel that submitted the best bid. As the year progressed grants also were sought through the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act and the U. S. Department of Education. The Department of Education turned down the request, but $64,000 was received from JJDP for FY83. In addition, $3,000 was awarded from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration for a program at our 1981 District Court Judges' Conference.

An education budget totaling $1,896,300 for the 1982-84 biennium was submitted to the 1982 General Assembly. The legislature appropriated $607,400; $286,800 for 1983 and $320,600 for 1984. This will permit the continuation of all mandatory conferences, a magistrates conference, magistrate certification and the judges' pre-bench orientation program each year. Because of the $64,000 JJDP grant award there will be some additional money after the above programs are held. The department is in the process of determining how best to spend these funds.

While the future appears uncertain, much was accomplished during 1981. The first Magistrate Certification Programs were held in Richmond in January and August. The January course was videotaped and made available to all chief magistrates to aid them in training magistrates who could not attend the training in Richmond. A Chief Magistrate Management and Administration Course was developed and presented to 31 of the 33 chief magistrates (including special chief magistrates). As of December 31, 1981, all magistrates appointed prior to July 1, 1980, who were to be reappointed, had been given their required certification training. Fifty-three magistrates, including one chief magistrate, appointed after June 30, 1980 had been successfully trained and tested by this same date. Two magistrates failed to successfully complete the training and testing and were dropped from the system. The department's next major project with the magistrates will be training and testing some 50 special magistrates who will be entering the system as of July 1, 1982.

Two Pre-bench Orientation Programs were held this year, one in March and the other in June. This was caused by the General Assembly's election of a few judges during the "veto session", held after the March orientation. This presented the opportunity to offer the orientation to substitute judges for the first time because of the small number of regular judges in the June class. Twenty-four substitute judges were invited to attend and ten accepted. These substitute judges' comments were uniformly positive about the training, and more will be invited in the future, space and funds permitting.

Also in June, the first in-state "basic refresher course" was held for judges at the Marshall-Wyth School of Law at the College of William and Mary. Four circuit judges and eighteen district court judges attended this week-long course. The judges, and the families who accompanied them were enthusiastic about the course and the facilities. This course will be continued and expanded, if funds are available. The goal is to make the course an alternative to the basic courses now offered in Reno and by AAJE.

In July the department followed up on the new critiques being used for out-of-state education. Letters were sent to all judges and clerks who had attended such courses between July and December, 1980, and who had stated on their critiques that they planned to make changes because of the information they had received. Each was asked to tell if he or she had indeed made the planned changes, and what the results were. Almost all had made the changes, and were pleased with the results. A second follow up letter will be mailed to those judges and clerks who attended out-of-state education courses between January and June of 1981.

As discussed earlier, out-of-state education was cut off as of July 1, 1981. Prior to this cut off, 11 circuit, 16 general district, 5 juvenile and domestic relations judges and 3 clerks attended out-of-state courses. Total costs were $44,890.65, which breaks down to $96.14 per training day and $1,219.55 per attendee.

In-state education continued on a full schedule. Mandatory conferences were held for circuit and district court judges, and district court clerks. Voluntary conferences were also held for the district court judges and clerks, and two were held for the magistrates. The circuit court judges also held two regional conferences in each of their six regions.

In summary, we are continuing the judicial education program at its same level of high quality while taking steps to reduce costs to a minimum under the existing system of conferences, and seeking new and dramatically less expensive methods for the future.

FISCAL ADMINISTRATION

The Department of Fiscal Services provides centralized accounting, budget, grants, payroll and purchasing and supply services for the Supreme Court, Circuit Courts, District Courts and the Magistrate System. Limited services are provided also to the Judicial Inquiry and Review Commission.

The Department is organized functionally into three areas of responsibility:

— budget and financial management;

— accounting and payroll; and

— purchasing and grants.

The Director is assisted by a Budget Analyst in formulating and developing the budget and in providing financial management information. Each of the remaining two functional areas is headed by an administrator who reports to the Director and is assisted by a staff of supervisors and clerks.

Activities During 1981

During the year, FY1982-84 budget requests totaling $140,069,700, were submitted for the six agencies of the judicial system. The total appropriations included in the Act passed by the General Assembly were $135,580,360. The reduction was due to decreases in anticipated revenues.

Accounting personnel processed 77,638 vouchers in FY1980-81. This was an increase of 40% over the number processed in the previous fiscal year. Payroll activity increased slightly because of a 2% rise in personnel paid. The payroll section maintains 15 payrolls. As of June 30, 1981, there were 1,662 full-time and part time people on the payrolls and an average of 164 substitute judges and wage employees paid monthly.

Administration of the Criminal Fund and Involuntary Mental Commitment Fund

As stated previously, the department processed approximately 22,000 more vouchers than in the previous year. This significant rise was due primarily to increases in the Criminal Fund workload and the addition, on July 1, 1980, of the reponsibility for processing involuntary mental commitment payments.

Rising costs within both funds have caused great concern recently both in the judiciary and the General Assembly. Total expenditures rose from $11,328,001 in FY 1979-80 to $13,711,208 in FY 1980-81 — an increase of 21 percent in one year. Because of the growth in costs, a deficit appropriation of $2,262,960 was made in FY 1980-81, and an additional appropriation of $6,675,500 was approved for FY 1980-81.

Appropriations made by the 1982 General Assembly for administration of these two funds during the 1982-84 biennium slightly exceeds $30 million.

During the year the department participated in a study to determine methods which could be implemented to contain costs in the criminal fund and fund for involuntary commitments. A full report on the results of that study appears later within this section of the Annual Report.

Enhancement of Purchasing Systems and Procedures

In order to provide efficient administrative support services to the judicial branch, a purchases and supply system for the courts and magistrates' offices was established within the Office of the Executive Secretary in 1977. Maintaining and improving this system is one of the continuing responsibilities of the Purchasing section within the Department of Fiscal Services.

As an enhancement to the system, the state Department of Purchases and Supply transferred to the Supreme Court in 1980 the responsibility of storing and shipping the 219 different forms used by the courts and magistrates in Virginia. Printing and distributing the Rules of the Supreme Court and Virginia Reports also became the duties of the Supreme Court. Two new employees and 5,100 square feet of warehouse space were required in assuming the new workload. During 1981, 2,299 square feet of storage space was added to existing warehouse space. During the same period 5,799 orders for forms and supplies were processed, 7,187 packages of forms were shipped and 1,008 volumes of Supreme Court reports were shipped.

LEGAL RESEARCH

During 1981, the Legal Research Department completed several projects in addition to providing legal research support for judges and policy-making bodies.

Circuit Clerks Duties List

A major accomplishment of the Department was the completion of the Circuit Clerks Duties List, which contains a comprehensive listing of all duties imposed on circuit court clerks by statute or by Rule of Court.

One of the shortcomings which has concerned many clerks of circuit court has been the lack of one single source which could provide them with a way to discern their duties under the statutes and the Rules of Court. Given the myriad functions of the clerk's office in a circuit court, it is not surprising that the statutes and Rules of Court impose hundreds of duties on the clerk. Many of these duties are related to specific types of cases or records transactions. Frequently, many of the circuit court clerks duties are not indexed in the Code of Virginia in such a manner as to alert the clerk to his responsibilities.

The Office of the Executive Secretary documented these duties by function in its 1977 Comprehensive Judicial Plan. After several circuit court clerks used the 1977 duties list for several years, they requested that such a list be distributed to all circuit court clerks. During late 1980, this task was undertaken by the Office of the Executive Secretary. Upon review, it was found that the information needed to be updated and expanded to better reflect the current duties of circuit court clerks and that the information needed to be placed in a format that more closely reflected the way in which clerks of circuit court would need the information.

This document was distributed to clerks of circuit court in November, 1981. It is anticipated that annual revisions will be made to this document to reflect statutory and Rule changes made each year.

Temporary Detention Process

The 1981 Session of the General Assembly amended §37.1-67.1 to permit magistrates to conduct temporary detention hearings in civil mental commitment cases and, when necessary, to issue temporary detention orders to hold the subject of a civil mental commitment proceeding until the subject is given a commitment hearing. This Department, in conjunction with the Technical Assistance and Education Departments and in the Forms Advisory Committee, developed the forms and procedures to be used by magistrates in such detention hearings and provided training lectures for the various magistrates' training and orientation courses in 1981.

Informational Publications

One of the methods used to inform interested citizens about the courts is a series of informational publications designed to provide the information about each type of court which is most frequently needed by such citizens. To this end, this Department prepared a concise booklet entitled "The Supreme Court of Virginia" which describes the history and functions of the Supreme Court of Virginia. In addition, this Department revised and reprinted the "Virginia General District Courts Information Pamphlet" and the "Virginia Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts Information Pamphlet."

Support for Policy-making Bodies

One of the major responsibilities of the Office of the Executive Secretary is to provide support services to the policy-making bodies in the judicial branch of government. The major activities of this Department towards meeting this responsibility in 1981 were:

- Providing research services on bail procedures and bail bondsmen for a subcommittee of the Committee on District Courts;
- Updating an analysis of selected Rules of the Supreme Court of Virginia for a committee of the Judicial Council; and
- Providing research services as needed.

Continuing Functions and Activities

In addition to providing general research services to the Office of the Executive Secretary, this Department was responsible for:

- Continuing the Court Legal Research Assistance Project, which handled 80 requests in 1981 from circuit court judges;
- Updating the District Court Manual, including rewriting all case processing procedures;

— Conducting a review of the uniform district court case processing form, which resulted in the revision of 35 forms, the creation of six new forms, and the elimination of one form. Most of these new or revised forms were a result of suggested improvements made by clerks, magistrates, and judges during the initial use of the uniform forms.

MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEMS

The Department of Management Information Systems (MIS) identifies, develops, maintains, and administers automated systems in support of the Virginia judicial system. Staff of the Department provide technical advice on systems and non-systems related projects to the Office of the Executive Secretary (OES), the Committee on District Courts, the Judicial Council, and other governmental agencies in the performance of their duties and in the satisfaction of statutory requirements. In addition, the Department analyzes projects and systems for applications of computer methods, reviews court activities to evaluate their potential for automation, examines grant proposals from courts, introduces system-oriented procedures in clerical processing, directs the efforts of systems consultants and manages computer related resources.

Organization And Staffing

The Department is organized and staffed as a data processing service activity, functionally oriented to satisfy the data processing needs of individual courts as well as the overall and summary requirements of the total judicial system. To offer this service, the Department has a Requirements, Systems Development, and an Operations Division. Both the Requirements and Systems Development Divisions are divided into a Judicial Management Systems Branch for developing internal OES projects and a Court Management Systems Branch for developing the Court Automated Information System (CAIS). The Operations Division is divided into a System of Software Branch to maintain computer operating programs and manage system data bases, an Operations Branch to manage system equipment, and the Roanoke Computer Center.

The Requirements Division serves as the Department's interface with all automated data processing users and is responsible for assessing user needs, training users, system testing, conversion, improvements control, and department planning. The design and develolpment of systems to satisfy user needs specified in user requirements documentation is performed by the Systems Development Division. The Operations Division is responsible for managing regional computer center staff, operating equipment, the installation and maintenance of systems, library functions, telecommunications, networking, and all equipment inventory, user and cost reporting.

Description Of Court Management Systems

The major emphasis of the work accomplished during 1981 by the Court Management Systems Branches was the continued development of the Courts Automated Information System (CAIS). The CAIS consists of three major subsystems: Case Management; Financial Management; and Support Payment. The system is a data processing project sponsored by the Committee on District Courts and the Judicial Council which will automate many routine functions of a clerk's office and materially assist them in the management of court activities.

Case Management Subsystem

The Case Management Subsystem is designed to fulfill and enhance the case processing, file maintenance, administrative/clerical, and statistical requirements for managing a court. All data needed to establish new cases or to update existing cases are entered into this subsystem which utilizes terminals located in the Clerk's office. The information entered is available for immediate recall.

At the time a case is filed, the clerk enters certain basic information into the subsystem and automatic indexing of the case occurs. Subsequent access to the case is then possible through a video display terminal by entering either the individual's identification number, case number, or a variety of other search criteria. As each event occurs during the life cycle of the case, (i.e., arrest, arraignment, hearing, appeal) this information is recorded in the subsystem files. This additional data is used to produce case dockets, certain type of notices, and a variety of management reports. Additionally, provisions are made for the indexing of certain legal records or instruments maintained by the Circuit Courts.

The subsystem uses an IBM 3278 terminal, an IBM 4300 series computer, and an IBM 3287 line printer to print copies of reports and images seen on the terminals.

Financial Management Subsystem

The Financial Management subsystem is designed to provide a uniform system for financial management which serves all courts in the Commonwealth of Virginia. The subsystem operates in accordance with the accounting principles set forth in the Virginia Court Accounting Manual issued by the Office of the Executive Secretary, the policies and procedures set forth in the Commonwealth Accounting And Reporting System issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, and the specific needs of the court system.

The subsystem is based on a transaction approach to accounting where each financial event is identified to an appropriate journal and ledger by a revenue code (general ledger account number) recognized by the Comptroller of Virginia. In addition, each transaction is identified by a unique number that cannot be duplicated by any other court in Virginia. The subsystem is interfaced with both the Case Management and Support subsystems.

The subsystem involves the use of an IBM 3684 electronic cash register/point of sale terminal (ECR/POS) to record receipt transactions, an IBM 3278 terminal to record disbursement transactions, and an IBM 3287 line printer to print copies of reports. An IBM 4300 series computer is used to support the processing of all accounting functions of the subsystem, maintain the journals and ledgers, and prepare financial statements, and other financial reports.

Support Payment Subsystem

The Support Payment Subsystem is designed to provide efficient control of court ordered support cases. The subsystem can accept payments via the electronic cash register, which is a portion of the Financial System, or payments can be entered via the terminal. A check to the recipient is then generated based on the frequency determined by the Court. The subsystem can also accept "pass-through" payments. All parties involved in the case are maintained including parents, children, petitioner, recipients, and attorneys. A history of all events in a case is maintained such as filing of petitions, hearings, and appeals. Total arrearage owed to each recipient within a case is accurately computed including a breakdown of arrearage that has accumulated since the last court order. Support paid for multiple recipients within a case is automatically disbursed based on the relative percentages of the current orders in existence. Automated dunning notice generation and a management report for follow-up allows for tighter control of delinquent payors. A management report for the judge to use in the courtroom provides a synopsis of the case including the principal parties, all orders entered, a history of events, payments received, and the arrearage breakdown owed to each recipient. Payments received by the cash register are updated daily. All other information entered via the terminal is immediately updated. This subsystem will interface with the Case Management System to provide other capabilities.

The subsystem uses an IBM 3278 terminal, an IBM 4300 Series computer for processing of information, and an IBM 3287 line printer to print copies of reports and images as seen on the terminal.

System Management

To control and monitor the progress of the many activities involved in the development of each CAIS subsystem, a project management system has been implemented by MIS to monitor all tasks during the lifecycle of the system. In addition, the following groups track the activities of the CAIS: Judicial Systems Advisory Committee; the Committee on District Courts; and the Judicial Council.

The role of the Judicial Systems Advisory Committee is particularly vital to the development of the CAIS in that it is reponsible for making policy decisions which effect each development phase of the system and ensuring that the design of the system is an adequate reflection of user needs statewide. The committee, through its subcommittee and ad hoc committee structure, participates heavily in defining the functional requirements of each subsystem.

System Implementation

The overall plan for implementing the CAIS calls for a network configuration of two regional computer centers, one based in Roanoke to service the western part of the state and the other in Richmond to service the eastern portion of the state. Each court will be serviced on an on-line basis via telecommunciations lines to the appropriate regional center, and have its own data entry and case accessing capabilities through video display terminals, electronic cash registers, and printers for report and notice preparation. Each court will control and maintain its own data files, but will share the regional processing equipment to reduce overall operating costs.

The Support Payment, Financial Management, and Case Management subsystems are planned to be implemented at each court level in the Twenty-Third Circuit pilot region during 1982. A plan to implement other courts outside the pilot region is now being developed by the Judicial Systems Advisory Committee. After the committee approves the implementation plan, the plan must be approved bv the Committee on District Courts and the Judicial Council.

System Cost/Benefits

The cost for implementing the three subsystems in the pilot region and twenty-five (25) courts outside the region is estimated at $2.85 million. This figure includes the costs to equip and maintain the computer centers as well as all the terminal lines located in each of the courts and all communications charges involved.

If the systems are installed in all of the Commonwealth's Courts, annual recurring costs will total $2.5 million. However, initial estimates indicate that savings will amount to $4.8 million per year upon statewide completion of implementation. The statewide system will require ninety (90) months to install. The life of the system is projected to be in excess of (10) years. Based upon current dollars, the system will be fully amortized 4.6 years after full implementation.

Additional benefits of the CAIS which are realized but not quantified in the economic feasibility of the CAIS include:

1. Reduced manual data entry and retrieval requirements for DMV and State Police;
2. Improved uniformity and accuracy of data maintained within the courts;
3. More timely statistical information to aid in long-term court planning and respond to inquiries from the legislature and the public;
4. Reduced development and operating costs for currently automated court systems; and
5. Added capability to interface with an automated statewide Criminal Justice Information System.

Description Of Judicial Management Systems

There are eight major automated systems for the Office of Executive Secretary currently being supported and enhanced by the Judicial Management Systems Branches of the Department. The branches also work with the Judicial Planning Department to assess changes and improvements needed for the Circuit Court, District Court and Magistrate statistical reporting systems.

The Fiscal Services and Personnel Departments are the primary users of the following internal systems:

1. The Personnel System consists of a personnel file and an update program which primarily support the Leave Accounting and Payroll Systems. Such reports as personnel listing, merit turnover, expiration of term, special aging and terminated employees are produced by the system for the Personnel Department;
2. The Leave Accounting System is designed to calculate and maintain employee leave balances. The Leave Accounting System is maintained by the Personnel Department.
3. The Biennial Budget System is designed to assist in the allocation of funds based on the volume of activity in each court, the staff, and the overall budget by type of court;
4. The Budget Tracking System reports on the status of court system expenditures by court and budget line items. This allows the court system to monitor deviations in expenditures, determine their cause, and take corrective action as required; and
5. The Payroll System which was developed by the State Finance Department and implemented by Fiscal Services, is being enhanced by MIS.

In addition, the following automated systems are being considered for implementation:

1. A Bill Tracking System, developed by the Division of Legislative Services, for following bills and actions of the Virginia General Assembly;
2. OSCAR, a text retrieval system developed by the Division of Legislative Services for research on the Virginia Code, Attorney General opinions, and Supreme Court Decisions;
3. A Purchasing Inventory System for controlling and monitoring of supplies and expediting purchase orders;
4. A Legal Research System to access an electronic law library for searches and synopses, headnotes, and the full text of a case opinion as an aid to judges and law clerks;
5. A Word Processing System to reduce costs of producing repetitive correspondence, reports, and other publications; and
6. A Financial Management Information System to integrate the accounting function with personnel, inventory, budgeting and payroll functions.

PERSONNEL

The Personnel Department's staff provide certralized personnel management services for approximately 1,500 persons working within the judicial system including all Circuit and District Court Judges, District Court Clerk's office staff, and Magistrates. Major responsibilities and accomplishments during 1981 include:

— Developing the personnel wage and salary portion of the State Biennium Budget. During 1981, the budget for the 1982-1984 biennium was prepared. All courts and magistrates were surveyed to determine their anticipated personnel needs as well as to identify any special plans by others in the local area which would impact court system personnel needs. Statistical projections and analyses were developed for each court and magistrate office. All data was then reviewed by the Committee on District Courts and submitted to the Chief Justice for presentation to the General Assembly as a part of the Judicial Branch Budget.

— Developing the personnel classification structure and position descriptions for District Court Clerks' office staff and Magistrates.

— Conducting salary surveys and development of state salary scales for Magistrates, District Court Clerks' office staff, and wage scales for temporary employees. Salaries for all judges are determined by the General Assembly. During 1981 the Committee on District Courts approved changes in the salary scale differentials authorized for the Northern Virginia area. For districts 17, 18, 19, and 31, court personnel now receive approximately 20% differential from the remainder of the State to retain a competitive salary structure. In July, 1982, when the Special Magistrate System in this area transfers to the State system, this wage differential will also apply to magistrates provided the funding is appropriated by the General Assembly.

— Performing personnel survey visits during the year to fifty courts to gather data for special personnel studies and to review court personnel management procedures and policies.

— Preparing recommendations concerning the number of positions and classifications in response to requests for changes in staffing levels for District Court Clerk's offices and Magistrates. During 1981, the Committee on District Courts' policy of authorizing wage assistance to cover normal absences in the district courts has been studied. In an effort to decentralize management authorities for day-to-day operations, a wage budget has been fully distributed among the district courts. Those clerks' offices with two employees or fewer and those whose operating efficiency is in the upper 25% of the State have been allocated a monetary budget. Those with more than two employees and whose operating efficiency is below the upper 25% must absorb normal personnel absences for vacation and sick leave without additional help. A separate budget for emergency or unforeseen needs has been distributed to each chief judge based on the number of personnel in the district. Usage of the emergency budget must be authorized by the chief judge. This process will be evaluated during 1982 to determine its effectiveness.

- Developing personnel policy recommendations to the Committee on District Courts and implementation of those approved.
- Participating in educational conferences, committees, and councils where relevant subjects are presented or discussed. During 1981, the Educational Department developed a certification program for magistrates. The Personnel Office participated with the Technical Assistance Department in preparing the management program for the chief magistrates. It consists of approximately five hours of conceptual and practical training and is conducted three to four times during the year. Additionally, an intensive management development seminar was conducted in Virginia Beach for a small group of court officials. The primary objective was to define individual management styles and identify ways in which the various members of the management team can administer the courts effectively.
- Administering the benefits programs for the court system. As a part of this process the Personnel Office has attended and coordinated a number of brief, topical seminars. The subjects primarily include retirement, Blue Cross/Blue Shield, and deferred compensation. Individual assistance is also provided to personnel with specialized questions or problems.
- Developing and implementing an automated personnel system.
- Maintaining numerous administrative records as well as individual personnel files for all Judges, Magistrates, and District Court employees.

Circuit Court Clerk's Office Personnel Study

During 1981, the Office of the Executive Secretary contracted with Ernest H. Short and Associates, a consulting firm specializing in court administration, to conduct a study of Virginia's Circuit Court Clerk's Office. The major issues addressed were the following:

1. Should the circuit court clerk be changed from an elected official to an appointed one?
2. Should a statewide personnel system including a classification and salary plan for all circuit court personnel be developed?
3. Should the circuit court system be financed by fees or from State appropriation?

The project staff requested input from all circuit clerks in Virginia concerning these issues and personally visited approximately half of the 122 offices. During the visits there were interviews with clerks and their staff to obtain information concerning the structure of the offices, the nature of staff responsibilities, and the general operations of the offices. The project team worked closely with a Circuit Court Clerk's Advisory Committee composed of clerks representing various geographic areas of the Commonwealth as well as different office sizes. Team members presented numerous ideas and options to the Advisory Committee, and these activities ultimately resulted in a proposed classification and salary plan for circuit court clerk's offices. Additional products were a preliminary financial analysis, implementation plan, and a personnel management handbook, which new clerks and supervisory personnel may use as a resource.

After the development of the proposals, The Office of the Executive Secretary devoted a series of regional meetings and one State-wide conference to communicate the concepts and details of administration to all clerks. These seminars provided a forum for dialogue and discussion of the benefits to be gained and any apparent problem areas.

Following completion of the study and the series of meetings, the majority view was that the circuit court clerks should remain elected officials since so much of the office's functions are focused toward the locality and its executive branch of government. Additionally, the fee system of supporting the office should be retained with some modifications allowing distribution of excess fees to those offices with insufficient fees. Because the funding mechanism will not change to State appropriation, the State-wide personnel system will not be implemented. However, efforts to fund 35 law clerk and 55 secretarial positions for circuit court judges (who are State officials) will continue.

JUDICIAL PLANNING

The Department of Judicial Planning is responsible for developing and maintaining an effective planning capability within the judiciary so that systemwide needs may be identified and addressed and direction set forth for the development and improvement of judicial services within the state. Its functions include both systemwide and management planning, statistical collection and analysis, and publishing such documents as the State of the Judiciary Report and Report of the Judicial Council to the General Assembly. In addition, staff prepares reports on specific problems confronting the courts. In 1981, the department was responsible for conducting research to determine methods of containing costs within two funds administered by the judicial branch: the criminal fund and involuntary mental commitment fund. A summary of study findings immediately follows the Planning Department's report.

Comprehensive Judicial Plan

The Comprehensive Judicial Plan is the document used to set forth goals, identify problems and needs, analyze alternative courses of action, and establish priorities for programs aimed at improving the operations of the entire system. The Plan is based upon information and ideas submitted by judicial system personnel throughout the state.

During the year, staff worked with a number of judges, clerks, and magistrates to design the 1982 Issues Survey which was sent in February, 1982, to all judges and clerks and chief magistrates. A total of 639 surveys were sent out and 295 or 46% were returned. (A summary of the results of this survey are included in the State of the Judiciary address made by Chief Justice Carrico and reprinted at the beginning of the Annual Report.) The preliminary findings were presented to the Judicial Council in April, 1982. The Council has designated its Judicial Administration Committee to work with staff in preparation of the 1982 Comprehensive Plan, scheduled for completion later this year. Funding and program needs identified through this effort will be incorporated into the 1984-86 biennium budget submitted by the judicial branch. By law, preparation for the next biennium begins this year.

Statistical Analysis

The department maintains three judicial information systems which were developed for statistical reporting and analysis purposes. They are used to meet report requirements at the circuit, district and magistrate levels. In all three systems, data is collected on an individual locality basis. It is summarized monthly and forwarded to the Office of the Executive Secretary. Results are reviewed and analyzed and then presented in the Annual Report and various other documents.

Fifty workload analyses reports also were prepared during 1981; these analyses are utilized by the Supreme Court in certifying judicial vacancies within the Circuit Courts and the Judicial Council and Committee on District Courts in determining the need for additional judgeships within the state.

Statistical data collected through the caseload reporting systems is used not only by these policy-making bodies and individuals within the judicial system, it is the basis upon which the O.E.S. answers numerous information requests from legislators, other state and local agencies, and private citizens. Therefore, a key objective within the department is working with judicial system personnel to improve the accuracy and consistency of data obtained from all three statistical systems. In mid-1981, an additional review method was implemented to assist in ensuring the correctness of chief magistrate's monthly reports. Within the district court statistical system, the quarterly printout has been revised and updated for easier review and analysis. In August, department staff participated in a program held during the Local Government Officials Conference (LGOC) concerning the circuit court statistical system. A presentation was made concerning the system and an extensive question and answer session was held. Efforts to update the statistical systems and to address problems will continue to be made particularly as conversion of these statistics to the Court Automated Information System is undertaken.

Other Activities

Each year in addition to its on-going responsibilities as the administrative office of the courts, the Office of the Executive Secretary undertakes a variety of system-wide projects involving a number of judges, clerks and magistrates as well as various departments and individual staff members within the Office. To assist the staff in coordinating these work plans and scheduling and completing projects on a timely basis, the Judicial Planning Department was asked to develop an internal management planning process. Through this process, each department set forth objectives to be accomplished during 1981. Manpower and other resource needs were estimated and priorities for work accomplishment were determined. Plans within each department then were integrated into an overall set of objectives for the Office as a whole. This planning process will be maintained and repeated on a yearly basis.

Cost Containment Within The Criminal Fund And Involuntary Mental Commitment Fund

Concern over rising costs prompted the General Assembly, in its 1981 Session, to request the Supreme Court of Virginia to "study, recommend, and institute where appropriate, administrative and statutory revisions to contain costs within the criminal fund and the involuntary mental commitment fund." Total expenditures within the two accounts rose from $11,328,001 in FY 79-80 to $13,711,208 in FY 80-81, an increase of more than 21% in one year.

Criminal Fund

A review of criminal fund expenditures in fiscal year 1980-81 indicated that $7.4 million of the total $11.2 million spent went towards payment of court-appointed counsel for indigents. This cost has grown by 70 percent during the last five years.

Among the reasons cited for these accelerating costs are the general increases in crime and requirements for counsel as well as a rise in the number of persons deemed indigent due to prevailing economic conditions. The latter is more difficult to document, primarily because there are no statutorily set standards for determining indigency in Virginia. Due to these trends, it can only be anticipated that expenses for court-appointed counsel will continue to grow.

Research conducted confirms that rising costs for indigent defense is a problem nationwide. Fee schedules also have increased in at least twelve states within the past year. Virginia is said to have the lowest fee schedule in the nation. A number of states have been seeking alternative methods of financing such services. One such alternative presently in use in four areas of Virginia is the Public Defender System. Staff contacted representatives of the judiciary and the legal community in the jurisdictions where pilot public defender offices are located for their evaluation of the operation of these offices. Advantages of the public defender system over the court-appointed attorney system listed by respondents included cost savings, ability of attorneys to specialize in criminal cases, resulting consistency in the quality of representation of clients, improved scheduling and docketing of cases, use of investigators to assist attorneys in interviewing witnesses and developing the facts of the case. Figures compiled by the Public Defender Commission indicate that operation of the pilot offices in Virginia Beach, Roanoke, Petersburg and the Augusta-Staunton-Waynesboro areas have resulted in a savings of $497,000 since 1977.

Findings of the study were presented to the Committee on District Courts in late fall, 1981. As a result the Committee adopted a proposal to expand the Public Defender system into other jurisdictions where such offices would prove cost-effective. Under the proposal, determination of the number and location of these offices would become the responsibility of the Public Defender Commission. Legislation to that effect was introduced in the 1982 General Assembly but was not enacted. Appropriations made to support the criminal fund during the 1982-84 biennium totaled more than $30 million.

Involuntary Mental Commitment Fund

Responsibility for administering the involuntary mental commitment fund was transferred to the Supreme Court from the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation in 1980. Costs associated with the process have increased approximately 35 percent annually since 1977. In 1981 total reimbursements made for medical and legal services provided to persons subject to such proceedings reached $2.4 million. By far the largest category of expenditures, 50 percent, went towards hospital payments. Nineteen percent of the total went to physicians and psychiatrists; 16 percent to attorneys; and 14% to special justices.

Shortly after the responsibility for administering the mental commitment fund was transferred to the Office of the Executive Secretary, the Committee on District Courts formed a subcommittee composed of judges, clerks and magistrates to study the issues involved. In late 1981, the Committee adopted a number of recommendations proposed by this subcommittee including placing statutory limitations on reimbursements made to hospitals for specific services rendered to persons held awaiting commitment hearings. In addition, the Committee established a policy that full-time district court judges conduct mental commitment hearings when they are reasonably available.

Finally, due to concerns raised during the course of the study regarding the quality and effectiveness of the present mental commitment procedures, it was recommended that a thorough evaluation be made of relevant civil commitment statutes and actual practices in Virginia.

The 1982 General Assembly considered legislation introduced to place statutorily set maximum costs for hospital expenses but decided instead to enact a measure requiring the State Board of Health to establish such costs based on reasonable criteria. The legislation did pass a resolution establishing a study committee to examine present mental commitment procedures within the state.

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

The Technical Assistance Department provides administrative and management assistance to the Virginia Magistrates and District Court Clerks. Major activities include performing technical assistance visits which promote sound management standards and uniform administrative and operating procedures, and acting as a resource to judicial system personnel by responding to individual inquiries, solving specific problems, and coordinating activities between the magistrates, clerks, O.E.S. pesonnel, and outside agencies.

Projects Undertaken In 1981

Each year special projects are undertaken by the Technical Assistance staff. In 1981 the following projects were started, completed, or in progress:

- — A complete updating of the Magistrates Manual published in March, 1982.
- — The Tax Set-Off Project to develop new procedures for reporting unpaid fines and costs to the Department of Taxation for recovery from Virginia income tax refunds.
- — Court Appointed Attorney Fees Pilot Program was conducted in the 4th, 12th, 13th, 19th, 23rd & 31st Judicial Districts to determine the cost per charge and per hour for court appointed attorneys. The results indicated the average costs per charge to be $67.54 and the average costs per hour to be $26.36. The survey was based on the submission of special time sheets involving 1020 charges over a 3 month period.
- — Internal Audit Controls were studied in cooperation with the Auditor of Public Accounts and several new procedures were adopted by the Committee on District Courts as a result of this study. There remains an on-going study to further improve internal audit controls.

Technical Assistance Visits

An average of forty individual visits are conducted to specific courts and magistrates each month by staff members. Visits may be made at the request of the individual court or chief magistrate, the Committee on District Courts, or the Executive Secretary. Five types of technical visits are performed:

- — Special Investigations necessary to prepare reports requested by the Committee on District Courts;

- Special Monitoring of the implementation or operation of specific systems and procedures. For example, during recent visits docketing, accounting and revenue reporting procedures have been observed;
- General Monitoring to improve other administrative and operating procedures and management practices;
- Public Relations or Orientation Tours; or
- Personnel Surveys to determine the need for staffing level changes.

Other Department Responsibilities

Staff of the department also act as a resource to the clerks and magistrates by developing, implementing, and promoting uniform procedures in the areas of accounting, administering and managing court operations such as personnel, docketing, reporting, and other office procedures, and maintenance of magistrate logs.

In addition, the department monitors the cash receipts from each District Court by receiving and reviewing, monthly, the Report to the Supreme Court of Disbursement of Revenue. The Department obtains explanations or investigates unusual variances in these reports.

SUMMARY OF GRANTS

ACTIVE DURING CALENDAR YEAR 1981

GRANT NUMBER: 80-D-5596

TITLE: Virginia Court Reorganization and Improvement Project

PURPOSE: This grant supports two important efforts to improve the Virginia Court System: (1) the development of a statewide personnel system for the non-judicial employees of Virginia's Circuit Courts (this project will develop a uniform classification system, employment qualifications, salary plan and personnel policy manual for Circuit Court employees), and (2) the development of legislation and court rules, which if enacted will establish an Intermediate State Court of Appeals. The Intermediate Court of Appeals will absorb much of the caseload of the Supreme Court, and help ensure that as the number of petitions for appeal continues to rise the appellate court system remains able to perform both its corrective and law-reforming functions.
